EDDIE BURNS FAILS TO SIGN AND DRAWS RELEASE FROM PHILS

Veteran Catcher Now at Liberty to Select Own Ball Park This Season—Meusel, Bancroft and Fitzgerald Still Among Missing

> By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

THE official tinware has been attached to Eddie Burns, once upon a time star catcher for the Phils. From now on he will be allowed to play ball on his own hook and even go so far as to sell himself to some club out on the coast. He has been cast adrift by the home folks.

President Baker decided on this course of procedure Saturday when Edward's contract could not be found in the office. The contract had been sent to his home in Monterey, Calif., and evidently still is out there, framed, 'in Eddle's new haberdashery store. At any rate, Baker was very much peeved and dictated a polite note teiling Mr. Burns to remain in the old Funny thing about Burns. He did some good catching for the Phils, was considered a brainy man behind the plate, but not one big club claimed him when waivers were asked a couple of weeks ago. Eddie, however, announced his retirement last month, but was not taken seriously. Ball players usually announce their retirement when the figures on the contract are not satisfactory.

Now Burns must go to the minors or quit playing baseball. That is the edict sent across the continent by the big boss of the Phils, and Eddie

There is another holdout according to the list of players announced by Baker yesterday. It is none other than Emil "Irish" Meusel, the kid outfielder, who played a fair game last year. Irish is a real holdout, but not over the salary question. He is said to have agreed on the figures, but insisted that transportation for his wife be paid by the club. This is unusual and the president called a hait. There will be no more letters exchanged and Meusel either must come to terms or stay out on the coast and out of baseball.

DAVY BANCROFT has not yet signed the papers, but is expected to come through this week. The difference between himself. and the club has been settled amicably and the little shortstop will be among those present when the club leaves for Charlotte one

Shortstops Leaders in Holdout League

SHORTSTOPS have been the star holdouts this year. They have been last to fall in line and a few still are on the outside looking in. Both Chicago clubs are up against it, with Charley Hollocher howling for more pay out on the North Side and Buck Weaver defying Charley Comiskey on the South Side. In addition, Donnie Bush, of Detroit, has taken the bit between his teeth and is fighting it out with Hughey Jennings for an increased stipend. Billy Kopf, traded to Brooklyn by Cincinnati, announced his retirement after looking at the contract sent by Ebbets.

Chicago is all het up over the holding out of its two star shortstops and now the fans are getting anxious. Buck Weaver, of the White Sox has many friends, but it will take more than that to move Comiskey. The Old Roman says he will not offer one red cent more to Weaver, and if he pesn't sign in a short time he can go to work in some factory.

Buck says he did Comiskey a favor last year when he did not ask for an increase in salary. Now he believes he is entitled to it, for he admits last year was the best he ever had, as he outbatted and outplayed Eddie

President Fred Mitcheil, of the Cubs, is not handing out any news hese days, so the official standing of Hollocher cannot be determined However, he has asked for more money and asserts he will hold out until

Signing a contract is not such a difficult task if you go about it in the proper manner. It is much easier than filling out an income-tax report,

Mike is the trainer of the Phils. He has an important job and is der contract. On Saturday he made his way through the blizzard to the Phils' office. Then he demanded his contract from Miss Mallen, President Baker's secretary.

WHERE do I signt" he asked, after looking at nothing but the salary figures.

"On the dotted line," was the reply, and Mike signed.

Johnson and Fulton Star Squealers

the squealers' championship of the universe. After his alleged confession in Havana, he is now a member of the foozlers' union and can take his seat beside Fulton. Johnson made a strong bid for publicity, got it, but lost the last shred of his reputation. From now on he's a dead one and can stay away as long as he pleases.

Johnson thought he was pulling something big when the "confession" was sprung last week. He had told the story many times before, always got away with it and imagined it would be the same in Cuba and the United States. As was said before, it is old stuff and I heard about his wall more than two years ago from Barney Malone, who had been touring in Scotland as Johnson's sparring partner. Barney showed me the Peo ple's Journal, published in Aberdeen, Scotland, and on February 3, 1916, an interview with Jack was printed.

After stating he had been double-crossed by those who promised to square things with the American authorities so he could go home and see mother, Johnson said he lay down to Willard in the Havana battle. He also is quoted at length. Compare this with his late statement. "I don't want to be champion of the world," said Johnson. "If I won the title again tomorrow I would willingly hand it to the first man I met on the street. I am not speaking disrespectfully about Willard, because I think he is a great fellow-as far as being a man is concerned-but if he were as good a boxer as he is a man-well, he would be a great fighter. "My fight with Willard in Havana was a financial proposition. No one

WELL, they promised me that if I would consent to be defeated by Willard I no longer would be molested and would enjoy the freedom any man would. I would be allowed to return to America to see my dear old mother; I would have my motorcars and other property restored to me and everything would be made

Picked Moran for Next Champion

But they double-crossed me. I boxed twenty-six rounds, and those who saw it could read between the lines. It was up to me to do ething, and I did that very thing. As I said before, the Willard fight was a financial proposition—it could be nothing else. "I have been asked if I would be given a chance against the cham-

"A cold feeling ran down my back," he said, "at the mention of that stry. A team of horses could not drag me to America and all of the ney in the United States could not tempt me. I was born in America, but cannot get fair play in my native land. Give me a fight in England ind I will meet any man in the world for as much money as can be found and for as many rounds as desired."

