BLIND HERO IN SERIOUS STATE
Meningitis Attacks Irving Clair and Condition Is Critical
According to information that reached this city today, Irving Clair, 3230 Berks street, member of the Iron Division, who was blinded at Chateau Thierry, is in a serious condition at the Fort McHenry Army Hospital, Baltimore, Md.
The soldier, while a patient in the Hospital for the Blind, at Roland Park, Md., suffered an attack of meningitis and today his condition is critical.
Irving Clair was a member of Company A, 10th Infantry, and on July 13 advanced against the Germans on the Chateau Thierry front. As he was advancing with his company, he was blinded by the explosion of a German shell. After a few weeks in French hospitals he was sent home and assigned to the Roland Park institution. Clair won a sergeant's rank for his work in France.

MEDALS FOR FAITHFUL
Major Waller to Reward Red Cross Workers Today
Major General L. W. T. Waller will award medals to members of the Independence Square Auxiliary of the Red Cross at exercises this afternoon in the workroom, 508 Chestnut street. The medals, open to the people will be delivered by Major Robert Denig, also of the Independence Square Auxiliary. Major Denig was wounded three times in engagements at Chateau-Thierry, Champagne and St. Mihiel.
Medals will be awarded to the fifteen members of the auxiliary who have devoted more than 800 hours of service to Red Cross duty. General Waller also will award a chevron to each member who has served an additional 800 hours. Mrs. George H. Lorimer, chairman of the auxiliary, will preside.

U. S. Agents Called to Washington
Four agents of the Department of Justice here, under Chief Todd Daniel, have been transferred to active duty in Washington, as vice squad men, upon orders from Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The transferred agents are P. E. Kendrick, J. J. O'Shea, G. G. Streets and A. J. Lampheimer, who have been on the "clean-up" division of the vice squad for over a year.

CYCLOPS REPORTED AS "LOST IN GALE"

Navy Collier, Missing Since January 4, Had Six Philadelphia Men on Board

The navy collier Cyclops, missing since January 4, 1918, and which had on board thirteen Pennsylvanians, including six men from Philadelphia, is now officially reported by the government as having been "lost in a gale."
Prior to the signing of the armistice, navy officials entertained various opinions of what might have happened to the vessel. It was believed to have been sunk by a U-boat raider operating in West Indian waters, or captured and taken to a German port. Since then, inquiries have been made in Germany, but no record of the Cyclops has been obtained.
The collier was a craft of 15,000 tons, and carried a crew of 211 men. She also had fifty-seven passengers including two naval officers and one civilian, Alfred L. Moreau Gottschalk, United States Consul at Rio de Janeiro. The Cyclops was launched May 7, 1910, at Cramp's shipyard.

The Philadelphia men on board the Cyclops were:
John Herbert Bieme, machinist's mate, 3517 Comly street; Percy Leon Carpenter, chief water tender, 2128 Newkirk street; Anthony Glowka, fireman, 2219 Belgrade street; Samuel Goldstein, seaman, 641 Jackson street; Louis Minch, fireman, 1935 East Oakdale street; James Arthur shooter, seaman, 439 East Auburn street.
At the time of the vessel's disappearance the Navy Department confessed its inability to explain the mystery. The Cyclops was last reported from one of the West Indian islands on March 4, 1918.

MAJ. A. M. COLLINS RETURNS FROM WAR; WILL HUNT APES

Bryn Mawr Sportsman, Explorer and Philanthropist, Just Back From France, Will Seek Adventure and Rare Gorillas in Darkest Africa

Major A. M. Collins, of Bryn Mawr, has returned to this country after serving more than a year in the ordnance department with the Thirtieth Division in France.

Unharned by the strenuous work in the war zone, Major Collins, known throughout the country as an explorer, philanthropist and sportsman, now plans a trip through Darkest Africa in search of rare specimens of apes and gorillas for the Smithsonian Institution.
Major Collins is vice president of the A. M. Collins Manufacturing Company and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Collins, "Arzelle," Morris avenue, Bryn Mawr.

Major Collins is well known as a big-game hunter, as well as a naturalist of note and a lover of outdoor sports. For five years he played polo on the winning team of the Philadelphia Country Club and later with the Bryn Mawr Polo Club. Alexander Brown, who was killed in a fall from an airplane, also played on the latter team.

