

PLANT TREES TODAY IN HEROES' MEMORY

Special Tribute to Be Paid to Soldier-Poet Who Lost His Life in War

MANY ARBOR-DAY EVENTS

Poem by Joyce Kilmer, Who Gave His Life in France I think that I shall never see A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is prest Against the earth's sweet flowing breast.

A tree that looks at God all day And lifts her leafy arms to pray.

A tree that may in summer wear A nest of robins in her hair.

Upon whose bosom snow has lain; Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me, But only God can make a tree.

In memory of Joyce Kilmer, the poet and nature lover, and hundreds of other heroes who lost their lives in France, trees will be planted today in public squares, in schoolyards and along the parkway. More than 600 trees will be planted by different organizations, aside from those the school children will set out.

Exercises in Parkway The Civic Club will have elaborate Arbor Day exercises in the Parkway, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, at 5:15 o'clock.

GREEN MONKEY IN ZOO LEADS WAR ON INSANITARY VISITORS

Mass-Meeting of Animals Rallied to Protest After Germs Brought by Humans Cause Deaths by Tuberculosis

"Visitors who came to the zoo to pay their respects to the animals here—after should be compelled to wear sterilized equipment or we will be forced to put on gas masks!"

The fighting green monkey, born at the Zoo on St. Patrick's day of this year, was speaking after the forty-seventh annual report had been read by Fred D. Weidman, acting pathologist of the Zoological Gardens.

"We are told in this report," continued the ring-leader, "that the untimely deaths of Sylvia and Villa, our two honored friends among the orang-outangs, were the direct results of contagion from visitors."

Sylvia's internal organs showed advanced tuberculosis. Her death, mark you, was the first among the primates for the last twenty-seven months. Villa died of influenza. Mr. Elephant died of congestion of the lungs. One lion and one sloth bear died of tuberculosis.

"Ladies and gentlemen, is it necessary to enumerate further?" continued the monkey-spokesman. "Doesn't this condition of affairs threaten the very foundation of our existence? It is true that our births during the last year have greatly exceeded the births of previous years. Mr. Weidman's report says that 150 animals were born during the last year. But that only makes a threatened disaster more serious. We owe a more binding obligation to 150 more youths."

"The potential greatness of these children must not be nipped in the bud. Here's the new baby of Mr. and Mrs. Camel. He was born on the 10th of January, the day the national prohibition amendment was ratified. What mysterious power may be exert over

Is This a Dream?

Shirts that fit, ties that keep their shape, collars that don't choke, underwear that's comfortable, socks that wear, pajamas that don't keep you awake, hats that neither bind nor flop over the ears, satisfactory handkerchiefs and gloves—just perennial "homest-to-goodness" goodness. If this is your dream, I can make it come true.
