Soon after quitting jail he was nominated by the Indepen-dent Socialists of Munich for the Reichs-tag in a special election to fill a va-cancy. Against him the regular Socialist organization put up Eberhard Auer, and the two candidates ware engaged in a contest of some bitterness when the po-litical wind suddenly veered and revolu-tionary clouds filed the air. On Monday, November 4, the So-cialists of Munich held two great meet-ings. They adopted resolutions calling for the abdication of the Kaiser? Thurs-day had waned, however, Elsner gave out the slogan. It was "Revolution; depose the King and establish a re-public!"

depose the King and establish a re-public!"
Then in a few hours the plan was carried out and Elener became the head of the new Socialist republic. He had always been opposed to the German Majority Socialists, and following his schational rise to power in Bavaria had repeatedly attacked President Eberti this colleagues. He even went so far late in November as to sever rela-tions with the Berlin Government, and there always has been some question whether Bavaria, if Elsner could keep control, would Join the German repub-lic. Elsner was not a delegate to the German National Assembly, having been defeated by an overwheiming vote fn the elections. Accompanied by guards in forgeous uniforms and on a special train, Elsner went to Berne to attend the interma-tional labor conference there sarly this month. At the Berne conference he attend. It is what Swift & Company earned in 1918.

2 cents on each dollar of sales-only a fraction of a cent per pound-was too small to have any noticeable effect on prices.

11% on investment (capital and surplus) means only fair returns to the 25,000 shareholders; they received 8% dividends in 1918.
