

What are these two men doing? Were they on the firing line in the great war or are they pursued by a posse? Are they honest men or criminals? This story in May Cosmopolitan, by Rupert Hughes, is as thrilling as the famous "Lady Or The Tiger" story with which a great writer thrilled the world years ago. Illustrated by H. R. Ballinger.

Our boys are marching through just such German streets as this. Peter Clark Macfarlane marched with them, and if you have a boy with the A. E. F. in Germany, or if you know one, you will read Macfarlane's article in May Cosmopolitan with intense interest. Illustration by Lee Conroy.

America's Greatest Magazine

THE pictures on this page are from the May number of Cosmopolitan which is being swept from the news-stands of America by more than a million people.

Cosmopolitan is America's greatest magazine and America's favorite magazine. No other in all the world ever had so large an intelligent audience.

For Cosmopolitan is the one magazine that publishes, month after month, the best work of the greatest writers in all the world.

Buy a copy to-day and then, to-night spend a thrilling evening reading the best stories and the best novels that great minds are producing to-day for the entertainment of more than a million American homes.

These famous writers appear in the May number of Cosmopolitan

- | | |
|------------------------|-------------------------|
| Meredith Nicholson | John Galsworthy |
| Rupert Hughes | James Oliver Curwood |
| Cynthia Stockley | Donn Byrne |
| Frank R. Adams | Ben B. Lindsey |
| Peter Clark Macfarlane | E. Phillips Oppenheim |
| Henry Leverage | Samuel Merwin |
| Ella Wheeler Wilcox | George Randolph Chester |

Cosmopolitan

More than a million circulation every month

These two young people are standing on the edge of a diamond mine in Kimberley, South Africa. Cynthia Stockley tells a thrilling tale about them in May Cosmopolitan. Read the story and form your own conclusions about the woman who accidentally came into possession of a seven carat diamond and couldn't bear to return it. Illustrated by Dean Cornwell.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver Juvenile-Court fame, writes for May Cosmopolitan, an interesting article in which he claims that women are at least entitled to the same rights as horses. Read the article and ponder over this subject which is to-day one of the world's greatest problems.

A wounded American Lieutenant, attractive Jacqueline and the Bay of Biscay at Biarritz! It was Daniels' great adventure. Read about it in May Cosmopolitan. Illustrations by Lejaren Hiller.