

Seeing Philadelphia's Famous Old First, Home From Battlefields, Off for Camp Dix

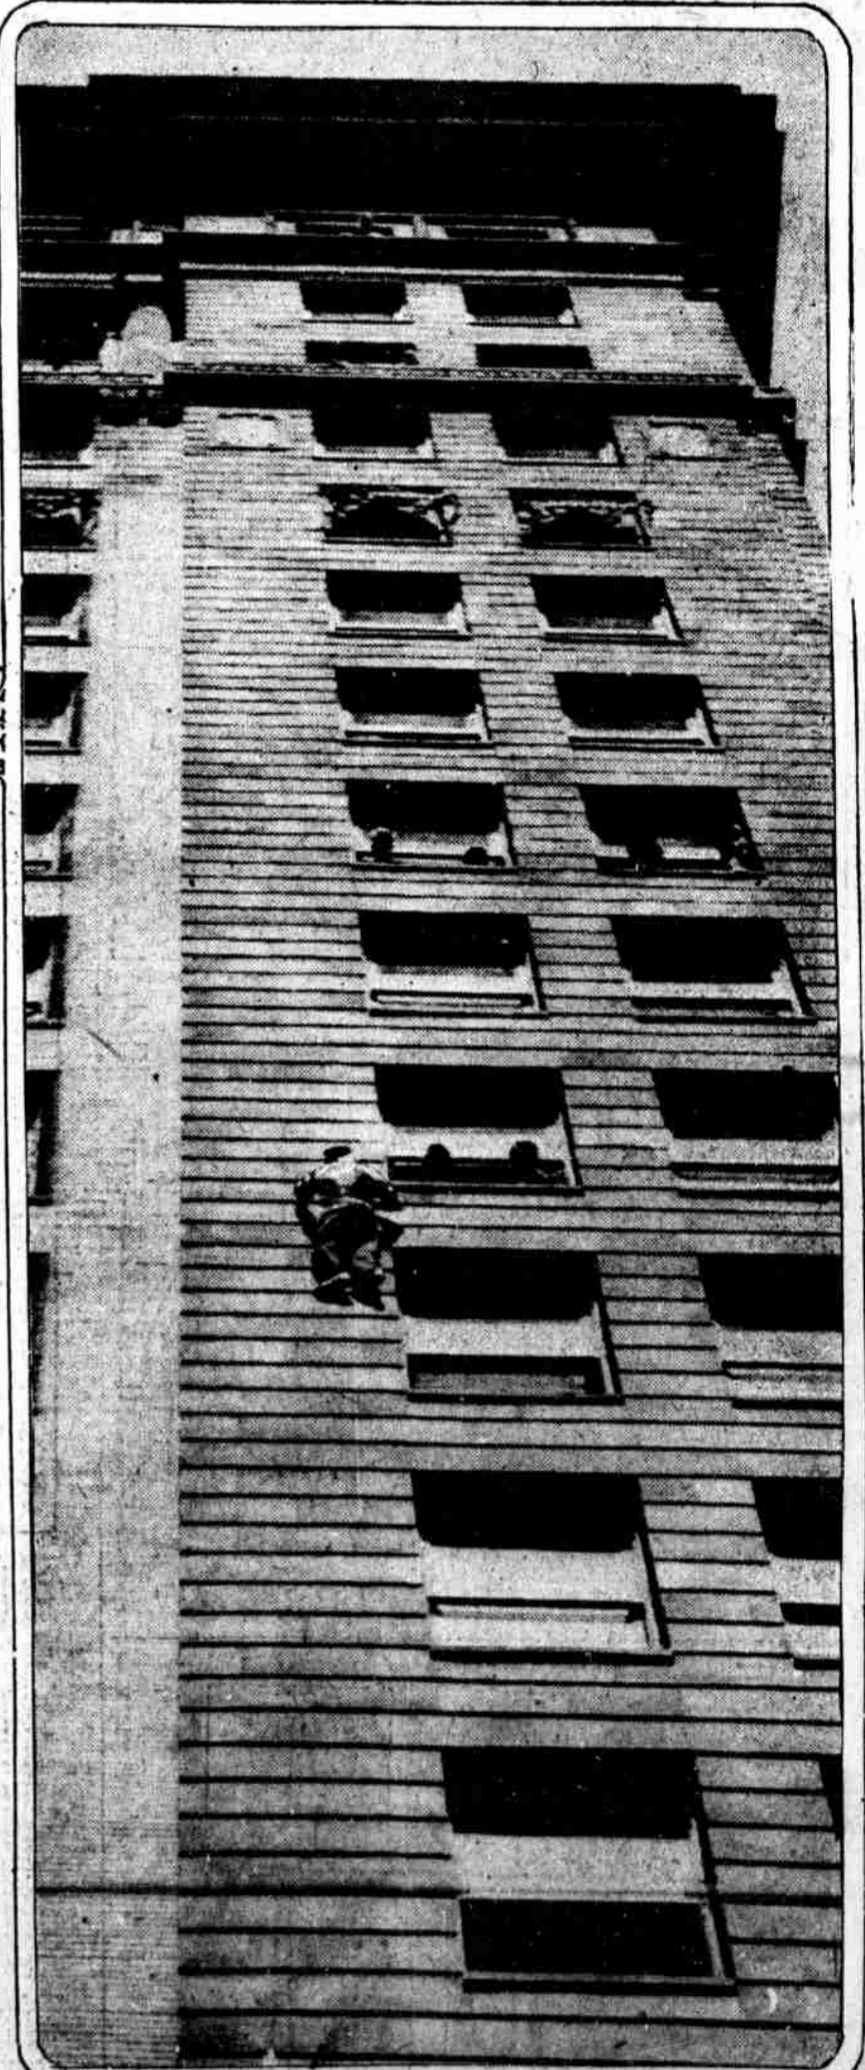

AFTER DEBARKING at Snyder a venue pier amid the din of thousands, the 109th Infantry of the Iron Division started for Camp Dix, to await regular routine before demobilization.

WHEN a buddy has a buddy with a plate of cream.

JOLLY Mr. Pachyderm's grin when he spies the tooth some circus peanuts he is offered.

HERE AGAIN, then gone again—but parting for Camp Dix is such sweet sorrow.

CLIMBING for the Loan. "Daredevil" Johnny Reynolds, the "human fly," scaling the front of the Morris Building on Chestnut street west of Broad in aid of Victory Notes.

PHILADELPHIA officers who returned on the Maul. Standing, left to right: Chaplain Joseph Wolfe, Lieutenants A. Latta, H. Sloan, D. Irvin, C. McFadden, J. P. Connell, C. F. Kennedy and H. Ripple. Front row: Lieutenants G. A. Fleck, E. B. Hancel, W. Gemmons, E. R. Kimbal and W. Becker.