

CITY-WIDE CAMPAIGN FOR SUFFRAGE HERE

Woman's Party Launches Drive Preparatory to Opening of Annual State Meeting

"Good morning! Have you seen our circular?" is the new slogan of the National Woman's party, which is starting an intensive campaign in Philadelphia, to culminate in the annual convention to be held here April 29. Thirty thousand circulars have been printed. They are being distributed throughout the city by Miss Lucy Gwynne Branham, of Baltimore, a national organizer for the party; Miss Katharine Preston, of Norristown; Miss Elizabeth McKane and Miss Edith Hillis, and other members of the Pennsylvania branch. The "dodgers" give an invitation to attend the all-day convention, and a mass meeting, which will be held in the evening, when Miss Alice Paul, national chairman of the woman's party; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley and Mrs. Richard Wainwright, both of Washington, will speak on the federal suffrage amendment.

The campaign in Philadelphia is to enlist members and obtain an overwhelming support for the federal suffrage amendment. In addition to distributing the circulars the woman's party is holding meetings in the various congressional districts, at which the speakers are Miss Branham, Miss Mary Ingham, Preston, of Norristown; Miss Elizabeth McKane and Miss Edith Hillis, and Miss Cecily Bass, recently admitted to the practice of laws. This afternoon a tea will be given by Miss Fanny Travis Cochran, 131 South Twenty-second street, for the second congressional district members. Congressman George S. Graham has been invited to attend.
