

HEROES FROM CITY SPOTTED FOR 'BIRDS'

Philadelphians in Searchlight Unit, Colors Decorated, Land at Newport News

ILLUMINATED THE SKY

Philadelphians who served in the only American searchlight regiment...

The regiment is the Fifty-sixth Engineers, which fought with five British armies and three French army corps...

They returned on the Rijndam, which also brought several hospitals from France...

Many Philadelphians also were among the casualties aboard...

Picked Out German "Birds." The men of the Fifty-sixth Engineers saw as thrilling service as any which fell to the lot of an American regiment...

In four nights at St. Mihiel these three companies of the Fifty-sixth discovered and illuminated with their large searchlights fifty-four "birds," as the night-flying German raiders were called...

The regiment took a thrilling part in the Musee-Argonne offensive, covering the entire front of the first American army and a part of the second...

Philadelphians on Ship Among the Philadelphians on the transport were:

BIDDLE'S TROPHIES IN VICTORY EXHIBIT

Blood of Fallen Foe on War Relics Brought Back by Philadelphia Ace

Edmund R. Morris, president of the Girard Trust Company, is displaying some unusual war trophies loaned by Major Charles J. Biddle.

The battle took place on August 16, 1918, in the St. Mihiel sector at a height of 12,000 feet. The German's altitude recorded the height at which the fight was fought.

The pilot, mortally wounded, lost control of his machine and fell, with the body of his comrade, down through 12,000 feet of snow, with Major Biddle in pursuit.

The German's two machine guns, the observer's camera pierced with shells, and the rudder of the airplane, with the black cross on it, the mark of German battle planes, are also on exhibit.

Navy Yard Stays Closed Public Not to Be Admitted Tomorrow, Says Commandant

Visitors will not be admitted to the Philadelphia Navy Yard tomorrow, Admiral Hughes, commandant of the yard and head of this Naval District, announced today.

Philadelphians have been waiting eagerly for the privilege of visiting the Philadelphia Navy Yard, which has been developed into one of the greatest yards in the United States since the war.

Admiral Hughes said the yard would be thrown open to the public as soon as possible, but it might be several months before this time arrives.

SALOON IS HELD UP BY MASKED BANDITS

$185 Taken From Cash Register in Place at Seventh Street and Fairmount Avenue

MAN IN SUBWAY IS ROBBED

Masked bandits today held up and robbed the saloon of the estate of James Cotter, at Seventh street and Fairmount avenue, obtaining $181 from the cash register.

Another hold-up occurred in the subway at Eleventh and Market streets, when a highwayman bent and robbed a pedestrian, escaping with $140 cash and a gold watch and chain.

With handkerchiefs tied over their faces, four men entered the Cotter saloon and pointed revolvers at Nona Callahan, the bartender.

With handkerchiefs tied over their faces, four men entered the Cotter saloon and pointed revolvers at Nona Callahan, the bartender.

John Carroll, of 16 Stewart street, Darby, was the victim of the highwayman in the subway shortly after two o'clock.

Carroll resisted and the man drew a blackjack, striking him over the head. Carroll was badly cut about the body and face and finally rendered unconscious when the thief went through his clothes and obtained his valuables.

U. S. CONSUL ROBBED WHILE VISITING HERE James J. Murphy, Jr., Home From Genoa, Loses Trunk Containing War Relics

While James J. Murphy, Jr., United States vice consul at Genoa, who is home on leave, was visiting Court Clerk John Burns, of 727 North Seventeenth street, thieves stole a trunk from his automobile which was standing at the door.

Mr. Murphy had just arrived in Philadelphia. He was met at the station by his brother, his two trunks were fastened on the back of the machine and they then drove to Mr. Burns' home.

When Mr. Murphy left the house on North Seventeenth street he discovered his loss. The contents of the trunk included a large part of the consul's wardrobe and souvenirs which he had collected on the Austrian battlefield.

The police of the Nineteenth and Oxford streets station found the empty trunk yesterday.

James Greene, owner of a garage at Thirtieth and Sumner streets, and Edward Rossman, an employee, were arrested last night on the charge of having in their possession nine stolen automobiles.

The arrests were made by Acting Lieutenant McArrack, of the Second district police station, and Detective E. S. Strange, of the Detective Bureau.

Four of the nine supposedly stolen cars found in the garage were identified as those reported stolen last week.

FORMER JUDGE REED SPROUL'S FAVORITE FOR SERVICE BOARD

Governor Has Almost Decided to Name Clearfield Man to Place McClure Held

Governor Sproul made it known today he had almost decided on the appointment of former Judge John M. Reed, Clearfield, to the vacancy on the public service commission created by the recent death of former Judge Harold M. McClure.

Though the Governor did not announce definitely he had made the appointment, what he said certainly indicates current thinking last week.

Former Judge Reed was on the bench in the Jefferson Indiana district, and is widely known in the western part of the state. He was defeated for reelection to the bench in the last election owing to a factional fight.

Former Judge McClure died suddenly a few weeks ago, shortly after he had been appointed for a full term to the public service commission.

Governor Sproul went today to install a memorial tablet in the Williams town Trade School, Delaware county, before going he said he would motor to Harrisburg (other Sunday) on Monday.

5 "FIGHTING DEVILS" HOME WITH HONORS

Hammonton Youths Who Enlisted Together Return Wearing French War Crosses

GUARDED KING GEORGE V

Five soldiers of Hammonton, N. J., who volunteered together June 11, 1917, for overseas service, have returned to their home town with the honors of war.

The "Fighting Devils of Hammonton," as they are called, are Albert Jannett, Verrell Beverage, William Tell, Michael Gissiri and Charles T. DeKlin.

The Hammonton soldiers enlisted with the University of Pennsylvania ambulance corps and trained until December 27, 1917, when the unit sailed for overseas.

The most thrilling thing that came under the observation of the "Fighting Devils" was the complete destruction of a hospital near where they were stationed ten days before the armistice.

The citation is signed by Marshal Polak, commander-in-chief of the French armies of the east.

Your Speech to the Wool Club

Suppose you are asked to make an address to the Tide-Water Association or to the Annual Banquet of the Lapidary Employers' Board.

It is a matter of great moment; you write and re-write your remarks and rehearse all the details. It may even entail a new dress coat and the finishing touches of a professional coach.

And yet at most, you will actually talk to no more than two thousand people directly and perhaps three times that number through reprints in the trade press.

Are you equally careful of your speech to millions in the advertising columns?

Do you employ the best brains without stint to prepare your messages?

These messages of yours do not go to hundreds at a banquet-table; they go to millions in the homes, and when your chance comes to speak to a whole nation, if it be only for two minutes, you ought to have the best speech-maker in the nation as your mentor.

When you advertise nationally, employ experts to prepare your speech—your message—your advertisement.

Publishers are in a position to appreciate the best work of the leading agencies.
