

NEW'S BILL GIVES U.S. CITIZEN ARMY

Indiana Senator Introduces Measure for Universal Military Training

YOUTHS FROM 19 TO 26

Sponsor Explains They Would Have Year of Physical Exercise and Mental Help

Washington, Jan. 31.—Universal compulsory military training for American youths as a permanent national policy is proposed in a bill introduced in the Senate today by Senator New, Republican of Indiana. Such a policy he said "provides the only guarantee against any occasion for the maintenance of a large regular army."

Training of not more than one year for all youths between nineteen and twenty-six years—limited to one continuous period and not divided from year to year—is provided by the bill, which was referred to the Senate Military Committee with suggestion by Senator New that it be laid before the army general staff for a report at the next session of Congress. Under the bill all youths upon completion of the training period as fixed by the President would go into a national reserve for call in case of necessity. Priority of service would be placed upon the youngest annual class.

Senator New opposed the War Department's plan for a temporary draft of an army of 600,000 men as "neither necessary nor desirable."

Asserting that misconceptions regarding universal training have arisen, Senator New said:

"Universal training guarantees that the youth who is to be conscripted or who shall volunteer shall go prepared rather than unprepared. It provides the only guarantee against any occasion for maintenance of a regular army of greater proportion than the country needs or is willing to support. Under the operation of this system the soldier is in reality a citizen, free to follow his chosen vocation except for the period required for his proper training."

"Unless occasion comes the citizen army need never be mobilized, but its members will have the benefits that accrue from judiciously applied physical training, of discipline and the improved conceptions of citizenship that military training brings with it."

War Department plans to extend the President's authority to hold men now in service, Senator New predicted, will prove unpopular with the American public.

Under the New bill youths who are sole supports of parents, wives or children would be excused unless the government should contribute to their dependents during the training period. Men in training would receive only nominal pay. The bill provides for commissions for twenty per cent of the youths trained up to the rank of major or lieutenant commander in the national reserve.

An automobile containing a German lieutenant and four men had proceeded toward the town. They were fired on by Polish hands and disarmed. The Germans succeeded in escaping in disguise. Later, when the main body of troops reached Kulmsce, it, too, was fired on by the Poles. The Germans tried to induce the Poles to surrender the town, but the latter refused, and the city, the advices declare, had to be bombarded by artillery and stormed. The Poles are said to have suffered considerable losses in killed and wounded while the Germans had no casualties.

SPEAKS AT ANNAPOLIS

Gives Commissions to Last Class of Reserve Officers at Academy

By the Associated Press
Annapolis, Jan. 31.—In presenting commissions today to the last class of reserve officers trained in the United States Naval Academy during the year, Secretary Daniels predicted that there will be no time of recession of interest in the navy.

"Not in your day," the Naval Secretary told the young officers, "will there be any reduction of naval power. We are now on the last stretch of building the three-year program of naval construction that was authorized three years ago."

Secretary Daniels said he had no doubt that Congress would authorize the recommendation of President Wilson for another three-year program of construction. In building ships under that program, he said, types of vessels would be constructed that would "keep our navy abreast of any navy in the world."

"We shall not build against any nation," the Secretary continued, "because we have faith that the league of peace will bring about such friendships and understanding among all nations as will ultimately cause a reduction in armaments and a consequent decrease of expenditures for naval strength. We shall not build against any nation, but so long as this republic needs a navy, we must have one—for our own protection and to preserve the peace of the world—that will be powerful, strong and modern."

"It would be a sin for America, rich and powerful, to be belittled by any other country for naval protection. Whatever sort of police shall be needed in the new order, we must contribute to it in our own protection and to preserve the peace of the world—that will be powerful, strong and modern."
