

BASEBALL BOXSCORES WILL BE MORE PLENTIFUL TODAY THAN 1918 MODEL STRAW HATS

CHAMPION RED SOX GLAD TO WIN, EVEN FROM LOWLY MACKS

Monarchs of Diamond, After Losing Ten Out of Twelve in West, Not Particular Whom They Beat. Barrow Denies Barry Deal

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger Copyright, 1919, by Public Ledger Co. AFTER annoying the Boston Red Sox for four full and complete innings and threatening to step out and win the ball game at the slightest provocation, our A's dropped into low gear in the fifth, easily assumed their well-known losing stride and allowed themselves to be beaten in the opening battle on the home lot by a score which was not even close. While some will admit Connie's clan had no license to lose the game, the final score is conclusive evidence that they were one-seventh as good as the boys from Bawston.

THE victory was a welcome one to Ed Barrow. His team had a terrible trip in the West, winning but two of the twelve games. The pitchers have not been going well and the heavy hitters have been on a vacation. There seems to be an all-around recovery now and Barrow expects to start a winning streak.

Only Four Clubs Have Chance, Says Barrow

WE MET with some stiff opposition in the West," said Barrow, "but most of our games were won by close scores. We should have won a majority of them, but did not get good pitching and good hitting on the same day. Whenever our hurlers were mowing 'em down the hitters were not on the job, and vice versa when the pitching was poor. In addition, we were away from home, and that counted against us.

"Despite the winning streak of the St. Louis Browns," he continued, "there are only four clubs in the American League, to my way of thinking, that will have a chance to win the pennant. They are Chicago, Cleveland, New York and Boston. The White Sox look like the class of the circuit, for Gleason certainly has his men playing a great game. Cleveland, too, is good; but those two clubs will do for the West. The Browns are a great home club, and that accounts for their winning streak. Just wait until they play on foreign diamonds and see what happens. But I must admit Jimmy Burke has a good ball club.

"I heard a rumor that I wanted to trade Jack Barry for Bobby Roth. That is only a rumor, because I know nothing of it, and this is the first I have heard of the deal. I admit I need a good, hard-hitting outfielder and would like to make a trade for one, but it can't be done now. I suppose that story originated in Cleveland, traveled to Boston and then here. That's the usual route of those stories."

Looking over the dope, we find that the eastern clubs played forty-five games in the West and lost thirty-four of them. Not one came back with an even break, the Yankees having the best record with five victories and six defeats. Washington won two and lost nine, ditto for the Athletics, and the Red Sox dropped ten out of a dozen, returning in sixth place.

CLEVELAND showed a big improvement, and Detroit, after signing Dutch Leonard, began to perk up and look like a regular ball club. The tip is out that the Tigers will be dangerous from now on.

Causey Has Chance to Set 1919 Pitching Record

WINNING streaks come and go, with a particular emphasis on the GO. With a string of seven in a row by Jeff Pfeffer, of the Dodgers, shattered by the St. Looney Cardinals, who could do everything but win a ball game when they were pitted against the Phils, the Giants now boast of the pitcher with the highest run of victories in the Big Show.

Shake hands with Cecil Algonson Causey. Though his name might infer he's not a roque player, never became bow-legged as a result of carrying medals he won at chess, nor does he spend much of his time at tea dansants. Cecil Algonson Causey is an honest-to-goodness pitcher of the Giants, who hung up his seventh consecutive triumph yesterday for J. Jay McGraw when he extracted base hits from the bats of the Dodgers in the first tilt of this all-important series.

The Phillies and Pirates are the only teams of the National Circuit that Cecil Algonson has not beaten this blurb. His start was at the expense of the Braves. He was hit hard in that tilt and Rube Benton was called in to pitch to one batter in the ninth inning when disaster seemed imminent. Two days later he finished out a game against the Braves which was won by the Giants in the tenth inning. Causey, who relieved John Paul Jones in the ninth inning with the score tied, was credited with the victory.

Triumph No. 3 was at the expense of the Robins, allowing them three hits and two runs, neither of which was earned. Came next victory No. 4, when he held the Cubs to four hits and two runs. He followed this up by subduing the Reds with ten scattered hits and five runs, three of them earned.

