Philadelphia today gave hearty welme to the Iron Division, arriving here n a stream of soldiers that seemed endess for the great parade tomorrow.

The soldiers came up from Camp Dix, at Wrightstown, N. J., on special trains. eneral Muir and his staff were forilly welcomed at 9:20 o'clock this ning at the foot of Market street y Mayor Smith.

With the general, came the 109th Inntry (Philadelphia's old First) on aree special trains. At twenty minite intervals trainload after trainload of soldiers, first the 110th (which inles our old Third), then the other ents which will parade tomorrow llowed the men of the 109th.

The soldiers were brought from Cam where special trains discharged passengers, over the Market street

From the time the 109th landed, cen al streets of the city were thronged ith crowds watching the soldiers of various regiments march to the iories, where they will remain over

Market street, from the Delaward leer to Broad, and Broad street, esfally around City Hall, were thronged ith spectators, who waved greetings eered as each new contingent of
