Nancy Wynne Talks of the Country Fair Opening-The Emergency Aid Aides to Be Disbanded-Fellowship Spring Ball at the Academy of the Fine Arts Tonight

ecause the preparations for the Devon affair have been so elaborate it would be too bad to have them spoiled by rain. But everything is to go on, rain or shine, you know, even if the society editors have to regale us with accounts of the raincoats every one wore. And there is a variety even in such things nowadays. However, we'll hope for good weather straight through. Pretty nearly every one bas boxes and the showing will go on from a. m. to p. m. every day, but methinks there will be many there who will not go to see King Horse alone. There will be many, oh! many, for that Country Fair, which I must confess appeals to your friend Nancy more than the horses. However, she loves the ponies and horses, only she does not know as much about them. Incidentally, they are to have two ponies for sale on shares, I understand. Shetland ponies! Mustn't they be cunning? The E. A. A.'s will be out there to help, and they'll be at the Abington fete, too, next Tuesday, but after that "there ain't goin' o be no E. A. A.'s." That's true. Didn't you know it?

THE Emergency Aid Aides, or E. A. A.'s, are going to be mustered out, so to speak. Be disbanded; in other words, go out of existence. And the closing exercises are to be held out at Lindenburst, Jenkintown. Mrs. MacLeod is the head of the organization and she will give the party. The exercises are to be at 5 o'clock on the 4th of June, which is Wednesday. We certainly will miss the familiar blue uniform, red trimraings and Sam Browns, won't we? It won' natural to go to any kind of a-well, anything, bazanr, borse show, benefit performance or even dance, without seeing them all over the place. However, it's a wise play. They are not needed any more.

And you cannot say that you were crazy ciations call out to passing men in the street to buy bonds or give to this or that. It's not a good habit, and the sooner they stop it the better.

T OFTEN wonder if we will ever go back to the days when the girls of eighteen. nineteen and twenty were really protected and guarded from the rude and rough exterior. I doubt it. They are used to being free and easy, and it will take some time to get back to the old-fashioned, charming, half-shy, half-sophisticated ways of the times before the war and Lefore the benefit affairs which started the younger girls into appearing in public as they have.

THERE'S good deal of agitation just now about the way the girls and younger women dress in evening clothes. It seems as if we were waking up rather late to remarking about it after it has gone on for several years. But perhaps we were too busy with war work to notice the evening garb until now, and now the cry has come. It's about time, that is sure!

And the little girls, too! Even little girls of sixteen go to parties now with no sleeves in their frocks, just a tiny band over the shoulders which keeps you on tenter hooks all evening for fear the band will snap. Half the time the bodices of the dresses conist of about six inches of material in front and a belt in the back.

I hope the agitation will do something. Modesty is so much more attractive than the want of it that no one could ever lose by practicing it. And half of the apparent want of it comes from thoughtlesness.

DON'T think that I would take from the work done by the younger girls during the war nor from the associ tions they belonged to, for the majority in every case did well and more than well. The way those girls worked and packed in the warehouses and helped in the Red Cross, etc., was simply splendid. But, as is always the case do not always behave well, and then the rest suffer in people's opinions. form may be good in some ways, but if it is not always accompanied by good behavior it is apt to reflect on the association it repre-

THAT will be some party at the Academy of the Fine Arts tonight. It's the Fel-lowships's spring ball, and it's all costume effects, and there are to be prizes for the first dozen costumes. At first I thought it meant that to get a prize you had to wear the whole dozen costumes; but after careful study I decided that it was for the twelve best-looking and most imaginative costumes in the ballroom.

I think I'll go, for those parties are cer-tainly fun. Did I not act in one of the stunts myself one time, and don't I therefore know the excitement thereof?

It's to be called a "Night on Mars," and so you know how wild the costumes can be. because as you know nothing about what kind of costumes the people on Mars would wear (if there were people on Mars and they did wear costumes), there is nothing to curb the imagination as to said costumes. You can think almost anything. Some party, believe me. NANCY WYNNE.

U. OF P. COMMENCEMENT WEEK ANNOUNCEMENTS

Elaborate Plans Made by Seniors for Week of June 13-19-General Wood to Be Orator .

A final dance, an out-of-door luncheon and a banquet, in addition to the customary exercises of Class Day and Commencement Day, have been finally announced as the elaborate program of entertainment for the graduating class at the University of Pennsylvania between June 13 and 19.

On the evening of Friday, June 13, the Alumni Society of the University will entertain the seniors in Houston Hall until the middle of the evening, when the senior dance at the Merion Cricket Club will begin, lasting until the wee small hours of the morning. This is the last chance that the fourth-year class will have to trip the light fantastic.

At noon on Saturday, June 14, luncheon will be served to members of the class and their guests on the campus green between College Hall and Houston Club. A canopy will be spread over the diners. Following this the seniors will join with the alumni in a parade around the campus, terminating at Franklin Field, where the Pennsylvania Varsity will meet Cornell at baseball. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at 10:30 Sunday morning by the Rev. Dr. Edward N. Jeffreys at St. Peter's Church. On Mouday, June 16, the class will hold its last banquet. An elaborate program has been arranged for the occasion, which will take place at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. On Wednesday afternoon the class will assemble in the dormitory triangle for the aniual Class Day exercises and speeches Presentations, prophecy, poem, valedictory, salutatory and singing will compose the program.

