BANKER EXPLAINS NEED OF LABOR STABILIZATION

Uncertainty Believed to be Responsible for Delayed Demand for Materials—Gossip of the Street

ACCORDING to a well-informed banker, what this country needs more than stabilization of steel or other prices is an assurance of the stabilization of labor. Of what use, he asked, is it to attempt to stabilize the prices of any product when the conditions of labor are unstable? Stable labor conditions, he remarked, are necessary to the development of a demand for all the materials used in construction processes. There have been reductions in the prices of many building materials going on quietly, but not sufficient, he said, to cause much enthusiasm among builders and contractors. There is, however, he added, something which is holding back many projects which should be under way.

He said he did not believe it altogether the result of waiting for much lower prices for material, but was largely due to the element of uncertainty in the labor situation. The government, he said, has urged that public works be started and pushed to the limit so as to give employment, especially to returning soldiers; but little or nothing seems to have been accomplished along these lines. Even some of the government's own projects are being held up. This is the case, he said, especially with the Emergency Fleet Corporation, which was to construct some huge drydocks among other things, and although bids have been asked for and received, nothing has been

This can be understood, he remarked, in the case of municipal improvements, since to carry these out most of the municipalities would have to raise the money through bond issues, and naturally they do not wish to compete with the government during the Victory Loan campaign. But, he said, he could not convince himself that the reason for holding back so many necessary projects lay in the cost of materials, and from information received be believed a good deal of the apathy arose from the doubt as to what stand labor is going to take in the near future.

Outcome of Steel Conference Anticipated

The outcome of the steel conference in New York on Thursday was to great extent anticipated by many financiers in this city. One broker remarked that the reports on the matter showed plainly that the whole affair was largely the result of a cabinet family row where the order of precedence was not strictly observed by the industrial board members. He said the whole affair, when simmered down, resolved itself into some questions of fact, which the result of the conference will soon determine. Now that Railroad Director General Higes has decided to appeal to the open market as a court of last resort, he said, it will be seen if he will get lower bids for his rails and other equipment than the steel men maintained they could offer without a reduction in wages. It is not generally regarded, said this broker, that the steel manufacturers will at the present time attempt to reduce the cost of their product by the wage route if any other plan is practicable.

Another broker said the strange thing to him is how there can be such wide difference of opinion if the facts given to the public in the centroversy are as stated. Mr. Hines and his representatives argue that the costs of scrap and coke have been reduced so much recently that the stabilized prices agreed upon at the former conference were abnormally high and have not been arrived at with a due regard to these reductions, and that the steel companies would, if allowed these prices, still be making the enormous profits which they made in wartimes. In other words, the steel companies would be profiteering at the expense of the public, who will be taxed to make up the deficits of the railroads.

Continuing, he said he was afraid that personalities, which should not be allowed to enter the controversy, had beclouded the issue, and in that event the conclusion arrived at by Director Hines to try the open market will soon show who is right.

Open Steel Market Will Speed New Business

One of the partners of a large banking house said that the action of yesterday was evidence that the result of the decision by Director Hines had no unfavorable effect on the market; in fact, the reverse

The time had come, he said, when steel producers were determined on a campaign for new business, and this decision will only speed it up. He did not think there would be any great reductions from the stabilized prices, but the great object gained is that something definite has been done; there will no longer be any reason to wait, and the moment consumers realize this they will stock up. Stocks of steel were never lower than at present, he said.

There is just a possibility that we may hear of lower prices for a little while," he remarked, "but that will be only temporary, as the present high cost of production precludes the policy of price-cutting to any appreriable extent. The moment the situation is thoroughly understood, he said, there will begin a strong buying movement in steel products.

In connection with Director Hines's statement that he will at once ealls for bids for 200,000 tons of rails, it brought out a remark from a broker that the United States Steel Corporation is in a position to secure the whole order if it wants to, and he gave that for a reason for the bullishness on

Financiers Confident Philadelphia Will Go 'Over' Loan Quota Today is the last day of the Victory Loan campaign. Notwithstanding large amount remaining to be subscribed, it would be difficult to find one who believes Philadelphia will default. Yesterday the atmosphere in the financial district was tense with expectation; today it will be more so, and will continue until the stroke of midnight. The real situation may not be known for several days, but a fair approximation of the result will appear in Sunday's papers. There will be a sigh of relief in banks and financial institutions when it is all over, and the knowledge that it is the last loan will add to the

Many of the investment banking houses have been preparing for an aggressive selling campaign to begin on Monday morning. In the course of the following week it is expected many new issues, some of them unusually attractive, will be placed on the market. During the interval of the Victory Loan campaign a number of the larger investment concerns have been adding to their sales forces and in other ways strengthening their organizations. A number of these houses have called special meetings of their salesmen for today. One well-known house now has an organization more than sixty persons. All of this goes to show that the Victory Loan campaign has not ex-bausted the free money waiting for investment and which it is reported exists in every section of the country.

