Mystery shrouds the fate of Private Frank F. Merriam, son of Chester S. Merriam, 2752 East Venango street, a Civil War veteran.

Private Merriam, who was attached to Company I, 315th Infantry, was reported several months ago by a comrade to have been killed in action. But no message came from the War Department until a few days ago when a telegram to Merriam's father said his son had died in battle.

Since receiving the government notice, a returned hero of the 315th Infantry. Corporal John Ulrich, Kensington avenue and Nicetown lane, a former chum of Merriam's, told the boy's father that he saw his son and talked with him November 8, two days after he was reported killed.

Although the soldier has written no letters home in several months, relatives hold out hope that he may be alive. Merriam comes of a fighting family. A reat-grandfather was an artillery e tain in the War of 1812, and later fought in the Seminole War.

One uncle, who had fought in the Mexican War, was killed at the Battle of Gettysburg, and another uncle also died in action during the Civil War. Merriam's grand-father was killed and his father was severely wounded in the last battle of the same struggle.

Included in a list of 1036 names for the nation today, ninety-one are of men from Pennsylvania, and twenty-eight from this city. Two men from here are listed as killed in action, and two others are declared to have died of disease. This brings the city's army death list up to four for the day.

Sergeant William Sibel, on today's list, is declared by the War Department to have died of pneumonia October 11, on his way overseas. He was buried at sea with full military honors, said the message to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Sibel, 635 Carpenters lane, Sibel was twenty-four years old and had been in the service since last June. He took a course at Carnegle Institute, Pittsburgh, and was for a while stationed in Florida and later at Camp Merrit. He was a member of Motor Supply Train 425.

The remainder of the soldlers from this section in the report today are classified as follows: Wounded severely, one: wounded with degree undetermined, fourteen, and wounded slightly, nine.

SKETCHES OF THE HEROES Private Orlando Difable, Company L.

111th Infantry, is reported gassed in action September 29. He was missing from his unit four days in August, but returned unhurt. He enlisted in April.

1918, trained at Camp Hancock and embarked for France last May. Before the war he was in the gueery business with his father, Nocola Difable, at 432 North Sixty-fourth street. He is twenty-two years old.

Sixty-fourth street. He is twenty-two years old.

Private Harold J. Carneff, 126 Race street, was wounded in the arm and face. He has lost his hearing, according to a brother. Raymond Carneff, who has returned from overseas. Harold Carneff is twenty-four years old, and has heen in the army since last Pebruary. Previous to joining the colors he was a fireman. In a recent letter home he expected to sail in a few days.

Private Robert J. Murphey, 5215 fenway avenue, was gassed twice, recovered and was later wounded in the arm. Murphey wrote home that after being wounded he had to ride several miles in a cattle car before he reached a hospital. He enlisted in July, trained at Camp Hancock and sailed in May. Before entering the service he was employed at the Baidwin Locomotive Works.

Works.

Corporal Harry V. Haley, chell shocked and wounded by shrapnel, recovered. According to letters to his mother, who lives at 5505 Girard avenue, he returned to duty and was again wounded in the hand. He is twenty years old. He enlisted in May, 1917, in the N. G. P., and later training at Camp Hancock, sailed for overseas in May of the following year as a member of Company C, 109th Infantry. A brother, Aloysius Haley, served overseas, with Company D, 165d Infantry. He is uninjured.

Edward Liekfield, Collingswood, was injured.

Edward Liekfield, Collingswood, was wounded in the head a few days before the armistice by shrapnel. In a recent letter to his wife, Mrs. Edwim Liekfield, 31 East Collings avenue, Collingswood, the soldie, said that he had recovered. Liekfield is a member of Company 1, 214th Infantry, and has been in the sarvice since he was drafted in October, 1317. Liekfield is twenty-seven years old and formerly lived in Philadelphia.
