The first five minutes

More can be done in the first five minutes after a fire starts than in the following five hours. The time to fight a fire is when it is small.

GLOBE Sprinklers are always ready to take advantage of those first five minutes.

GENERAL SAYS WAR MADE MEN FITTER

Don't Call Them Boys, Adds A. D. Andrews, to Prospective Employers

DEVELOPED BY SERVICE

Soldiers who have been in service and are now back home looking for employment are far more valuable to employers than before they went into training, according to Brigadier General Avery D. Andrews, who has just returned from France.

General Andrews was assistant chief of staff to General Pershing.

After two years absence he returned today to his office at the General Asphalt Company, of which he is vice-president. When asked to say something about the "boys' achievements in France General Andrews protested against "these fine fellows being called boys."

"They're men, as fine and strong men as ever lived on earth," he asserted, "and everything that can be done for them should be done."

"Employers should remember that these men who are now back from France after one or two years of service are bigger, finer, and better men, both mentally and physically, than before they went into service. They are now fitted for and gradually will work into more important positions than they occupied when they left."

"On the other hand the men themselves must be rational and reasonable about it, and take whatever vantage they can find to start. They must not be pickers and choosers, but get to work hard and depend upon the advantages which their training has given them, to excel eventually those who did not have that training."

"Let them do here what they did in France. Jump with brave heart into the situation as they find it and go 'over the top' in their jobs as they did in battle by displaying the same American spirit of cheerfulness and persistence under all conditions."

General Andrews was working in khaki in his office this morning. He expects to be discharged formally from the service May 31. Concerning his own great achievements overseas he would say only three words: "Not a word."

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS HELP SALVATION ARMY

Theatrical and Electrical Workers Exceed Quota in Campaign for Funds

R. K. CASSATT AIDS DRIVE

Organized labor shows signs of being the first "over the top" with its quota of funds for the Salvation Army's home service drive.

Heading the list are some of the theatrical workers. Stage Employees' Local No. 8, has collected $300, and International Union of Electrical Constructors, Local No. 5, has gone beyond its quota with $400.

An eleven-act show, breaking the record for Penn Square entertainments, was put on last night by the Philadelphia Entertainment Bureau Managers' Association. It lasted nearly three hours. Hundreds of dollars were subscribed in response to the pleas of "Salvation Nells" who solicited the throng for funds during the show.

Robert Kelso Cassatt, who directed the sales of war saving stamps in this city, heads a committee of private bankers who will aid in the Salvation Army home service fund campaign for $1,000,000, it was announced by Judge John M. Patterson, chairman of the Philadelphia committee, today.

"There are thousands of Philadelphia citizens who have been waiting eagerly for this campaign of the Salvation Army," Major Cassatt said. "There have been too many pennies and nickels dropped into the tambourines in the days gone by. The Salvation Army is entitled to dollars. I am happy to aid in the campaign in whatever way I can."

It was a case of "dollars for doughnuts" yesterday when Salvation lassies went back to trench work and fried the goodies at the Victory statue, Broad street and South Penn square, at Broad and Wharton streets and at Front and Allegheny avenue, from rolling kitchens provided by the Army.

Everybody bought at prices ranging from $1 to $20 per doughnut. The cash so far collected in the drive is $21,295.19 and pledges total $725,401. Scores of large checks are coming into headquarters daily.

SMOKER BURNED IN BED

Mattress Catches Fire Following Party at Ninth and Bainbridge

Alfredo Portino was treated at the Pennsylvania Hospital today for burns about the back and neck, sustained when his mattress caught fire and blazed away while he slept.

Portino rooms on the second-story rear of a house occupied by Louis Brody, at Ninth and Bainbridge streets.

Portino is a sound sleeper, and last evening, after enjoying himself with friends, he went to bed, smoking. He woke up several hours later, to find that his mattress was smoking too; so much so, that he could hardly see his way to stagger from the room and give the alarm.

THROWS HAMMER AT PLANE

But It Goes Through Window and Man Is Arrested

The drone of airplanes kept Oscar Aklund awake last night. He arose early this morning and decided to attack the first plane he saw. He spied one hovering over the home of Walter Lasso, of Main street, Manskunk. Aklund threw a hammer at it. His aim was bad. The hammer crashed through a third-story window of Lasso's house and landed in Lasso's bed.

But Aklund thought he had hit the plane and waited for it to fall. Lasso called a patrolman, who took Aklund for an interview with the district police surgeon.

HURLED THROUGH SHIELD

Navy Yard Truck Driver Injured When Machine Hits Rope

Harry Wax, of 2923 Oxford street, driver of a Philadelphia Navy Yard truck, was hurled through the windshield when the truck was abruptly halted by a rope across South Rittenhouse square. Wax was knocked unconscious and suffered severe cuts and bruises.

During the progress of the flower show in Rittenhouse square yesterday the street had been closed to traffic so the youngsters might enjoy the pony-cart rides which were a feature of the affair. The rope had been stretched across the square to halt traffic, but no patrolman was on duty at the time to warn motorists.

