A Word About the Editors of "The Digest"

The editors of most publications come into personal touch with the reading public through special articles, editorials, and so forth, in which they voice their individual views. Not so with THE LITERARY DIGEST, whose editorial policy is strictly impersonal, not a hint of the opinions of its staff on any question appearing in its columns. Nevertheless, the editors of THE DIGEST are a very real and powerful influence in the community, because they determine the subject matter of the magazine from week to week and its mode of presentation. Always their study is to be impartial and, self-effacing, yet they leave their expert mark on everything that they handle, for they are all proved experts, each in his particular field, whether it be politics, art, science, religion, letters, or what not. They give you of their best, seeking for no acclaim, but constantly striving to present for your consideration all the news in all its bearings. Their quiet work gives THE DIGEST its acknowledged unique distinction.
