

CELL CONVERSATION MAY COST CONVICTS THEIR $53,000 LOOT

Overheard Talk Leads to Liberty Bonds Still Missing. Implicates Third Man

A conversation overheard between two men convicted of stealing $53,000 in Liberty bonds last May has resulted in evidence that the detectives will enable them to recover the $53,000 in bonds still missing.

The bonds were stolen from the Land Title and Trust Company. About $16,500 worth of the securities were recovered. The two men calmly accepted their sentences of from two years to thirty months in the Eastern Penitentiary rather than gain immunity by revealing the hiding place of the remaining bonds.

Citizenship Schools Urged by Mrs. Catt

Continued from Page One Mrs. Catt said she would never have had a world war. Our greatest guarantee against war is an extension in honestly attained democracy. If we had these the qualifications for voting or democracy would have spread to Europe, and no Kaiser would have dared to dream of ruling the world.

Only One War Preventive "Our suffrage ideas lead us to support such movements as I have suggested, no matter who opposes them. There is just one preventive of war, and that is the voice of the people concerning the questions of common interest."

The League of Women Voters, Mrs. Catt explained, has six general departments: Protection of women in industry, child labor, social hygiene, improvement of election methods, study of the fundamentals of the food question, general improvement in citizenship. Its main object will be to create a great nonpartisan demand for the best in these things.

In speaking of the suffrage question Mrs. Catt said: "The only thing that can keep us from putting the federal amendment through next time is some such demonstration as was put on in Washington by members of the National Woman's party last week."

Opposition to Militants A decisive step against militancy to win suffrage for women was urged today by Mrs. John D. Miller, of Pittsburgh, at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association.

A large number of the members of the suffrage association also are identified with the National Woman's party. This latter organization is militant. It House and other aggressive tactics.

Mrs. Miller suggested that the constitution of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association be amended so that members must choose definitely between militancy and more conservative action.

Urges Four State Organizers Mrs. Miller further suggested that four suffrage organizers be put into the field in this state for "quiet, effective work". Three organizers are needed, she says, outside this city and one for Philadelphia.

Others May Come Here The participation of other units in the welcoming demonstration will be contingent upon the time of their arrival in New York.

STARS-TO-BE AIRING GRACES. DREAM OF $1,000,000 FACES

Husky Herops Longin' for "Wun Chant"—Sweet Maries Ready to Put Pickford in Shade—All Soak Up Screen Art

Mary Pickford was there and Theda Bara and Marie Doro—or at least they all thought they were.

The occasion was a trying out of the abilities of potential movie stars at an office in Walnut street near Tenth. The time set for the tryout was 10 o'clock this morning, but long before that hour the Marys and Thedas and Maries were on the scene with their hair arranged in alluring, simple or vampire design, according to their personal beliefs and fancies, and carrying with them the profound conviction that they were going to give David Gale, who tried out the novices, the surprise of his life.

With them was a sprinkling of young men who had hopes that some day they would make Bill Hart and Francis X. Bushman retire to the fence and unbacked red woods. Most of them could win a good living wrestling with leg iron or driving a not-too-wild team of horses. They were "athletic" young men whose ideals of drama were founded upon the feats of Douglas Fairbanks.

"You will take your places," roared Director Gale. "Like a lion, roaring and vigorous." He is a lion aroused. Standing in the center of the floor, Director Gale outlined the plot of the scenario which the film stars of tomorrow were to play.

And he pleaded with them to be themselves and not to imitate the actors or actresses who had led them to give up the lesser life for art.

The Innards of Art "An imitation is nothing," thundered the director. "You must innovate. You must create. You must be novel, ingenious and unusual."

Whereat the Thedas and the Marys and the Maries patted their hair in a self-satisfied way that told of their sureness of their own methods.

They started off. A young man architecturally designed along the lines of Mr. Arbuckle, and who in lesser life is Private Theodore Nelson of the 111th Regiment, Twenty-eighth Division, who was wounded and gassed in France, draped himself athwart a settee arm and gazed adoringly at Miss Edna M. Casper, who lives at the Walton.

Miss Casper responded by extending her eyes in a 1000 candle power Marie Doro gaze of affection that would have melted a stone sphinx.

Snappout—You! "And into the middle of this lovely little idol—"

"Don't sit astride that settee arm," bellowed Director Gale. "You think you're horseback riding?"