The finale will come on Thursday, the 19th, when commencement exercises will be held in the Metropolitan Opera House, with speeches by Governor Sproul and General Leonard Wood.

Appreciation

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Nir-We have encountered many pleas-ant and nice things in our campaign for victory gardens in the last three years, but there is nothing that has pleased us quite as much as your very fine editorial of Saturday, entitled, "A Woman With a Hoe." We certainly appreciate the nice things you say in regard to the importance of victory gardens, and we wish to thank you very much for the very fine space you gave Mr. Pack's speech at Bryn Mawr. P. A Strong Plea for a Parade

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Sir-We agree with you in your editorial in the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER of May 24 wherein you describe the position of a beau who takes his girl to the theatre, but have you stopped to consider that this also sounds there are many, many girls in Philadelphia who have been waiting so patiently for over a year and a half for the day when they would see these same beaus of theirs march ing down Broad street, and now we're wondering if a few committeemen are going to rob us of that long anticipated joy.

We who stayed at home have suffered, too. n uncertainty and many times in cruel reality; surely then you will not deny us that right to watch our boys parading.

Now we know that quite a number of boys' families have wired them to vote for the parade, but how about the poor mothers who, perhaps, through financial difficulties, will be unable to send their sons the coveted message, or, perhaps, would not know how to go about it. Could we not rely upon the generosity of your paper to send a wireless to the different ships telling the boys their families want them to vote for the parade? Then when they do parade you can watch them, feeling that in all sincerity you have backed them up to the very end. A GIRL WHO HAS A BEAU IN THE

Looking Backward

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger Sir-How time changes public opinion! I remember about thirty-five years ago when that little band of Christian soldiers (known as the Salvation Army) wending their way to our western shores, with their cymbals and written upon their foreheads the words "Salvation Army" and parading up and down our highways and in the dark places, praying and singing. The Christian people resented their actions, and said they were violating our Christian Sabbath, upon which the authorities went so far as to disperse them and charge them with being disorderly and making mockery of religion. Looking over a clipping in the EVENING

PUBLIC LEDGER of May 19 I noticed our Vice President quoted as follows:
"While a Presbyterian, I know of no fac tor so important in the rebuilding of human character, the remaking along lines and order of the nation and the reforming of human kind toward democratic principles as is this consecrated band of men and women known as the Salvation Army.' There is an old saying to the effect that "He who laughs last laughs best." Read the testimonials of our boys from overseas and you will be convinced that with all the organizations there was none that performed a greater service. They were right 12 to the firing line belping to care for the sick and wounded. This band commanded the highest admira tion and respect, not only of our own people, but throughout the entire world, a religion that knows no class, no color, no creed. We look in amazement and wonder a

Lithuanians Are Grateful

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Sir-Your appreciative notice of the aid that Lithuanians have given to the flotation of the Victory Loan has just come to our attention, and we wish to thank you for the fairmindedness which prompts you to lay these facts before your reading public.

Lithuanian citizens of the United States have distinguished themselves throughout this war by the wholehearted loyalty with which they have supported the government. They claim no more credit for this than is due to any other element of our population, but are highly appreciative of the fact that you stopped to consider that this also that I due recognition is given them because of the present situation between the United States and Lithmanin.

Lithuania has long had a sympathetic ond with the United States. It dates from 1777 when Kosciusko came to this country to help us in our fight for independence and has been strengthened since by the welcome we have given to almost a million of her sons and daughters who came to this country to find the freedom and opportunity denied them in their own. It now looks to the United States for an act which will bind the two countries even more closely together-American recognition of Lithuania's autenomy and independence.

It is particularly gratifying that influential papers like yours should make note of the loyalty of Lithuanian citizens to American institutions because it makes them hopeful of American co-operation for their national aspirations and enables them to feel that they do not come empty-handed to their adopted country to ask for its help in freeing them from Slavie and Teutonic oppression

FINE ARTS FROLIC SET FOR TONIGHT

"A Night on Mars" Is Title of Affair. Dancing Will Be Enjoyed Until 1:30

The annual frolic of the students of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts will be held tonight at the academy. For the first time in three years the students will have an opportunity of enjoying themselves in their time-honored way. This year the affair is to be known as "A Night on Mars," and the costumes will be unusually landish, as the students are not confined to any artistic or historic period, but may allow their imagination full sway.

Dancing will commence at 8:30 and at 1:30 the committee is no longer responsible for furnishing music, although at previous balls the party has been known to move to Washington Square to greet the rising of the Much secrecy surrounds the subjects of the stunts which will be pulled off. One of the students say that the real charm of "A Night on Mars" is that it admits of so much latitude in the way of surprises.

The spring ball is the final event in the student life at the academy. On the day following announcement of the prizes is made. Seventy-five or more students are busy hanging their walls or arranging their tables in the annual exhibition. All the work presented has been finished during the present school year, and only those students who have been at the academy schools for a period of sixteen months are allowed to enter the contests for the prizes.

The committee members in charge of the ball representing the fellowship are Richard T. Dooner, Miss Gideon Boerick, Mrs. Mary Townsend Mason, Mrs. Frederick D. Mount Mrs. Ethel Herrick Warwick, Miss M. Throdora Burt, Miss E. Corinne Pauli