The manager of one of these houses remarked that in many instances their former methods of obtaining business must undergo great changes. The Liberty Loans, he said, had altered the whole investment field.

"Our future customers will not be found among the few select wealthy only," he said. "We are going to dig right down to the strata where the money exists in comparatively small amounts, but in stupendous sums in the aggregate. Then another new idea has been taught successfully by the Liberty Loans. It is the installment idea as applied to investments. "It is true;" he remarked, "that the idea is not new in Europe, especially in France, but it is new here, and it seems to have taken root. The 'baby' bond, the justaliment plan of purchase and the multitude of clients instead of a few," he said. "would revolutionize the investment business in United States."

Short-term notes were firm yesterday, with an active demand for a number of special issues, while some of the more important maturing foreign government short-term notes were fractionally higher.

There was a good inquiry for government of Switzelland 5s, which were 99 11-16 bid; American Foreign Securities 5s and Canada 5s, which also commanded the same bid quotation.

ADJUSTMENT IN STEEL

No Further Incentive to Keep Out of Market for Future Requirements

New York, May 10 .- As forecast in these columns a week ago, the steel Apr. Meh. pute with the railroad administration, sept. and as a result the conference which was held here on Thursday resulted in a failure to reach a new agreement. The representatives of the railroad administration also held their ground, and it istration also held their ground, and it North was announced that competitive bids would be taken shortly for 200,000 tons June, May.

was announced that competitive bids Aug. 1917, 19,883,417, would be taken shortly for 200,000 tons of steel rails.

Steel men, generally, are of opinion Feb. 1917, 11,886,591, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,886,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 11,884,591, 1918, 1917, 1918 Steel men, generally, are of opinion that the outcome of the dispute has been satisfactory. As a matter of fact, the leaders in the industry right along have maintained that they were in a position to meet any readjustment that must come, and it is known that the matter of making an agreement with governmental bodies met with considerable opposition when it was first press.

Asr. 1917 12.183,088 Feb. 1914 5.028.490 take up nearly all the labor and a favor-been satisfactory. As a matter of fact, 1917 11.474,054 Nov. 1913 4.282,108 able influence in that connection is that prices and wages are being main 5.223.490 to some satisfactory. Nov. 1916 11.058,242 Sept. 1913 5.223.491 take up nearly all the labor and a favor-been satisfactory. As a matter of fact, 1917 11.474,054 Nov. 1913 4.282,108 able influence in that connection is that prices and wages are being main 5.223.491 to some substantially in nearly all directions. While it is the conviction of the public position when it was first pression of the corporation's discussion seems to in-standard that they were in a position when it was first pression. able opposition when it was first proposed.

One point which has been made for cibly is that the uncertainties which have prevailed since the dispute arose have been removed, and that regular consumers, knowing that the steel men are determined to hold for what they believe a fair and reasonable level. will have no further incentive to keep out of the market for their future requirements.

There has been some talk that with the price agreement abregated quotations will advance eventually, but in this connection one of the best posted authorities in the trade states that he can see no possibility of higher levels at least for the remainder of the year. He asserts that the prices prevailing at present are fair and there would be no ground for making any advances at this

The opinions which have been beard recently that within a few months the demand for steel products will exceed the supply is ridiculed by this authority, who points out that the capacthe industry has been increased materially during the war, and that it will take a peace demand much larger than the buying during the war to absorb the present ingot capacity. which is approximately 46,000,000 gross

In some circles it is the expectation that the latest developments will result in a resumption of buying for many products and the future is being awaited with considerable interest by all observers. That there has been a large amount of business held in abey. large amount of business held in abey ance is the general belief in the trade. and if this held-up business is sent to the mills in the form of definite contracts, the outlook will be much better than it has been in some time.

With regard to the competitive bidding for the rail orders for the govern- 45 m 50c. ment it is stated in some circles that only the United States Steel Corporation can afford to put in proposals at $45 per ton for Bessemer and $47 per ton for open-hearth, and that all other makers have a cost in excess of these figures. This would mean that the corporation is in a position to get the entire order if its officials desire it.

The production of steel insets in April was the smallest since January of 1918, when the plants of the country were curtailed by the cold weather and the coal shortage. The percentage of operation figures given in these columns from time to time during April have been borne out by the ingot statement. However, should buying be resumed, as many now expect, the coming months should show increases over the lottle granted by the contract of the country with the potators of the country of the contract of the country of total recorded in April.