Last Sunday he held the Cards to three hits, one of them a scratch, and the lone marker hung up by Rickey's men was not earned. Yesterday he rounded out his seventh victory, tying the 1919 record of consecutive pitching conquests.

If the season's best performance for a pitcher before meeting defeat is to exceed seven straight, it appears as if Cecil Algonson Causey will have to turn in the card. Adolpho Luque, of Pat Moran's Reds, had a chance to carry off these curving laurels, but the Phils spoiled his record when they tumbled the Cuban in quest of his sixth straight.

CECIL ALGERNON'S next start on the mound will be watched with more than ordinary interest. If he goes over the eighth hurdle the chances are his name will find a place in the book for a 1919 pitching record.

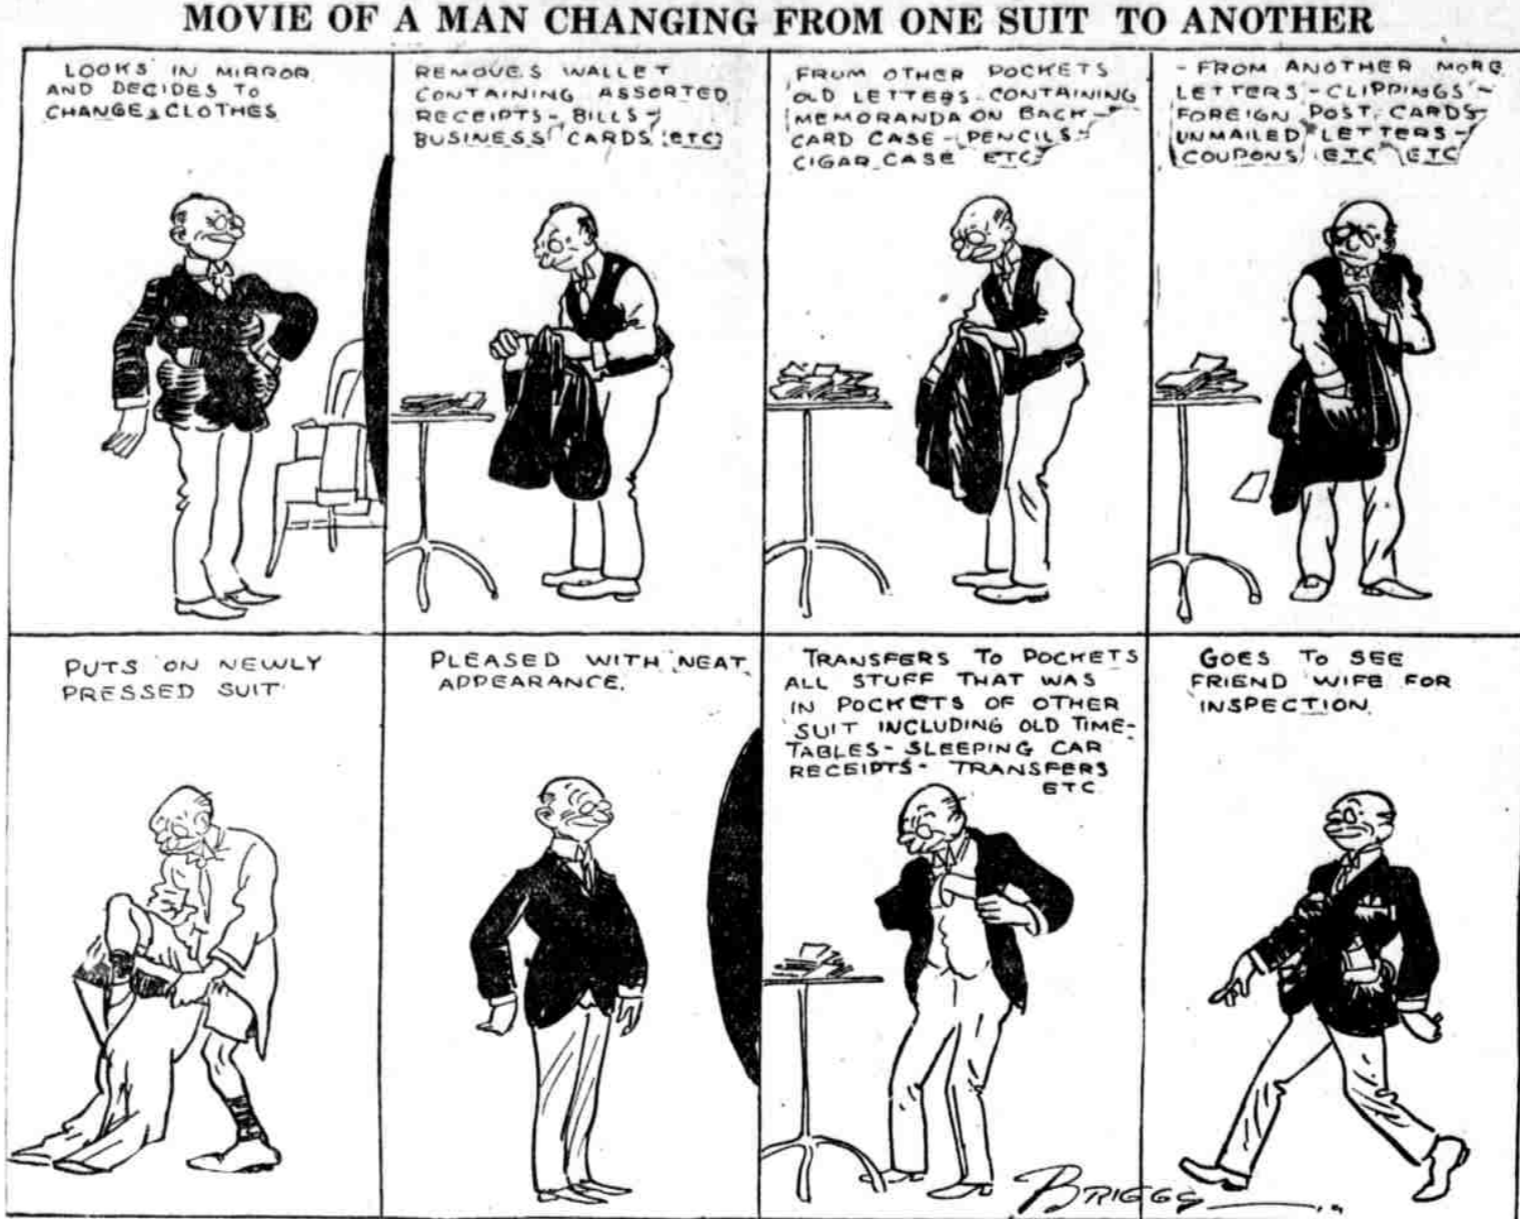

No Chance of Jess and Jack Fighting Before July 4

SOME fight fans are a little over-zealous to think that Jess Willard, the well-known champion, and Jack Dempsey, would be holder of the title, might not wait until July 4 to put on their big act. This is occasioned by yesterday's announcement that the training quarters of Big Jess would be in the same neighborhood as the priming grounds of Dempsey.

No sooner had it been flashed over the wires that Willard would put the finishing touches to his training at a camp less than a mile from Dempsey's quarters than some ring followers began to whisper it about that the champion and challenger might cross each other's trail some bright and sunny day, with the result that instead of a handshake it would be a right or left to the jaw.

Promoter Tex Rickard, who seldom needs a second guess when it is a matter of staging fights, does not in the least fear that Jess and Jack will put their bout for the benefit of one or two lucky spectators who may be in the vicinity of their training quarters when they meet for the first time.

ATHERMOR, Jess and Jack could not get warmed up to a bout if each one or two persons, who, of course, would be deadheads, were present.