Sheepishly Mr. Nelson arranged his 200 odd pounds more sedately.

Ab—hu, the scene was on! Then Miss Eva St. Clair, of 1023 South Forty-sixth street, who was playing the part of an injured wife, entered the scene with her beautiful Billy Burke hair piled high upon her head and her blue eyes gleaming soulfully.

"Business!" snapped the director. Mr. Nelson, the recalcitrant husband, turned his head toward Miss St. Clair with a suddenness that all but dislocated his neck.

"You are alarmed?" said the director innocently. Mr. Nelson exhibited an alarm that could not have been surpassed if Miss St. Clair had been a tri-horned broncosaurus.

From the assembled ones, each of whom was to have his try-out ere this play was ended, there came a giggle.

Getting Down to Figures "His shape is so funny," snickered a sweet young thing whose hair was designed after the outline of the ace of clubs.

Mr. Nelson's air of alarm quickly

FRANKFORD FUND GROWS Community House for the Returned Service Men Assured

The announcement that a community house for returned soldiers and sailors, to be erected by the people of Frankford, was now an assured fact was greeted with enthusiasm by the more than 1200 members of the Fathers' Association of the Frankford High School at the monthly meeting last night.

It was announced that $7000 had already been collected by the students of the school. The quota was set at $8000, and a number of the alumni are yet to be heard from.

Two of the Frankford High boys paid the support to the fund for their country with their lives on the fields of France. They were Lieutenant William Dammon and Lieutenant Harry Mauer.

The Rev. John G. Wilson, superintendent of the Central District of the Philadelphia Methodist Church, was the deliberative organ of the Peace Conference. How can he carry it out when the conference is not yet ended?

ORIENTAL "CALLS" WILSON

Thinks Summons to George Washington is Just "Hot Air"

Captain Teh-yuen Lu, naval attaché to the Chinese legation in Washington, accompanied by Lieutenant Chu Fong, assistant attaché, is in Philadelphia to look upon this city's industrial establishments and its neighbors.

"China feels more kindly toward America than toward any other country," said Captain Teh-yuen. "This is quite natural, as many of our youths have been and are being educated in America. I think the American people are well-disposed toward us also."

"We are not involved in the struggle of nations in China. If we are admitted to the league it will be a good thing for my country. It will then be impossible for Japan to force upon us such arrangements as virtually take away a part of our sovereignty, as she did in 1915."

"I think President Wilson's sending for the George Washington is 'hot air' and a bluff on his part to hasten the deliberations of the Peace Conference. How can he carry it out when the conference is not yet ended?"

Had Many Suits and $1000 Suspect Taken at Station Also Carried Revolver

Wesley Root, who says his home is in Pittsburgh, was arrested yesterday in Broad Street Station by Detectives Creeden and Malone, charged with carrying concealed deadly weapons. He will be given a hearing today.

The detectives say when they brought him to City Hall they found $1000 in cash, a silver watch, a silver chain, a similar amount in Confederate money and a loaded revolver. The young man wore a badge inside his coat bearing the initials N. A. I., and he told the sleuths that he was an insurance inspector.

Other watches were seized by their suspicious eyes when they saw a depot him loitering around the railroad depot for several days and always with a new outfit on. In the time that they had been watching him, they say, he had appeared in half a dozen suits of clothing.

Nine Caught in Gambling Raid Nine men were arrested last night when a Greek boarding house on Gaslick street, above Third street, was raided by Detectives McGoldrick and Miller, of the Third and De Lancey streets police station. The inmates, who were suspected of gambling, tried to escape through the windows when the police broke into the place through a second-story window. Eight of the men were released by Magistrate Leiby. One of the alleged proprietors, Kyriakos Vostas, was held in $400 bail for a hearing.

"EYE FOR AN EYE" IS PULPIT ADVICE TO MEET INJUSTICE

Dr. W. J. Dawson, Newark, Gives Counsel of Reparation at St. Stephen's Service

"Be just to those who are just to you, but of those who are not just to you demand an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," is the advice given by the Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson, of the First Presbyterian Church, Newark, in his noon talk in St. Stephen's Church on the text, "I shall see light in this light."

"We live in the carefully modulated light of convention. Everything depends on the standard man sets for himself; and it depends on that standard whether we are able to lift ourselves to the great light of Christ."

