THE Rodman E. Griscoms will introduce their daughter Mary next season. Every day we hear of another debutante, it seems to me, until I sometimes wonder how on earth there will be enough days to bring them all out; and I do not wonder that mothers are choosing days as far ahead as January when it comes to parties at the hotels.

Of course, the Griscoms will not bring Mary out of a hotel, for they have their lovely big place at Dolobran which was built by Mary's grandfather, the late Mr. Clement A. Griscom. I understand that her grand-mother, Mrs. Clement A. Griscom, will give n ten out there in October to introduce the young debutante.

Mrs. Rodman Griscom was Miss Annie Starr, you know, so the Starr family as well as the Griscoms will be interested in giving Mary Griscom a good time. And it is likely that there will be any number of par-debut in the Griscom family, and the country home, with its picture gallery and ballroom, is an ideal place for entertaining.

DON'T you love to hear people talk about things they do not understand? I know that sounds sarenstie, but really, my dears, the comments I have heard on that parade last week are enough to make one roar with laughter. It appears there were not enough bands, plse not enough rifles to go around.

Now that sounds too absurd, doesn't it? But there are not one or two, but many, in this town who did not and do not yet know that members of gun battalions do not carry rifles, they shoot guns; that stretcher bearers and ambulance corps members do not carry rifles; that each regiment has only one band and that we were viewing the returned Twenty-eighth Division, which had in it four regiments, and therefore four bands and no more.

Another thing, the city had bands about every two or three blocks for the men to march to. They played on the sidewalks or on the grandstands, and it was all marvelous. I have never seen such a splendid set of fine, well-built men.

But there are always some to find fault So it goes. If we all liked the same people and the same things it would be fierce. wouldn't it? But at the same time we might as well show a certain amount of human intelligence now and again, and somehow when I had heard seven times about the want of rifles in the parade and ten times about there not being enough bands I felt I must stand up on my two feet and remark: "You know, dearies, that wasn't a circus we went to see last week. It was the men who returned from fight ing in one of the worst places along the line in the late war. There's been a war, you know, and the Philadelphians in line were what were left of our own home-town men who fought and died 'over there'

THE Coloniel Dames, Chapter No. 2, will give a delightful affair tomorrow afternoon at their house, 400 Locust street. It is to be a reception for all the nurses in the city who did work overseas during the war. The reception will last from 4 until 6 o'clock and will be quite a large affair. Mrs. James Large, who has lately been made president of this chapter, is taking a very great interest in the party and has asked a number of the Dames to receive with her. The Colonial Dames have done a lot toward entertaining soldiers and sailors and last Sunday they had a huge supper there for the seamen, at which some hundred men were

THE Flower Market will open this morning, you know, and it's certainly going to be as great as a picture, if nothing else, and something tells me from the amounts taken in in previous years it will cessful financially, too, and, of course that's the great thing. I do hope it will be clear and remain so all day. Yesterday was so questionable it was hard to predict the weather.

TSN'T it lovely the ideas children get? Vir-I ginia was eating her soup slowly and carefully. You have to eat slowly when you are only four and you have to be very careful not to spill a tiny drop and not to make a single little scoopy sound. It was that levely creamy tomate soup which is so pink and prefty, and Virginia loved every little mouthful. As she neared the bottom of the plate she became slower and slower, and then when you could see the bottom and the spoon took up more soup Virginia looked puzzled, and, raising her eyes to mother, said, "Oh! mamma, see the hole I made in my soup!"

What Clean-up Week Accomplished lo the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir-I desire to thank the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER for the very hearty co operation extended in connection with "Clean-Up Week" which just closed. It vas one of the most successful weeks of its kind we have had and resulted in the collection of almost 3000 extra loads of rubbish and material of various kinds which otherwise would probably not have beer placed out for removal. This was accomplished without the expenditure of additional money on the part of the city, atthough it was necessary to use 709 extra teams with the usual crews.

