Jupiter's Moons

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—Will you kindly publish in your valuable exchange how many moon's there are in the planet Jupiter, and whether Mars is inhabited? Jupiter, and whether many Jupiter, and whether Thanking you in advance.

DAILY READER.

Jupiter is surrounded by eight known satellites, or moons. Four were discovered by Galilee, and were the only ones known in 1892. In September of that year E. E. Barnard, at the Lick Observatory, discovered a fifth extremely satellite. In 1904 two yet fainter matellites, far outside the other five, were photographically discovered by C. D. Perrine at the Lick Observatory. The eighth satellite was discovered by P. J. Melotte, of Greenwich on February 28, 1908. It appears to be very distant from Jupiter.

Whether Mars is inhabited or not is purely a matter of conjecture.

"When You Come Back"

To the Editor of Woman's Page:
Dear Madam—I am a daily reader of the EVENING PUBLIC LEGGER, and your column especially, and wish to ask you a few questions.

you a few questions.

I have been invited to a soldiers' welcome-home party, which I expect to attend. I know the young man, but have not yet seen him since his return. Would it be proper to congratulate him when I see him, or what would be nice to say to him when at his party?

Also, will you please print in your column a few toasts suitable for an affair of this kind, and if possible something nice to recite?

I would most surely tell the young straps and the draw-string at the walst are of pink satin ribbon.

At the lower left is a pair of pink

I would most surely tell the young man how glad you are to see him home, and how fine you think it is that he came through safely. Don't say anything stiff or you will embarrass him.

You can find toasts and recitations in the reference room of the public li-brary at Thirteenth and Locust streets. Or you can buy very clever little toast books in the stores. with embroidery and lace.

To Steam Velvet

Never iron velvet. The pressure of the iron wrinkles the soft pile of the velvet and sometimes damages it irreparably.

Use a few drops of cliva oil rubbed by means of a piece of soft flannel over the surface of the steaming cloth. Continue this movement until the cloth is, quite dry and the velvet, too, is dry. The wrinkles will by this time have disappeared and the velvet will be smooth and fresh.

Adventures With a Purse

T WAS going to start out by saying that now is a good time to buy table linens, but instead I am going to say that the time to buy 'em is when you can get 'em cheap. And certainly you can never get a snowy white luncheon set of Madeira at a lower price than $5.50. That is a real bargain, isn't it? This set consists of thirteen pieces, including the large centerpiece, and the Madeira design is lovely and you can say what you please, but there is noth-ing prettler in the way of table linen than Madeira work.

DAYS like this sort of make a body want new spring clothes, don't they? And of course the effect of a smart spring suit and trim, neat shoes would be quite lost without a justrous pair of shiny black allk stockings, Like everything else the price of hosiery has soared alarmingly. Which makes the black silk stockings one shop is display-ing a real find. For they are of good, heavy quality, the kind with a yellow silk thread through the heel. And there is something about the presence of that yellow silk thread which carries definite assurance that the quality of the stockings must be good, for they cost but $1,50 a pair, which you will admit is most reasonable these days for good slik stockings.

For the names of shops where ar-ticles mentioned in "Adventures With a Purse" can be purchased, address Editor of Woman's Page, EVENING PUBLIC LEDGMR, or phone the Woman's Department, Walnut
