GOSSIP OF THE STREET LOCAL FINANCIERS INTERESTED IN MEETING OF STEELMAKERS

Railroad Problem Continues to Be Leading Topic Here. Banker Believes War Finance Corporation Its Salvation—Gossip of the Street

NEXT to the railroad situation, which continues to be the ruling topic in financial circles in this city, is the meeting of the steel men from all over the country which began at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York yesterday. This meeting, it is said, is a continuation of the meeting which they held last week to consider the plan for stabilization of prices advocated by Secretary Redfield.

When speaking on the matter yesterday a well-known banker said he considered the meeting a most important one, as, if the desired results are accomplished in connection with the steel trade, the same principles may be extended to other leading lines of business. For that reason, he said, he considered the meeting one in which the outcome will be a matter of importance to all manufacturers and bankers as well as workers all over the country.

There are many financiers who are not particularly optimistic over this meeting, and their sentiments are best expressed in the following from the Iron Trade Review: "Small belief is entertained that any movement toward a lower price plan will be brought about through acceptance of the Redfield stabilizing plan, which will be considered. If, in reality, one of the chief aims of the Redfield proposal is the development of lower prices for the railroad administration and other government departments, the failure of Congress to authorize appropriations greatly weakens the effective possibilities of this plan as a trade stimulant. On the other hand, if this lack of funds results in an early restoration to private ownership of railroads, the outcome actually may be beneficial from the standpoint of steel buying."

The curtailment of pig iron operations clearly is shown by the February production figures. With the exception of February, 1917, and January and February, 1918, when furnace operations were hopelessly upset by traffic and weather conditions, and also of February, 1917, last month was the first to show an output below 3,000,000 tons since September, 1915. The February total was 2,847,583 tons, as against 3,308,278 tons in January, a loss of 460,695 tons. The number of active stacks at the end of the month was 380, a loss of eighteen for January.

When discussing the railroad situation, a banker said that as far as he could see the only salvation for the roads in the present situation lies with the War Finance Corporation. This corporation, he said, has approximately $400,000,000 of the original $500,000,000 fund with which it was created. Besides this, it has on hand the collateral which has been put up for loans advanced by the corporation to such companies as the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, on which it can borrow.

Germany's Ability to Pay Indemnity Speaking of the reported conditions in Germany today, a well-known banker remarked that, while the popular impression exists that a good deal of the news is propaganda, intended to influence the amount of indemnity which will be imposed on that country—in other words, that Germany is "squawking before she is struck," as usual—he contends it is a mistake to believe that the fact that German territory is in as good condition as before the war means that Germany can count on the resources which supported her army and navy in the years before the war. That support, he said, came from the results of her foreign trade, which has been almost destroyed. Even her trade with Turkey, which was a very large item, he said, is gone forever. And her shipping interests, from which she derived so much profit, are on the point of being taken away from her almost entirely. Not having the natural resources at home to feed her industries, she will be almost totally dependent on outside sources, he said, and on that account the indemnity should be tempered with judgment; but at the same time Germany must know she is being punished.

Information for Liberty Bond Holders The Liberty Loan committee wishes attention called to the following: "Under the provisions of the Victory Loan bill, which has just been enacted, an additional aggregate of $30,000,000 of any of the present outstanding Liberty Loan 4s and 4 1/2s is exempted from all taxation, namely, the normal income tax, surtax, excess profits and war profits taxes from January 1, 1919, for a period of five years after the official termination of the war.

The exemption is in no way contingent upon purchases of the new Victory Loan, but is simply an exemption additional to those now existing with respect to the outstanding 4s and 4 1/2s. In the hands of investors whose purchases secure the benefit of this new exemption of $30,000,000 the issue affords a remarkable yield, and we recommend their purchase."

A well-known banker who had proposed, through an interview in this column recently, a plan for the reduction of the amount to be raised by the coming Victory Loan bond issue by the government offering for sale the obligations of the foreign countries which had been given in exchange for the various loans called attention to the fact that Secretary of the Treasury Glass had abandoned the idea. He said the credits extended to foreign countries up to the beginning of the present month aggregated nearly $9,000,000,000, and he understood the drafts against these credits amounted to about $8,000,000,000 in the same time. He said he was informed that at first Secretary Glass looked with favor on the idea, which included the stamping of a government guarantee on such securities, and he believed the plan was only abandoned when Congress failed to act on the general deficiency bill, thereby throwing new demands on domestic credit.

It was discovered, however, that although the idea met with favorable comment from many well-known financiers in this city, approval of it was by no means universal. The principal argument advanced against the plan lay in the fact that the Allies have been paying 5 per cent on credits, and that a plan providing for the refunding of these loans through the issue of negotiable bonds to be sold to the people of the United States could not be carried out successfully at a rate lower than 5 1/2 per cent. It was claimed therefore that an issue of such proportions at that rate would have a bad effect on the investment market generally, especially on savings banks investments. The abandonment of the plan, it is believed, will have a favorable effect on foreign securities in the United States.

Railroad Bonds Are Quiet Railroad and industrial bonds were quiet yesterday, with moderate transactions recorded in both departments. New York Interborough Metropolitan 4 1/2s were quoted at around 35, which is the lowest point at which they have changed hands on the present downward movement. Interborough Rapid Transit first and refunding 5s were 70@71 1/2.

The New York transit situation presents many perplexing elements, and there seems to be a well-founded opinion that there will be a receiver for the Interborough Consolidated Corporation between now and April 1. Bankers supposed to be interested stated that they have received no intimations from Washington as to the manner in which the $15,000,000 of notes of the Erie Railroad Company, which mature on April 1, are to be cared for, although it is expected they will be awarded to the highest bidder, as has been the case with recent offerings which have been made by railroad companies. The past relations of bankers with various properties has no influence in connection with the award of bonds now being made by the Washington authorities.

Short-term notes were quiet but firm yesterday, with a small volume of business being recorded. There was, however, a slightly better demand, which is thought to have been due very largely to the lower interest rates obtaining, rendering it more advantageous to purchase short-term paper than to employ funds on direct loan to brokerage concerns and others. Railroad short-term notes were firm, with a good inquiry being in evidence, with a tendency to a higher level of quotations. Industrial short-term notes were extremely quiet, with only a small inquiry for most of the issues which under ordinary circumstances are active. There was no pressure in the market to sell securities of this character, but with buying power restricted the market assumed a decidedly dull tone.

BETTER TONE IN YARN TRADE Prices Believed to Have Reached Minimum—Tendency Upward A better feeling prevails among local yarn dealers, according to the weekly review of trade for the Philadelphia district by R. C. Funn, with the impression that prices have reached a minimum and that the tendency will now be upward.

Continuing the review goes on to say: "Manufacturers of ladies' cloaks and suits have been more active in business during the past couple of weeks and they are fairly busy at present. The season, however, is still quiet and the trade continues to be slow. Manufacturers of ladies' waists and dresses, especially in the better grade of goods, say there is quite a fair demand at present, and a number of plants are running to their capacity. The trade in men's clothing is also active, with the exception of those manufacturing overcoats and suits for the eastern trade. Their cloth is also fairly busy and report orders on hand. Towels are quiet.