Mr. Collins, a graduate of Haverford College, is an honorary life member of the American Museum of Natural History, New York; the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia; patron of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago; vice president of the Geographic Society, Philadelphia; was president of the Main Line Citizens' Association, a member of the African Big Game Club, Bryn Mawr; Club, Merion Cricket Club, First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, and of the University, Raquet, Rittenhouse and numerous other clubs.
In 1916 he organized and directed the Collins-Gardner Congo Expedition in the interest of the Smithsonian Institution.

MAJOR A. M. COLLINS

Major Collins first went to British East Africa in 1911-12, having previously successfully hunted every kind of big game in the United States. That expedition was made in company with E. Marshall Scull, of Philadelphia, and resulted in the collection of forty-eight different varieties of big game animals. The return was made through various parts of the Malay peninsula, India,

China and Japan, to Europe across Siberia.
Again, in 1913, Major Collins and three companions chartered the schooner "J. Abler," which they boarded at Nome after traveling 25,000 miles through Alaska and down the Yukon River. Behring Sea was crossed in this schooner and the coast of Siberia followed as far north as Herald and Wrangell Islands, of the northernmost land known. Later the Aloutian Island were reached, and an account of this expedition later appearing from the pen of Mr. Scull under the title, "Hunting in Alaska, Siberia and the Arctic."
Major Collins and Lee Garnett Day, of New York, in 1916, crossed South America from Mollendo to Para, a journey of 4000 miles by way of La Paz and the Chapare, Mamore, Madeira and Amazon Rivers.

PHILADELPHIANS RETURN

Local Soldiers Tell of Heroism of City Unit at Argonne

Several Philadelphians returned to this country on board the troopship Agamemnon, which docked at New York yesterday.
Corporal Thomas A. Kelly, 1817 Daly street, Company F, 31st Infantry, tells a graphic story of the work of that Philadelphia unit at the Argonne forest. He was wounded by a fragment of a high explosive shell on September 29. All that day the shells fell around the hole in which he took refuge. The Philadelphia draftees fought their way through the inferno of German explosives, he said, and took their objective.

Private Paul Johnson, 2000 Oxford street, Fifty-first Coast Artillery Regiment, arrived on the same boat. He said his unit, a regular army detachment, had been at the front for several months working in co-operation with armistice negotiators of various divisions.

Other Philadelphians arriving on the Agamemnon included Corporal Matthew C. McCouch, 4540 Silverwood street, Company F, Fifty-first Engineers, and Private Anthony Reches, 938 North Franklin street, Company G, Sixtieth Infantry.

FINLEY TRIAL NEXT IN FIFTH WARD CASES

Republican City Director Accused of Aiding Gunmen Escape

The next trial resulting from the Fifth Ward election disorders of 1917 will be that of William E. Finley, executive director of the Republican City Committee.

Finley is accused of aiding the New York gunmen to escape after the murder of Patrolman George A. Eppley. The Commonwealth charges that a $1000 bill figured in the escape.

A "man in a gray suit" is said to have secured the big bill from a bank. The District Attorney's office claims Finley was the "man in the gray suit." But a weak spot in the Commonwealth's case is the failure of a bank clerk to identify Finley as the man who secured the bill, which is now in the District Attorney's safe.

In a statement issued several days ago Senator Vane said Finley was eager for trial. In reply Mr. Roan declared: "Mr. Finley will be tried in due time. I have no wish to talk about Fifth Ward cases, but the District Attorney's office has no apology to make for not having put Finley on trial before now. Finley is regarded as an accessory after the murder of Policeman Eppley and it would have been putting the cart before the horse to have tried him before Deutsch and his codefendants and the Mayor."

Mr. Finley plans to start Friday for St. Louis, Mo., with Senator Vane, Congressman Vane, Receiver of Taxes W. Freeland Kendrick and others for a two weeks' fishing trip.

Is your business ready?

These are busy days. Business is in a state of flux. Conditions are changing. America is reconstructing her industrial fabric.

One thing is certain. The greatest era of prosperity the country has ever known is in the making. The greatest rewards will come to men who put their business house in order—now. An important part of any business is its filing system.

You know whether or not yours is adequate. You know, perhaps from experience, whether it fails to deliver in emergencies.

There is no truth in the old thought that a filing system must slip up occasionally. Filing can be made an exact science. Mistakes can be eliminated. 100% accuracy is possible.

Forty-three years experience means something. It means the difference between knowing-how and guessing. It means—efficiency!

All that the past has taught is at your service in the present period of reconstruction. Your telephone will put you in touch with the world's largest manufacturer of card record and filing systems—the originator of the card index and vertical filing.