JOHNSON was successful with that story in Scotland. No one took the trouble to prove it, so they let it go at that. Perhaps that is the reason Jack tried it again in Havana. You can't blame

New Jersey Should Pay Boxing Commissioners

MORROW the New Jersey Legislature will vote on a bill to pay salaries to the boxing commissioners. From what we have seen of the oners and the work they have done in the last year, they deserve e reward for their services. Last May they volunteered to put boxing a cound basis after the bill was passed.

The balance of the different teams also is a source of much satisfaction.

While some teams are particularly strong in some departments—Chicago at the Oakmont Country Club, the best and Brooklyn in pitchers and New York in the outfield—I do not think any team or group of teams stand out by them-selves. Indications are good for a close, tight race.

We still have some unsigned players but I will confess this situation is much more satisfactory than we expected. Most people understand what we have up against, and the manner in we succeeded in rounding up the great percentage of our players proved highly gratifying in view of present con-

Harry Vardon Writes That English Teams Now Plan On Tour in 1920

James Braid handed me your letter and I was indeed glad to hear from you. We British golfers shall not be coming over this year at all. Conditions are not normal anywhere in the world, but it is almost sure we will make the trip in 1920. In fact, I have no doubt of it.

Glad to hear that my old friend Harry Lauder is electrifying his audiences out there. He can do that better than he can play golf. Did he ever tell you about the best golfer he ever heard? Have him tell you when you see him.

Providing the weatherman doesn't put a clamp on the plans, the annual track and field championships of the local public high schools will be held this afternoon on the roof of the Wana-maker store. The event originally was scheduled for last Friday, but a sudden snowstorm forced the officials to call off everything.

One and possibly two records may be One and possibly two records may be shattered this afternoon. Joe Rainey, the speed king representing Central High School, is on a record-breaking rampage with the mark for the fifty-yard dash his main object. Rainey has been running in great shape all winter for the Meadowbrook Club, and Lew Spielman, the store club trainer, has him in the

Record is 5 4-5 Seconds

The record for the fifty-yard dash on a wooden track is 5 4-5 seconds, made seven or eight years ago. If Rainey runs in the same form which has characterized his work this season he should set a new mark. On several occasions he has traveled fifty yards on the Meadowbrook track in 5 2-5 seconds. Of course, the weather conditions will have a great deal to do with his running to-day. A stiff wind against the runners will make a new record impossible.

Doctor O'Brien's team appears to have the title clinched. They have out-classed all the other schools in dual neets and should win, with some points to spare. In Jimmy Russell the Mir-rors have a great all-around athlete canable of scoring more than ten points. West Philadelphia is favorite for sec-ond place, with Northeast, Germantown and Southern fighting it out for third

Due to the lack of space on the Wanamaker roof, tickets are at a pre-mium. Each school was allotted 100 tickets. This number was entirely too small for the demand. There were at least three applicants for each ticket. At one school one of the unlucky students offered to pay several dollars for a ticket. Even this failed to get him an admittance card.

Cage Final Tomorrow Tomorrow afternoon at the German-town High School the basketball championship will be decided. The game will be between Central High and West Philadelphia. The two squads prac-ticed several times last week and the game should be fast all the way. Both teams will have their regular line-up to start the game.

Physical Director Phil Lewis, of the Germantown High School, has arranged a good preliminary game. It will bring together the Germantown quintet and an all-star quintet.

THE question as to whether indoor I track athletics would take its old position in the eyes of the fans has been Indoor track has returned Never were the officials of the A. A. U. so agreeably surprised as they were this year when they had to turn hundreds away from their games held in Brooklyn

Brooklyn,
The championships have drawn large crowds before, but they always were able to take care of them until this year. What is the answer? Are the games better, is the competition keener, or are the individual runners better?

The answer to all these questions is

The people did not see such men as

Jo Loomis, Ray Morse and Howard Drew go to the mark in the sprint, nor Johnny Overton and Joie Ray meet in the 1000 yards. Easy for Ray SLYCK SECOND

Jole Ray was there and just as good as ever, but he did not have any one to bother him any part of the race, nor did the spectators who know him expect to see him put to any trouble by the men who were against the Chicago champion.

men who were against the Chicago champion.

The people are ready for sport again after the long stretch, when they had to give them up. Boston turned out in the same fashion at their annual big meet held by the Boston A. A. Philadelphia will not be able to stage the Meadowbrook games this year, and it is a great loss to the treat them. a great loss to the track that there is not the suitable place available. This meet has been one of great interest to the clubs and colleges in the East.

Shea Outdoor Runner

With all the encouraging features of the season, there were also a few dis-appointments. One of the things that has been asked many times is, Why did Shea, of Pittsburgh, who ran a 473-5-second quarter mile in the intercollegiate meet last year, do so poorly at the cham plonships in the 600 yards? This can be only explained by the fact that Shea is not an experienced indoor runner, nor is his sayle of running suited for indoor tracks. Another thing to be figured is the size of the field that started in the race and the fact that Shea drew the outside position with all men of indoor training on the pole. Position Counts

Shea is a fast runner, but when a race such as the 600 was comes along it is not time that counts as much as it is the position a man gets in the fire part of the race and his ability to keep it by change of speed.

This same change of speed cannot be adopted at will by runners, but they must get it through racing. Shea could give those same men yards on the outdoor track with ease, but he is not at home on an indoor track and will only be when he has run several races in good
