

OLD WOUND FATAL TO ITALIAN LEADER

FOUNDER OF 'LITTLE ITALY'

Frank Cuneo, "father of the Italian colony," and one of the most picturesque figures in the life of this city, died at his home, 829 South Eighth street, on Sunday from heart failure. He was eighty-seven years old.

His death, it is believed, was precipitated by a bullet imbedded near his heart which he received ten years ago, from a shot fired by an unidentified person during a street brawl.

Mr. Cuneo was standing in front of his store at the time, his thumb caught in his vest and his hand covering his heart. The bullet entered his hand and passed into his body, imbedding itself above his heart. It was never removed. Physicians say that it weakened his condition, causing a rupture of the tissues.

Mr. Cuneo was a pioneer in the manufacture of macaroni in Pennsylvania, importing the first machines to make the product from Italy in 1864. The product manufactured by him with his name, under the firm name of Lagouresinio & Cuneo, is known throughout the United States, and won medals at the Franklin Institute exhibition in 1874, the Centennial in 1876 and Paris Exposition in 1878.

Mr. Cuneo came to this country seventy years ago from Genoa, Italy. His father preceded him here by a few years, under the firm name of Lagouresinio & Cuneo, is known throughout the United States, and won medals at the Columbus and Verdi statues in Fairmount Park.

Joined in Gold Rush

Mr. Cuneo's start in life came with the famous gold rush to California in 1849. The romantic fever induced him to seek his fortunes in the gold fields and he left this city on a sailing vessel for the Isthmus of Panama. There he debarked with other fortune-seekers, and they crossed the Isthmus and traveled all the way to California on foot. It took him four months to make the journey.

Fortune favored him in the "land of the rainbow," and five years later he returned to the east and for a short time conducted a small grocery store in Alexandria, Va., returning to the city of his adoption to begin the manufacture of macaroni. When his uncle died

SCENES FROM MARDI GRAS IN SOUTH CAMAC STREET

Continuous Carnival During Loan Drive. With Artistic Effects Achieved by Many Famous Artists

The "biggest little street" in Philadelphia has been transformed into a veritable Mardi Gras as the mart from which the artists of the city will do their bit in behalf of the Victory Loan. South Camac street, between Locust and Spruce, where are situated the Sketch, Coin d'Or, Poor Richard and Plastic Clubs, has been arranged in carnival attire and thirty-four of the leading illustrators in the country will make drawings and paintings daily before the eyes of those who are expected to flock to this unique part of the city. These posters will be painted from 10 to 12 in the morning beginning tomorrow and from 2 to 5 in the afternoon. They will be 30 to 40 inches.

Carnivals, music, dancing and various other kinds of "stunts" will occur every night until the loan campaign is over. Admission is free during the day, but after 6 o'clock the ticket of admission will be the purchase of a bond, on which a minimum of $1 must be paid down.

The paintings, two of which will be completed daily, will be given to the purchasers of the largest amount of bonds. At certain times they will be placed at auction and the persons bidding for the highest amount of the bonds will receive the pictures.

Artists Who Will Help

The following artists will participate in the public exhibitions of painting the posters: Howard Chandler Christy, J. Scott Williams, Charles Chapman, Earl Porter, Herbert Pallingner, Leonard Seyfert, Charles L. Saporita, H. D. Welsh, John Sheridan, C. B. Falls, Ren Levin, August Huit, Adolph Treidler, Ray Greenleaf, Walter Everett, M. L. Blumenthal, Charles L. Hull, F. Luis Mora, Henry Reuterbach, Joseph Pennell, F. Walter Taylor, F. G. Cooper, Franklin Booth, Dean Corwell, L. Fancher, E. Vaux Wilson, Joseph Coll, Wallace Morgan, George Harding, H. T. Dunn, Haskell Coffin, W. A. Rogers.

he became sole proprietor of the business. In addition, Mr. Cuneo for many years was an importer of fine Italian wines, olive oil, and other delicacies. On account of his failing health, he retired from business activities about five years ago.

In One House Fifty Years

Mr. Cuneo died in the house in which he lived fifty years. It adjoins his business place. Besides a widow he is survived by two sons, Frederick J. Cuneo and Frank Cuneo, both of whom were associated with him until he retired. They are active in Third Ward politics, lieutenants of Select Council-

Fred Wagner, John Dull and Charles R. Paul. In addition to these men, all of whom did work for the division of Pictorial Publicity of the committee on public information, several members of the Plastic Club, all women, will paint pictures in oil. These also will be auctioned.

The grand opening of the artists' colony will take place at 8:15 o'clock. Charles Poe, director general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Judge John M. Patterson will be the principal speakers. There will be twenty rounds of boxing, and a bayonet fight between members of the marine corps from League Island. Of course, there will be music. This program will be carried out in the alleys in the rear of the clubs which will be turned into an outdoor amphitheatre.

Each night a table d'hote dinner will be served to those attending at the Sketch Club. The coin d'or will serve lunch daily to all bond buyers.

Costly Paintings Hung

A canopy of tarpaulins will be stretched across the street from roof to roof and from them will hang the gaily colored and diversified signal flags from the battleship Alabama, which have been put into place by members of the crew.

One of the most striking features of the "show" will be eighteen large oil paintings, sixteen by eight feet, valued at $50,000, which will be hung on the outside of the clubs from the roofs to the second floors. They are the work of well-known artists and are the originals of the Liberty Loan posters used in New York during the last campaign.

