KINSMAN QUILTS AS DELAWARE BISHOP

Cannot Give Whole-Hearted Service to Protestant Episcopal Church, He Says

Wilmington, Del.—May 15.—Saying he was "conscious of an increasing lack of sympathy with various dominant tendencies" of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Frederick J. Kinsman, bishop of the diocese of Delaware, notified the 133d annual convention yesterday that he would retire from his position in October. It is believed by local Episcopal clergymen that this move is a forerunner of his retirement from the church.

"I have never been able easily to adapt myself to the varied conditions of a bishop's work," Bishop Kinsman said in his communication to the convention, adding that his family responsibilities were another reason for his retirement.

It was a public funeral, in which it seemed every resident of the great metropolis endeavored to participate. The streets through which the cortège moved were congested with crowds eager to do reverent homage to "that brave woman," as the Bishop of London described her, "who deserves a great deal from the British empire."

The congregation at the Abbey included high officials of the government, representatives of foreign countries and men prominent in many walks of life. King George was represented by the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary.

The service was conducted by the Dean of Westminster. No address was delivered. The opening sentences of the burial service were sung by the choir, which then sang the twenty-third Psalm, and a short lesson from the revelations of St. John. Then came Sullivan's anthem, "Yes, Though I Walk Through the Valley of the Shadow of Death" and "I Heard a Voice from Heaven."

The Litany, the Lord's Prayer and two collects were then repeated, followed by the hymn, "Abide With Me." The benediction was then pronounced and the Last Post and Reveille were sounded.

The service, which began at noon, lasted half an hour. The procession left the Abbey to the strains of Chopin's Funeral March, and proceeded to the station, where the coffin of plain oak was placed on a train for Norwich.

On the coffin was the simple inscription:

"Edith Cavell."

"Born December 4, 1865.
Died October 12, 1915."

At Norwich it was placed on a gun carriage and was taken to Norwich Cathedral. The service, which was officially designated "for the funeral of Edith Cavell, a nurse who gave her life for her countrymen," followed.

As the coffin was taken into the cathedral, the hymn, "Now the Laborer's Task Is O'er," which was followed by the reading of the lesson, I, Peter, 2, 13, by Canon Deuchar, then came Sullivan's anthem, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and Chopin's funeral march.

While the hymn, "A Brief Life Is Here Our Portion," was being sung, the procession formed for the march to the graveside. There the latter portion of the burial service was conducted by the bishop, and the hymn "Abide With Me," which Miss Cavell repeated shortly before her execution by the Germans, was sung. The benediction was then pronounced and the bugle sounded the Last Post.

The funeral party which accompanied the body from Brussels to Norwich included eight members of Miss Cavell's family and prominent British and Belgian officials.

The exact position to which Mr. Fosdick will be appointed was not known today in Washington.

Mr. Fosdick is thirty-six years old. His home formerly was in Buffalo, N. Y., where his father is an educator. He first came into public notice about ten years ago, when soon after being graduated from Princeton and taking a post-graduate course at the New York Law School he began practicing law in New York and became connected with Mayor Gaynor's administration as assistant corporation counsel. A little later he became commissioner of accounts and the investigations he conducted into municipal affairs attracted country-wide attention.

During 1913 Mr. Fosdick worked in Europe investigating police systems for the Rockefeller Bureau of Social Hygiene. He was offered public office again at the beginning of President Wilson's administration, but declined. When the United States entered the war he took the chairmanship of the commission on training camp activities, serving without pay. The work was broadened into the business of providing wholesome recreation and relaxation for the troops in the field, and in pursuing it Mr. Fosdick has spent a great deal of time in Europe during the last two years. President Wilson, it is known to Mr. Fosdick's friends, regards his qualities highly.

At present Mr. Fosdick is in the West, but is expected in Washington early next week.

NURSE'S RELATIVES ATTEND

By the Associated Press
London, May 15.—England paid tribute to Edith Cavell, the English nurse executed by the Germans at Brussels, October 12, 1915, here today when her body, enroute from Brussels to her native city of Norwich, was taken to Westminster Abbey for an impressive memorial service.

"But there are deeper reasons," he continued, "which make it unnecessary for me to weigh these lesser considerations. They have nothing to do with the diocese or the special conditions of my work, but have reference to my attitude toward principles and policies of the church at large."