GRIFFIN TO PLAY AT PLYMOUTH CLUB

California Star and Willis Davis to Appear in Exhibition Matches

DICK WILLIAMS MAY PLAY

By ROBERT T. PAUL Tournament play will give way to all-star exhibition matches at the Plymouth Country Club, just outside of Norristown, this afternoon. Chairman Warren L. Irish and Paul W. Gibbons, of the committee, have arranged an all-star show that rivals any held in this section. Heading the list of those who will exhibit are C. J. "Doc" Griffin and Willis Davis, two California stars who have only recently returned from service over in France. This will mark the first appearance of Griffin and Davis in this country since they returned home.

Hops for France

Both men are in first-class shape due to playing in various tournaments over in southern France. Griffin will be remembered for his sensational play in the East several years ago, while Davis is a former national champion and ex-Pennsylvania state champion.

It is through the efforts of Beals Wright, the international star, that Griffin and Davis will play at Plymouth. They are stopping in New York and came over early this morning. Others who will play in the exhibition matches are Bill Tilden, Wallace Johnson, Craig Biddle and Seichiro Kaibie.

Hops for France

It is also possible that R. Norris Williams, the former national singles champion and one of the greatest players of the day, who also but recently arrived from France, may play at Plymouth today. Williams at present is stationed at Camp Dix, and if he is fortunate enough to obtain a furlough will go to Plymouth and get into his top.

According to Paul W. Gibbons, it is the intention of R. Lindley Murray to play at Plymouth today. Last week Murray sent word that he would be on hand. Since that time, however, nothing has been heard from him, and the committee is hoping for the best. In all it looks like a gala tennis day for Plymouth, for, in addition to the exhibition matches, there will be semi-final-round matches in the doubles and singles.

What Is the Mystery Golf Tourney at Riverton Today?

The only golf tournament out of the ordinary today is the mystery tournament at the Riverton Country Club. The only thing about it that is not a mystery is that it will take two days to play it. Practically every club in the local district is playing some sort of a tournament today and nearly all of them will celebrate the day with a dance tonight. With a holiday today, a half holiday tomorrow and Sunday coming it will be three big days for the golfers of this section.

STORE BOYS PLAY FAST BUDD TEAM

Manager Meadowcroft's Players Confident of Another Win Over "Rube" McKenty

BARISS OPPOSING HURLER

Two of the city's leading independent baseball teams will battle for supremacy this afternoon, when Strawbridge & Clothier tackles the team representing the E. G. Budd Manufacturing Company on the Strawbridge & Clothier grounds at Sixty-second and Chestnut streets.

Both managers, Truitt and Meadowcroft, have spared no expense in getting their teams together, and all the players are of recognized ability. The manager of the store boys will depend upon "Rube" McKenty to gain the decision, but the Budd players are confident of again defeating him. He pitched against Budd for Marshall E. Smith a few weeks ago and was humbled after four or five innings.

There is considerable rivalry between the players. The line-up: EDW. G. BUDD STRAWBRIDGE & CLO. Barry, cf. Spaulding, lf. Fritz, 2b. Kite, ss. McKenty, ss. Hoffman, cf. Martin, 2b. Hoover, c. Bariss, p.

SPEAKER, BURNS AND JOHNSON BASEBALL'S LEADING STYLISTS

Chick Evans and Nichols, in Golf, and Gans and McFarland, in Boxing, Are Shifting Shadows With No Wasted Motion and Grace Personified

By GRANTLAND RICE Copyright, 1919. All rights reserved. Summer and Dead Soldiers Lost winds from home have found us Through fields of poppy stain; They whisper all around us Of lovers in the lane; Of twilight far behind us That held June's ancient vow; They brought old dreams to find us—As if it mattered now.

Our crosses lean together With each far wind that blows, The same in summer weather As through the winter snows; And no one may remember The snowdrift of the sun, Where June and bleak December To us are always one.

Yes, summer crowns the mountains Where moonlight seeks the plains; There's music in the fountains That leap to summer rains; The dogwood blossoms scatter Their snowdrifts through the glen—For us it doesn't matter, And never will again.

For you the rose, enticing, May climb the garden wall; For you soft eyes are shining Where summer dusk-winds call; But what if June has found us Who may not even know If poppies bloom around us, Or drifts of winter snow!

