

SUN GIVES GREETING TO DOGS AND PONIES

Large Crowd at First Society Outdoor Event on Clothier Estate

FALLEN KAISER A TARGET

Smiling skies today greeted the dog and pony show when it opened at 11:30 o'clock this morning on the estate of Mrs. William J. Clothier at Wynnewood.

The show is one of the first of the important outdoor affairs being conducted by society for charitable purposes. Numerous society men and women wandered from booth to booth, dallied along the midway and inspected the various entries.

At the entrance to the estate a rummage sale was in progress. A wide variety of articles brought good prices and the buying was spirited.

Along the midway there were games of chance. One of the favorites was a miniature horse race. The grim face of the fallen kaiser was the target in a ball-throwing game as was that of the lesser desperado, Villa.

All types of dogs were entered. There were many quiet exclamations of delight over little St. Bernard puppies which tried to amble about solemnly on feet that appeared much too big for them. Then there were little skitter-keek dogs without tails and a tiny Griffon spaniel with dainty slippers on its hind feet.

There was a crowd gathered about the case of Charles Sappanta, a well-known artist, who sketched pastels. One of his charming subjects was Mrs. Victor Mather, who was dressed entirely in white.

Beautifully Gowned Women

Mrs. Clothier, who acted as hostess, wore a blue linen suit when the show opened. Later she changed to a costume of old rose jersey silk cloth. She wore a large black hat with white roses.

Among the other beautifully garbed society women was Mrs. Edward Page, in a white linen skirt, with a blue and white striped sleeveless sweater, dark blue stockings and white pumps.

Miss Eleanor Gamble was dressed entirely in white. Mrs. Edmund Thayer wore a dark blue skirt, a sweater and a sailor hat. Mrs. Gilbert Mather wore a dark, one-piece dress, with a black cloak, with fringed collar. She had a small black tulle hat. Mrs. John Wentz had on a combination black and white skirt. Her hat was black with large white plumes.

A number of dinner parties have been planned for the evening and the debetante and school sets are giving parties in their honor. The parties are being held out-of-doors and are being served from the restaurant which is a special feature of the show.

Although the dogs and ponies are the drawing card, there are also doll and baby shows and a Punch and Judy show.

RED CROSS REVIVED FRENCH RACE, SAYS HYGIENE EXPERT

Dr. Florence Child Tells How Mothers of France Were Taught to Save Their Babies—Bad Sanitation Combated

HEALING the French wounded and allowing the French children to die in the pouring water into a leaky bucket. The life of France is bound to run out until there is no more France. This is the opinion expressed today by Dr. Florence Child, 5223 McKean avenue, Germantown, just returned from eighteen months in France. Dr. Child is an expert on child hygiene, and as such had charge of the American Red Cross Contagious Hospital for Children at Evian-les-Bains, France.

"To illustrate what I mean about France dying out but for the aid of the American Red Cross, let me cite the instance of one of the towns I worked in, no more serious than the condition before we came of hundreds of other French cities," she said.

"At Monthuon, with a population of 33,000, the number of births for 1918 was 460 and the number of deaths was over 1000.

Extinction Threatened

"A noted French statistician recently showed that in from thirty to thirty-five years there would be no more France unless something was done to save the children. It was not sufficient to save the wounded and let the babies die. Yet they were dying by hundreds and thousands of them in all the villages and towns of France. And the American Red Cross felt that it must come in and complete its work of saving France. We did.

"We found that all over France, especially in the smaller towns, the people were living as though in the Middle Ages, in houses built before Christopher Columbus discovered America.

"There was practically no light, the windows are so narrow. These they would never open, being afraid of the air. There was no plumbing and there were no toilets. The houses have no water. Long walks to a pump in the center of a town must be taken for every drop of water. So they got used to doing without it. They gave none to their babies.

"The women wash their laundry in the river. In winter ice must be broken before they can wash their clothes. As a result they are anxious for washing days to come around and do not change their clothing very often.

