

Super-Dirigible in Trial Test : Pheasants for Bucks County : Scenes Snapped by Camera

I.F.S. Photo---

HERE IS THE LATEST development in balloons. The giant English dirigible, R-34, in flight. This airship is the largest lighter-than-air craft in existence. On the trial trip the dirigible developed remarkable speed. The great "blimp" may attempt the flight across the Atlantic.

© U. S. O.

QUEEN MARY OF RUMANIA, with her son, Prince Nicholas, and the Princesses Mary and Ilena, at Eton College. Her Majesty recently visited England to see her son, who is a student at Eton.

Keylong, V.C. Photo---

I.F.S. Photo---

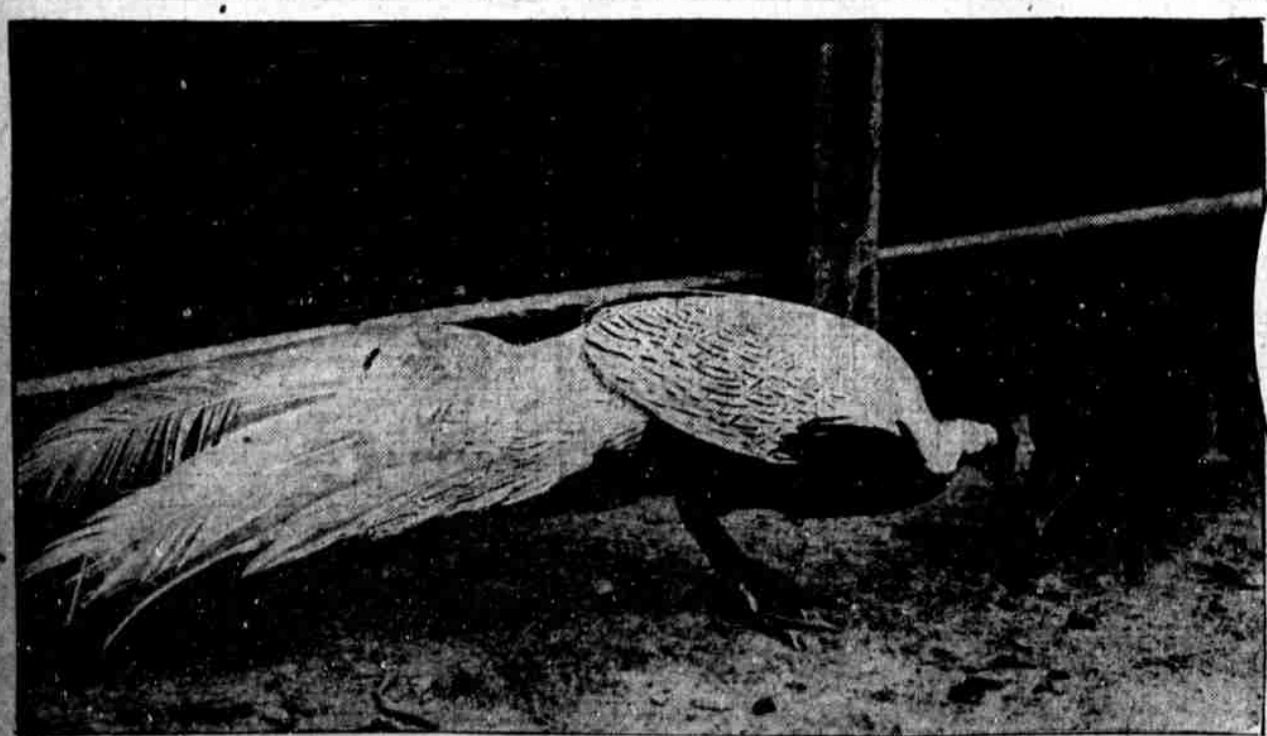

LADY PEEK, wife of Lord Wilfred Peek. She has been decorated for bravery under fire in Mesopotamia. Lady Peek is the daughter of the late W. H. Thornburgh, of St. Louis.

THE ARROW INDICATOR, used successfully by the United States during the conveying of troopships in directing the course of the vessels in the convoy. The leader places the arrow at a certain degree, which signifies to the ships to keep a wider or narrower space between transports.

I.F.S. Photo---

A GERMAN ARMY on the Rhine. A group of German youngsters entertaining American soldiers at Coblenz with military maneuvers. They delight to parade up and down the streets before the Yanks.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY pheasants have been liberated in Bucks County this spring by the game warden. Three birds are set free in each township. Above is a fine specimen of the silver pheasant owned by Joseph Slack, near Doylestown.

WARREN FRETZ, Doylestown, Pa., game protector of Bucks County, with a fine specimen of ringneck pheasant.

LIBERATING A HEN PHEASANT. The 160 birds set free are expected to raise 1000 young ones, if the season is good.