

Transatlantic Naval Plane : Circus Ground Glimpses : Aiding Loan With Brush and Pencil

THE NC-1, ONE OF THE NAVY'S SEAPLANES, which had its right wings destroyed by fire at the naval air station at Rockaway Beach just before the start for Newfoundland, where the transatlantic flight is scheduled to begin.

TAKING A TOP VIEW of the big tent first, one of the side attractions at the circus.

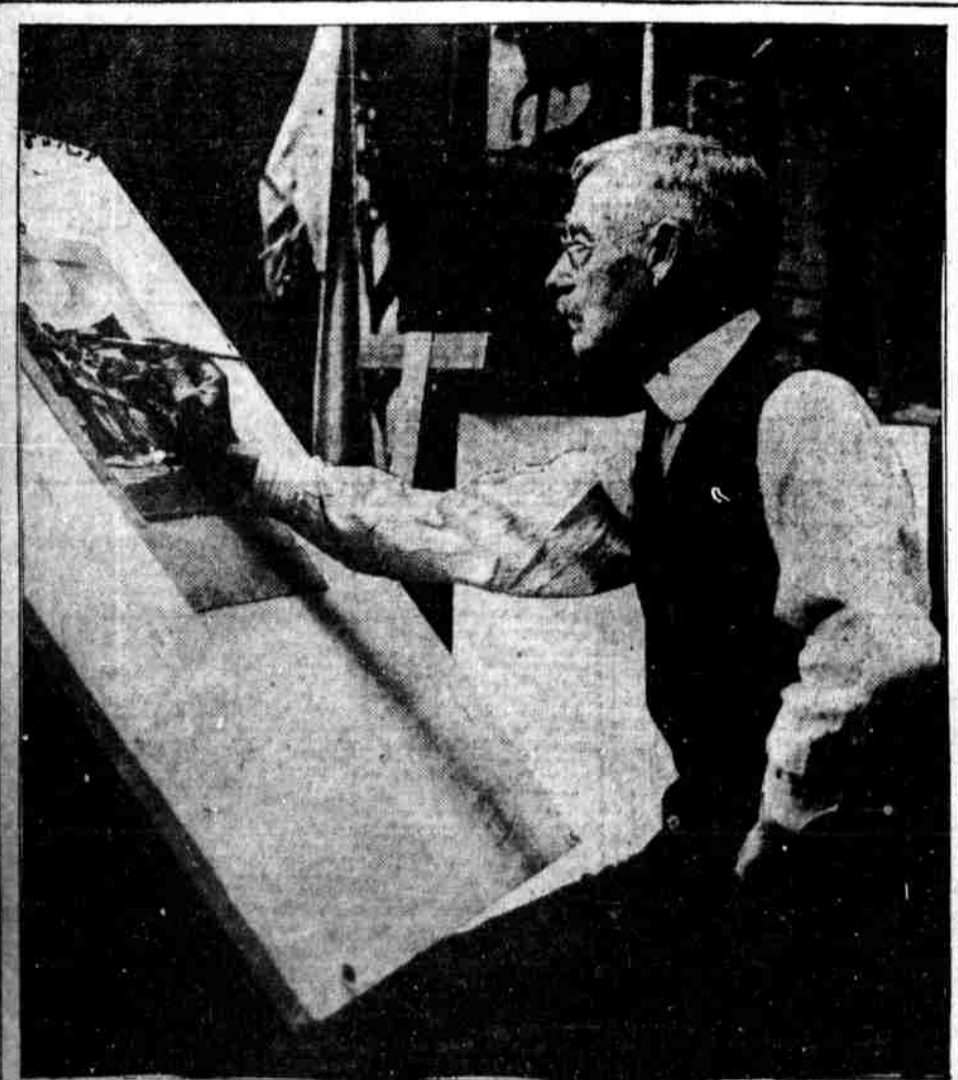

FOR HIS EFFORTS in aid of the Loan, the Victory Loan committee, through the Treasury Department, has presented Vice President Marshall with an officer's boche helmet. Here's the helmet and the Vice President, photographed in his office.

THERE'S NO WAR TAX on just a peep into the enchanted land of spangles, sawdust and elephants.

REAL COWGIRLS in the picturesque adornments of the wildest West at fascinatingly close range at Hunting Park avenue.

FRANK H. TAYLOR, Philadelphia veteran of brush and pencil, aiding the Victory cause with a drawing in South Camac street.

JUDGE JOHN M. PATERSON, Court of Common Pleas, turned artist for the Loan, completing his poster "The Last Drive—Don't Foolle."

F. G. COOPER, cartoonist, who has run over from New York to the Sketch Club to help the Loan Campaign.