GEORGE E. DATESMAN, Director,

Want the Men Brought Home

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger. Sir-The article in the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER of Thursday, May 15, has come to my attention. We would like to add our protest to the keeping of the eighty men belonging to the Twenty-eighth Division in the army of occupation. These men received their training at Camp Hancock with the division, they went overseas with them as members of Company B. 1034 Military Police, they fought through the war with the Twenty-eighth Division and when the armistice was signed they were sent on to Germany with the Third Army. This, however, is not the worst feature of the situation. The families of these men were informed by officers of the division that these men were to be given the oppounity to return home with the Twenty eighth. Such was not the case. were given no opportunity to come home On the contrary, they were asked to sign for an indefinite period of service over

These men have done their share in making the Iron Division what it is, and what is their reward? They have been decrived by ome one, they have been left across the sea with no prospect of getting home and they have been deprived of Pennsylvania's welome to her sons.

Are the people of Pennsylvania going to allow this neglect and mistreatment of their nen go unnoticed? RELATIVES. Philadelphia, May 18.

ORCHESTRA TO PUSH ENDOWMENT FUND

Recommendations for a Permanent Home and a Pension Plan Also Made at Meeting

An adequate endowment, a permanent home and a pension fund were recommended for the Philadelphia Orchestra Association in it - report of the management read at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon, in the Bellevue Strafford.

Alexander Van Rensselaer, president of the association, presided, and Andrew Wheeler was secretary.

The first and most important of the suggestions made in the report is the completion of the endowment, which when all pledges are realized will stand approximately at $800,000. To complete it will require rough ly $1,000,000 more.

The review of the season's work duelt on the difficulties presented to the management on account of the war, and pointed out that despite all obstacles the thebestra gave every concert which it had contracted for. Including the fifty symphony concerts in Philadelphia, the total number of apearances for the season was ninety seven. This included the series in Wilmington, Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Oberlin, Cleveland, Wheeling, Toronto, Pattsville and New York, These latter were especially successful.

In connection with the coming season, if was pointed out that the most important new step was the addition of two weeks to the season, making thirty weeks in all, which will be utilized for touring. Attention was also called to the slight increase in the prices for the Saturday evening concerts, which brings the prices for those concerts some what closer to those for the afternoon and conforms to the practice of all other symphony orchestras.

Miss Frances A. Wister, president of the women's committees, presented a report of the work of those committees, of which the salient feature was their netivity in behalf of the various loans. The grand total subscribed at the Chiladelphia Orchestra for th three last loans amounted to $1,701,300.

The following were nominated and elected for membership in the board of directors, the other members remaining as beretofore: Mrs. William W. Arnett, Edward W. Bok Charles A. Benun, John F. Braun, Jame Crosby Brown, Cyras H. K. Curtis, Mrs. A. J. Dallas Dixon, George W. Elkins, Immediately following the annual meeting the board of directors convened and elected the following officers: Alexander Van Rens selner, president; E. T. Stotesbury, vier president; Arthur E. Newhold, treasurer. and Andrew Wheeler, secretary.

STUDENTS TO BRING MARS' CIRCUS TO EARTH

Annual Frolic of Academy of Fine Arts to Be Revived May 28

Artistic circusing on the planet Mars is the new thrill that the students of the Academy of the Fine Arts will give the public on May 118.

Not that the public is really arged to be present to watch the circus, but the students will permit outsiders to attend, provided they pay an admission fee.

The annual frolle of the students is revived. this year, after a lapse of two years, and innovations promise to be of a startling nature. for costuming suitable for a dance on Mars leaves a great deal to the imagination.

All the students will attend in costume, and the only restrictions are that it shall be appropriate to the character of the dance, and that no one may appear in the costume of the opposite sex or conceal the features by

The spring ball is the final event in the student life at the Academy. On the day following announcement of the prizes is made. Seventy live or more students are busy during this final week hanging their calls or arranging their tables in the annual exhibition. All the work presented has been finished during the present school year, and only those students who have been at the Academy schools for a period of sixteen months are allowed to enter the contests for he prizes.

The committee members in charge of the ball representing the fellowship are Richard T. Dooner, Mrs. tildeon Boericke, Mrs. Mary Townsend Mason, Mrs. Frederick D.