Every night there will be some festivities. All the residents on the street are co-operating, as are also members of the School of Industrial Art, Academy of the Fine Arts, School of Design for Women and the Art Alliance. Chairman of the committee on arrangements is H. D. Welsh.

Man Harry J. Trainer, the Penrose leader, Frederick Cuneo, a former common councilman, holds a position with the Board of Revision of Taxes. The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home. Solemn high mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel. Interment will be made in New Cathedral Cemetery.

Radnor to Fight School Loan

Residents of the eastern end of Radnor township will hold a mass-meeting tomorrow night at Fred Marx to organize a fight against the proposed $300,000 school loan for Radnor township, which will be voted on at a special election next Saturday.

PRaise ROOSEVELT AT SLAVS' MEETING

Bulgarians Denounced as Friends of Germans at Session Here

CONVENTION ENDS TODAY

A tribute to the late Colonel Roosevelt and denunciation of Bulgaria stood out prominently at the opening sessions of the Society for the Advancement of Slavonic Study, now being held in Houston Hall, University of Pennsylvania.

The society, which is holding its first convention, aims to promote Slavonic culture and literature and establish scholarships.

William Draper Lewis, former dean and now professor at the law school, University of Pennsylvania, eulogized Colonel Roosevelt. Professor Lewis was a warm friend of the former President for many years.

"Theodore Roosevelt was responsible in large part for the defeat of Germany," said Professor Lewis. "The fact that our armies arrived in France just in time to save Paris is directly, I think, a result of the preparedness policy Roosevelt preached for many years. It was the crowning achievement of his life, and I think he will go down in history famous for having brought the war to a favorable termination."

Characterization of the Bulgarians as "Mongolians and not Slavs," was made by Dr. V. R. Slavic, of New York. All the Slavic people allied themselves, with the foes of Germany, except Bulgaria, he said. Germany exploited the Slavs, according to Doctor Slavic, who quoted Mommsen, the German historian, as authority.

Slavic-American scholars from all parts of the country are attending the convention which will end today. Prominent among the delegates are Prof. M. S. Mandell, of Yale; Casimir Sienkiewicz, Serbian ambassador to this country, who will speak today; Captain Safarovic, Serbian consul general for Canada; Dr. Leon Z. Ljovando, of Swarthmore College, and Professors Morris Jastrow, R. G. Kent and Franklin Edgerton, of the University of Pennsylvania.

POLICE GUARD STATUE OF 'HEROIC' GERMANIA

Even Army Officer Has to Get Permission to Approach Pastorius Memorial

Superintendent Robinson has ordered the police of Germantown station to place a guard at the so-called Pastorius memorial in Vernon Park. This action was taken, he said, in compliance with a request from the War Department that precaution be taken to guard the monument against cranks.

The work is surmounted by a heroic statue of Germania, which has aroused some feeling among patriotic Americans. The police under Lieutenant Elvidge obeyed orders so strictly that when a representative of Colonel William B. Ladd, U. S. A., in charge of the engineers corps here, attempted to place a warning sign on the monument he was stopped.

Colonel Ladd was compelled to call up Superintendent Robinson and get permission from him to approach government property. The monument is under the care of the War Department, and the sign is intended to keep off trespassers. Superintendent Robinson said he did not know what had prompted the War Department to make the request for the guard, but said it had arisen probably from some threatening letter.

Can I believe my ears?—

The first morning with The Noiseless seems blessedly unreal. You can hardly believe your ears.

Gone is the old-time din and clatter. Your head ceases to buzz. You can actually hear the telephone without waving madly to your stenographer to "Please—PLEASE stop a minute!"

You will miss typewriter noise as you miss a headache.

Ask for booklet and impressive list of users.

"Better be safe than sorry"

DON'T wait for coal prices to come down. They are not coming down. They are going up. The advance will begin May 1st and will continue no one knows how long or to what point.

But it is not the price of coal that is today the big thing to consider—although price is a factor. It is the SUPPLY of coal that is of most serious consideration.

Unless you put in your next Winter's supply early, the chances are you will regret it before cold weather comes again. It is very unlikely that next Winter will be mild as last Winter. The prudent householder will not count on it.

Every condition points to higher prices and scarcity. Increased labor cost, increased freight rates, and everything which is used to move the coal after it is mined, make high prices logical.

Philadelphia coal dealers can deliver only about 10,000 tons a day. They have not the yard capacity to carry big stocks. Nor can you expect them to pay cash for big stocks and hold them for months, while the public waits for the drop in prices WHICH CANNOT COME.

Order your coal now!

Don't wait and get caught in the Fall and Winter "coal rush." If you wait till Fall or Winter you will have to pay premium prices for the coal you get, but what is worse, you may not be able to get coal at all when you need it most.

Let us not forget the suffering and worry and sickness that came down upon many Philadelphia Families two winters ago when everybody wanted coal at once and would have paid any price to get it.

Francis A. Lewis, former Federal Fuel Administrator for Philadelphia, says that Philadelphia will face a serious situation next Fall, if householders do not lay in their next Winter's coal supply now. Your coal bin should do duty this Summer. And when it is filled you can feel both secure and thrifty.

Our whole object is to prevent this serious situation for Philadelphia and for you.

Phone your dealer and make arrangements for next Winter's coal today.
