GOVERNOR WARNS OF "RED" MENACE

Promises Generous Laws as Remedy for Bolshevism and "Social Infection"

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Urges Political Factions Here to Get Together for City's Best Interests

By the Associated Press

Harrisburg, Jan. 21.—"Good public education, the best of public education, generous, progressive, humane laws and thorough justice, backed by a stern, forceful and God-fearing public sentiment," is Governor William C. Sproul's antidote for Bolshevism, which he also called "political distemper" and "social infection."

Recognize Soldiers' Services

Recognition of the services of Pennsylvania's returning soldiers should be practical as a constructive, private enterprise should be a "warm-hearted demonstration of grateful appreciation, and the State a great employer," he said.

SPROUL PLEDGES HEART TO STATE

Farewell Speech as Senator Puts Interests of People First

RESIGNS AS MEMBER

He and Beidleman Given Ovation as They Leave for Higher Offices

JANE KLIER

Harrisburg, Jan. 21.—"I shall have at heart the interests and the rights of every man, woman and child in Pennsylvania, whether they be great or small, in what I shall try to do as Governor of this great State. And I certainly want the affectionate co-operation of the Senate of Pennsylvania."

Governor-elect Sproul made this pledge before a crowded Senate chamber last night when he resigned as a member of that body to accept, at noon today, the governorship of Pennsylvania.

Asked by the newspaper men how she liked Harrisburg and the executive mansion, this tiny bit of feminine liveliness simply replied that it was "great."

"Tom" Garvin, veteran clerk of the House and a native of Delaware County, has known Jane for four summers and says she is "the cutest thing in the world."

Jane will occupy a place on the big stand when her "old Pop" will be inaugurated today, and if she doesn't prove to be the stellar attraction then "Tom" Garvin is a poor judge of feminine charms.

Immediately after the convention of the Senate two paintings by Miss Violet Oakley were unveiled, and Miss Oakley delivered an address in which she explained the panels at length.

She then referred to the other paintings, the work of her brush, which grace the walls of the Senate chamber, and said they all represented the progress and glory of the nation.

"I consider Mr. Baker the most efficient man in the State government," is Governor Sproul's comment. Mr. Baker was a page in the Senate when Governor Sproul made his appearance as the baby member of that body twenty-two years ago.

"I am glad that Baker is the clerk of the Senate," said the Governor today. "He will keep me posted and be of great service to me."

There is a story going the rounds that Governor Sproul wanted to appoint Mr. Baker to a bigger job, but that Baker's declining health prevented it.

Governor Sproul admitted that this story is true, but declined to name the office to which he would have placed his old friend.

Senator Sproul entered the Senate chamber, accompanied by Mrs. Sproul and other members of his family and friends, he was cheered by his colleagues and the largest audience seen in the chamber for many years.

He finished his farewell address by again being cheered and a moment later the speaker of the house, Edward E. Beidleman, of Dauphin County, who will be inaugurated Lieutenant Governor tomorrow, Mr. Beidleman presented his resignation to Lieutenant Governor Frank B. McClain immediately after Senator Sproul finished his address.

All of the new Governor's appointees were also present, and near the rostrum sat former Governor McPherson, of West Virginia, a business associate of Mr. Sproul.

Senator Sproul in his address spoke as follows: "I want to express my appreciation of the long years of courtesy that I received here. When I come to think of it that even the venerable Senators who will now be leaving have served here ten years longer than my patient constituency has borne with me, and I have in the Senate."

Recent reports to the Treasury indicate that millions of dollars worth of securities of doubtful value have been thrown on the market since the signing of the armistice and many promoters are taking Liberty Bonds in exchange for their stocks or bonds, subsequently throwing the Liberty Bonds on the market.

Because of congressional action on proposed blue-sky legislation, the Treasury has been assured of the support of the Associated Advertising Clubs, the Investment Bankers' Association, and various stock exchanges in curbing the issue of fraudulent securities.

"JUST PLAIN BILL SPROUL," NEW GOVERNOR ASSERTS

"I'm Ordinary Citizen Until Noon," He Tells Crowds That Flock to Mansion at First Break of Day to Serenade Him

By a Staff Correspondent

Harrisburg, Jan. 21.—"Don't forget that I am just a plain citizen until noon today," said Governor-elect Sproul at ten o'clock this morning, when members of the inaugural committee visited the Executive Mansion.

Several addressed Mr. Sproul as Governor and one of two referred to him as Senator. Then the man who is now the Governor of Pennsylvania suggested that for a few hours he was "just plain Bill Sproul."

"For twenty-two years," said Mr. Sproul, "I have held public office. In fact, I have been a senator for that long. At ten o'clock last night, I resigned and from then until noon today, I am just a plain citizen."

Not since the soldier-governors of the Civil War period has a chief executive been accorded a more noisy and successful reception than that given to Governor Sproul. His friends, numbering thousands, flocked to Harrisburg yesterday, and was up to the two hours of the morning waiting to serenade him at the Executive Mansion.

At 5 o'clock they were up and at it again, and from that hour until he left the mansion, shortly after 11 o'clock, he was kept busy acknowledging the salutes.

The impromptu celebrations were not confined to political clubs. Perhaps they made the greatest amount of noise, but they did not shade the friendliness and cordiality of plain citizens in sincerity and color.

The Executive Mansion, in Front street, a thoroughfare that skirts the Susquehanna, proved a Mecca for morning for the crowds, and from the early hours—in fact, long before Mr. Sproul was out of bed—hundreds of men and women have passed the house.

How the city managed to house its great throng of visitors last night is hard to tell.

Hundreds of men were turned away from the hotels and in throngs were many who had been promised reservations.

All the Penn-Harris more than 100 Philadelphia residents who were placed in the grand ballroom, and at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium another batch of seventy-five caught a little sleep from noisy calls.

Paternal organizations came to bat in the small rooms of the morning and managed to find quarters for late arrivals in Harrisburg homes.

Before day-light many of the local Sproul rovers were out of bed, and shortly after the breakfast hour rumbled up the streets for three hours and whooping things up for everybody and everything connected with the Republican party.

you will be a thoroughbred here," concluded the Lieutenant Governor.

Senator Beidleman, after handing up his resignation, also spoke briefly.

Little business was transacted by the two branches. The House adjourned within twenty minutes after it reconvened.

A resolution introduced by Representative Brady, of Philadelphia, to give soldiers and sailors pay for a period of three months after their discharge from the service was adopted and went to the Senate, which took similar action.

Governor-elect Sproul and Representative W. T. Ramsey, of Chester, were recipients of huge bouquets of roses from the Saturday Night Club of Chester.
