What I Learned At the Canteen

Down at the canteen, where I work every Monday night, I've learned how to make a lot of vegetables into tempting dishes—inexpensive vege-tables, too. One of them is eggplant. Jim never used to eat egg-plant, but when I fix it for him now in this new way, well, I wish you'd see him eat it!

I cut up my eggplant into equares, and boil until it's tender. Then I put it into a baking dish and season it with pepper and sait. I cover the eggplant with a layer of tomato the eggpiant with a layer of grated cheese, and chopped hard-boiled egg on the very top. I bake all this for about twenty minutes, bit, of course, it lan't complete without the deliclous flavor that Jim thinks the claus havor that Jim thinks the most important part of any dish-Al Sauce. It makes a wonderful en-tree, and sometimes I serve it as the chief dish of the meal. It would be good anyway, but the A1 Sauce makes it simply luscious. There's no other word for it. Just you try it some time, for your Jim.—Adv.

Modest Alischuler, the founder as well as the conductor of the orchestra, has a small and moderately competent organisation of about fifty men, better in the brass and reed choirs than in the strings, in this connection it must be noted, in fairness that noted, in fairness, that the number of strings is much below that to which Philadelphin audiences are accustomed.