"The women admired the physique

PENN INSTRUCTORS GET BOOST IN WAGES

Deny Increased Scale of 10 to 25 Per Cent Results From Recent Attack

IS EFFECTIVE THIS FALL

Salaries of all full-time instructors, assistant professors and professors of the University of Pennsylvania will be increased from 10 to 25 per cent, beginning next fall.

Announcement of this effect was made today by Provost Edgar Fahs Smith, the board of trustees having approved a new scale of remuneration at a meeting held on Monday last.

This action closely follows the resignation of Prof. J. Russell Smith, a member of the Wharton School faculty, who bitterly arraigned the failure of the University to provide salaries adequate to meet the increased cost of living and characterized the pay as "starvation wages."

The Smith resignation, in turn, caused Harrison S. Morris and his wife, Mrs. Anna Wharton Morris, to attack the policy of the trustees with respect to the conduct of the Wharton School, and Dean William McClellan in particular. Dean McClellan's resignation was announced several days later, although it had been tendered several months prior to the attack. Mrs. Morris is a daughter of Joseph Wharton, the donor of the school. She was supported in her statement by Wharton Barker, a trustee and nephew of Mr. Wharton.

Not Result of Attacks

Officials of the University denied today that the salary increases were a direct result of the attacks. Several members admitted it has been felt by the board of trustees for a long time that the pay was inadequate.

Under the revision faculty members receiving $4000 or less will be increased to $5000, or a 25 per cent jump. Members receiving from $4000 to $8000 will be advanced 20 per cent, while instructors whose salaries already are $8000 or more will receive a 10 per cent increase.

The increases will total about $110,000, according to Samuel F. Houston, the chairman of the finance committee, who presented the report upon which the trustees placed the stamp of their approval. This will make the salary roll of the University total approximately $1,000,000, Mr. Houston said today.

A return to normal conditions at the University is largely responsible for the increases granted instructors, Provost Smith declared, and marks a determined step to enable the faculty members to meet the high cost of living.

Provost Smith, in his formal statement announcing the increase, said: "All full-time instructors, assistant professors and professors whose regular salaries do not exceed $4000 will receive an increase of 25 per cent. This

Court Postpones Further Audit of Late Patent Medicine Man's Property Until May 28

Before Judge Henderson in the Orphans' Court today, hearing in the estate of James M. Munyon, deceased, the patent medicine man, was continued until May 28. The first account of John J. Foulkrod, executor, which was on the list for audit, showed the personalty to be valued at $56,822.31. The real estate account showed $53,800 received as the proceeds of the sale of 5280 Parkside avenue, and income from other real estate $14,495.56, but all of this was consumed by expenditures in connection with other property of the estate. The balance for distribution under the present account is $32,782.41. Included in the account are 825 shares of Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy Company, valued at $15 per share, or $12,375.

Mr. Foulkrod said the total value of the estate may be about $100,000 more than is shown by this first account, which only relates to the personalty, but he could not give any accurate estimate of the total estate at this time.

"Professor" Munyon, as the patent medicine man liked to be known, died at Palm Beach on March 10, 1918. He was reputed to be worth nearly a million dollars.

Interest in the case was very much enlivened when on June 4, 1918, a claim for dower right in the estate was presented by one June Kane, claiming to have been the common-law wife of "Professor" Munyon. This woman, who is said to reside in West Philadelphia and to be about thirty years of age and very good looking, was immediately denounced by James M. Munyon, Jr., as an impostor. He declared that at the time of his father's death the latter was engaged to be married to a wealthy society woman of New York.

Tree for Canton Boy

School children scattered flowers on the ground around the tree which was planted in the schoolyard at East Canton, O., in honor of Earl Dobbyn, the only soldier from that town to give his life in the war, says the American Forestry Association, of Washington, which is keeping a national register of all such memorial trees planted throughout the United States.
