JULES MASTBAUM DENIES RUMORS

States Position of Stanley and Mastbaum Interests Toward Movie Merger

recent dispatch from Los Angeles stated that a merger of motion viz., Mary Pickford, Charile n, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. rt and D. W. Griffith as managing or, had been arranged and that Stanley Company and Mastbaum inests were part of the proposed reer. Stanley and Mastbaum particion was denied today most emphatily by Jules E. Mastbaum, president the Stanley Company. Mr. Mastbaum d that he and his interests were heart-in favor of this or any combination it would furnish to the exhibitors and ir patrons pictures of unquestioned rift; that their firms were interested that nurpose only and would support nat purpose only and would support that purpose only and would support y movement for the betterment of the biton-picture industry. Mr. Massbaum rither said that the Stanley Company d its affiliations had never intended to ter the producing field.

"The Stanley Company was formed," id Mr. Mastbaum, "to stabilize the expition of motion pictures throughout a territory in which it operates, and is the desire and purpose of this ornization to encourage the making of best possible motion pictures, to obtat them at a fair price for the owners such theatres and to see that the ch theatres and to see that the cer of the pictures obtains a proper

. Shrewd Observations

"As all actors should be, I am always interested in studying character," says Rowland Buckstone, who portrays Pomeroy, the valet in "A Tailor-Made Man," now at the Garrick.

Here are a few of Mr. Buckstone's and considered very low.

Here are a few of Mr. Buckstone's observations:

"The man who has never known anything better than a wooden-hottomed chair is the one who makes the loudest squawk' over an uncomfortable seat in the day coach.

"The woman who finds the most fault when she is compelled to share a seat is the one who spreads her hand baggage and wraps over two or three seats when she has the opportunity.

"The man who kicks most if the train is late on its schedule is the man who loafs leisurely through a four-hour working day.

"Trainmen will tell you that the hardest passengers to please are those who travel infrequently."

he will be in accord with the policy emphasized by Mr. Masthaum that the Stanley Company will not enter the field of producing. He will represent the Stanley Company will not enter the field of producing. He will represent the Stanley Company in all matters per taining to the affairs of the First National Exhibitors and will oppose any methods of business that are not fair and of benefit to the industry. Mr. Beggs feels that exhibiting and distributing are one part of the business and producing is an entirely separate function, not to be confused.

Mr. Buckstone is an actor who has played many parts, not only in this country, but in England, his birthplace. He has traveled all over America and Europe in his forty years as a player, and therefore should be in a position to know whereof he speaks, for in traveling we all, sooner or later, bare our true dispositions.