"We can increase our power of vision by accustoming our eyes to the light, and we decrease our power when we do not use our eyes or take advantage of our opportunity."

Dr. Dawson's last talk in St. Stephen's will be at noon tomorrow, when his text will be "Why Did Jesus Die?"

Magistrate Here Awaits "Bill" Leib

Continued from Page One The state, as his act, in this respect, affects the integrity of official documents of the state, it is one proper for proceedings by a state. So far as any charge against him, which grew out of anything that he may have done respecting individuals, they are for the individuals concerned to proceed with if they so desire."

Magistrate Joseph S. O'Brien refused to divulge the exact nature of the charges, a matter of public record, on the ground that "it would not be fair" to the defendant. Asked if he was aware that the law required that all charges be made available to the public, he declared that he was satisfied that his stand was the proper one, law or no law.

"I'm not offering my protection to Leib in particular," said Magistrate O'Brien. "I offer the same sanctuary to every one, rich or poor, until he is arrested. In this way, nothing can be gained by one man bringing charges against another, and then dropping the case, after the first man is satisfied that he has done the other sufficient harm by having the charges aired in public."

"I may be wrong; I don't know and I don't care," he added. "But I will give out no information about the case until Leib is arrested and given a hearing."

Magistrate O'Brien stated that he understood Mr. Leib was on his way to this city to surrender and face the charges preferred against him.

TRIBUTE TO RED CROSS Unveil Tablet May 4 in Honor of Urquhart Auxiliary

A bronze tablet commemorating the activities of the Urquhart auxiliary of the Red Cross and the use of University Hall in Wanamaker's as "Red Cross Hall," from October 15, 1917, to January 15, 1919, will be unveiled on May 4, at the fourth monthly luncheon at the auxiliary since the closing of its workroom.

The tablet which will be placed in University Hall, records that 500,000 surgical dressings, knitted articles and comforts were made by the workers, a bed endowed in the military hospital at Neuilly, France; and 10,000 members enrolled in the Red Cross. The auxiliary also raised $1,250,000 in Liberty loan campaigns and for national charities.

Many people from all over the state and country visited the workroom during the time of maximum production and gave it the name of "the Model Red Cross Workroom of America."

TORNADO'S DEATH TOLL REACHES 100

Several Hundred Injured in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas—Many Homeless

By the Associated Press Dallas, Tex., April 10.—One hundred known dead had been listed as victims of the tornado which yesterday struck northern Texas, southern Oklahoma and parts of Arkansas when order began to emerge today from the chaos caused by the storm.

The injured, some so badly hurt they cannot recover, are expected to number several hundred. The property damage, while it will run into many thousands of dollars, will be smaller than at first expected, since the path of the storm avoided all of the principal cities, striking only farmhouses and smaller villages.

Last night the homeless were cared for by their neighbors. The storm in its erratic course did not devastate any entire regions, often leaving several hours of unbroken calm between the chaos and the next few homes. The temperature dropped to freezing along the northern line of counties after the storm.

The countries most seriously damaged were Grayson, Fannin, Hunt, Wood, Van Zandt, Wichita, Collin, Camp and Titus in Texas and Bryan, Cotton and Pototoc in Oklahoma. The oil fields of Wichita county and of southern Oklahoma suffered hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage in wrecked derricks and machinery.

The hour at which the storm struck probably caused the high death toll. Nearly all of the houses destroyed contained sleepers. In most cases the first occupants heard of the storm was when the walls crashed down upon their beds.

JURY FREES CRONIN Labor Leader Found Not Guilty of Auto Insurance Swindle

A jury in Quarter Sessions Court returned a verdict of not guilty today in the case of John Cronin, a local union labor leader, charged with conspiring to defraud an automobile insurance company. James Hartnett, Jr., Harry Schultheis and Edward Wergin, who are alleged to have been in the conspiracy, entered pleas of guilty and appeared as commonwealth witnesses.

The Automobile Owners' Indemnity Exchange was the private prosecutor. According to Assistant District Attorney Fox, the defendant agreed to let his motorcar stand in front of the Perry Building, where he had an office, so that the three men could steal it and he could collect $3675 insurance.

Cronin is president of the International Iron Molders' Union No. 15, and was formerly a member of the Pennsylvania State Industrial Commission. He appeared in his own behalf and denied all of conversations and dealings he is alleged to have had with the defendants.