Sporting Stylists

STYLES operate in sport just the same as in women's dresses and clothing advertisements. Sport also has its stylists just as literature has. Tris Speaker and George Burns are two outfield stylists with no modern equals. Walter Johnson is the pitching stylist of the game. He has ease, grace, rhythm and the suggestion of power and reserve in every thrown ball. He is easy to look at if the ball he throws isn't.

The two leading golf stylists of the U. S. A. are Chick Evans and Gil Nichols. They have an ease and rhythm to every stroke. Among boxers Joe Gans and Paddy McFarland were stylists extraordinary—shifting shadows with no waste motion. As a batsman Frank Schulte was a stylist without a superior. But for that matter two of the greatest of all ball players, Wagner and Cobb, are hardly to be listed in the Stylist League.

STYLE doesn't always bag results. But it's something to look at, anyway, which is quite a part of the game.

CONNIE MACK has a good-looking young ball club this spring, but you can observe from his league standing just what force of habit means. It's quite a bit easier to flop into the collar than it is to crawl out, whether it be in baseball or other walks of existence.

Willard's Vulnerability

IT HAS been shown that Willard could take abnormal punishing without blinking an eye. This is something that works both ways. According to his own statement he had a jawbone and three ribs broken in the Johnson imbroglio. He cracked a knuckle against Moran. This might indicate, in addition to a capacity for soaking up punishment, a certain amount of brittleness. Suppose he cracked a fin in one of the early rounds of the Dempsey fight? If he wasn't knocked out he'd be almost sure to drop the decision.

AND if the Big Fellow was a bit brittle three or four years ago he won't be any less so this impending July.

BINGLES AND BUNGLES

Those Boston Red Sox, rulers of the diamond who lost ten out of twelve games in the West, beat the Athletics, who had dropped nine out of eleven.

There may be only twenty-seven more shopping days until July 1, but those Athletics who need not to West to lose, have 124 more games to play before their schedule is completed," said the fan in the brown derby as he fanned himself with a nut sundae.

Now that Captain Bob Roth has started to hit for the Athletics, it appears as if Whitey Witt has stopped climbing.

Cartoonist Al Demaree drew a victory over Louver Bradley Hoop yesterday. Hoop's Demaree's first start for the Braves. Hoop has yet to start for the Phils.

Jim Thorpe, the Indian, who has had many one-way tickets punched since trying to break into the majors, has been offered a contract by the Philadelphia Athletics. He couldn't win ball games for Java but he has a major start in beating the Phils yesterday.

Pat Moran's Reds climbed into second place yesterday by defeating the Pirates while the Giants bogged Brooklyn.

Erskine Mayer attempted another comeback yesterday since turning his pitching wheel early in the season, but was beaten by Jim McCreary and the Reds, who found him for right hits that produced three runs. The Pirates were able to score only one run on 11 blows off Balice.

Washington already has won a season's record. Clark Griffith's crew apparently desirous of putting the Athletics out of last place, dropped their eighth straight game. The Yankees won by putting over a run in the tenth inning. Seven of the eight reverses were by one-run margins.

The Dodgers virtually handed the first game of their series with the Giants to McCraw's men. Brooklyn had eight hits and scored only two runs, while the Giants batted five tallies on five hits.

Frankie Kautz tripled in the fifth inning yesterday and then made a giant steal of home.

The brilliant defensive work of outfielder Roush and shortstop Kopf played a key role in the Reds' defeat of the Athletics yesterday. The two stars won two putouts and eight assists at short and Roush had seven putouts and two assists in the middle.

Clyde Milan, the veteran outfielder of Washington, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis, but it will be some time before he will be ready to break into a box-score.

Another headline that should be kept in mind is that the Philadelphia Athletics have a new manager, Vincent Lombardi, former Villanova teacher, who once had a tussle with St. Joeey, also was released. Holman was named to succeed him.

Charlie Doolan, skipper of the Reading International, who was elected from the grounds at Reading yesterday for attempting to umpire the game, has been offered another shake-up. He shook First baseman Roush and shortstop Kopf from the job.

Mike Doolan may be the next player to be lost to the Reading International. The former Phil shortstop has been offered a berth as manager of the Memphis Club of the Southern Association and Reading may consent to part with his services.