Wax turned the corner at Nineteenth street and Rittenhouse square without noticing the rope. There was a crash when the truck hit the rope, and Wax was hurled through the windshield. He was picked up and carried to the office of Dr. Ernest Laplace, 1828 Rittenhouse square, where his injuries were dressed and he was sent to his home.

40 SERVICES HERE ON MEMORIAL DAY

Glorious Tribute to War Heroes Planned Throughout City

ALL VETERANS WILL JOIN

Philadelphia will pay glorious tribute to its hero dead through a series of forty impressive memorial services on the morning of Memorial Day.

Not only those who gave their lives in the conflict just ended, but those who poured forth their blood in the Civil and Spanish American Wars also will be honored.

Plans for the greatest testimonial ever rendered by the citizens of Philadelphia are being rapidly completed by the officials of the Philadelphia Council of National Defense and the War Camp Community Service.

Veterans from the three conflicts, church congregations and fraternal and other organizations have been asked to join in the services being arranged at forty different public parks in different sections of the city.

The ceremonies will be patterned somewhat after the great thanksgiving services of last Thanksgiving, when the entire city turned out to pour forth its thanks for the signing of the armistice.

Details Are Arranged Lieutenant John A. Bradway, representing the Philadelphia Council of National Defense, and James E. Corneal, representing the War Camp Community Service, were in consultation all morning arranging the details of the coming celebration.

A message will be sent to the park commission at once asking for permits to hold the ceremonies. A speedy reply in the affirmative is expected.

Ministers in the various sections of the city will be asked to take charge of the services in their respective parks and schools and churches, and other organizations participating will be asked to go to certain designated parks so that the services will be as widespread as possible.

The ceremonies in every park will be alike. The time of the beginning of the services will be announced throughout the city by the ringing of church bells and the programs will run on similar schedules and all the exercises should finish at approximately the same time.

May Change Program The program will be short but impressive. It will take place in the forenoon. These two facts, the committee feels, will help draw many who planned to spend the day away from home, but who will attend the services when they realize they will be able to pay homage to those who gave their lives for the country and still have the greater part of the day for their prearranged activities.

The program as outlined is subject to change. It provides for a short

Y. W. C. A. ELECTION IS AGAIN IN COURT

Judge Staake Will Pass on Challenges in Election of Officers

MASTER WITNESSES VOTING

The courts will again be appealed to to decide the fight for control of the Young Women's Christian Association between the so-called "administration" and "insurgent" groups who are battling for a new board of managers. The managers elect the association officers.

The election was resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, because only 258 ballots had been cast up to 10:20 o'clock last night, according to John M. Scott, master of the election, who was appointed by Judge Staake, of Court of Common Pleas No. 5.

So many objections were made to "insurgent" ballots by William M. Deane, attorney for Mrs. Joseph A. Hudson, president of the association and candidate for re-election, that it will be necessary for the court to decide how many of the objections should be sustained. This decision may make a difference in the election returns.

Mrs. George Vaux, Jr., leader of the "insurgent" or "reds," as they have been dubbed by the administration group, is confident of the final result. "We will wipe the floor up with them," she said today.

Mrs. Hudson, equally confident, declared: "Our girls are standing by us loyally."

Virtually every "red" ballot cast was challenged yesterday by Mrs. Deane, but up to a late hour last night Benjamin O. Erick, attorney for the "reds," who seek to make Mrs. John Gribbel president of the organization, had challenged only three "administration" ballots.

The elections yesterday came as a climax to the long and bitter fight for the control of the association. The recent board of managers, headed by Mrs. Gribbel, had been elected in 1917. Mrs. Hudson, having long been stymied by the insurgents, incited to rebellion by

SECOND FIRE IN SCHOOL

Police Probing Mysterious Blazes in Parochial Institutions

The fire marshal and police of the Twenty-fourth district have set out to discover what is the cause of a second fire in the parochial school of the St. Adelbert's Polish Catholic Church, on Allegheny avenue near Edgemont street. About two months ago the parochial school building was destroyed by fire. For temporary quarters the school has since occupied a three-story brick building adjoining the rectory. Last night fire started in that building and was extinguished with difficulty after about $200 worth of damage had been done.

BLOOD GIFT PROVES HELP

Man Believed Recovering From Anemia After Transfusion

James Marks, 2207 North Howard street, in whose interest Jack Toomey, a medical student at the Habermann Medical College, gave more than a pint of his blood through a blood transfusion operation, is expected to recover at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Dr. A. I. Rubenstein, who performed the operation, said today that the "pernicious anemia," from which Marks suffered, appeared to have been overcome by the supply of rich blood from Toomey and that the ill man now has a fair chance to recover.

Toomey was one of more than thirty men who answered an advertisement inserted in a newspaper by Doctor Rubenstein. A reward was offered, but Toomey refused it. He emerged from the ordeal apparently suffering no ill effects.
