Nancy Wynne Tells Some Interesting Things in the Social World-Motor Messengers to Be Revived-Horse Show Going Strong

HEARD the most splendid accounts of home in Villanova, to introduce their daugh Anne Ashton yesterday. She graduated from Miss Shipley's on Wednesday, and though she had been ill and therefore unable to take the final examinations, it was decided that she should be given her diploma, as her high average through the entire year warranted such a decision.

This was especially fine, as she has been doing very good work with her violin, too, and has been taking in quite a few of the social doings as well. She is to go back to school next year to specialize in several branches, for she is too young to make her debut and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Ashton, have wisely decided on this course. Anne is exceedingly pretty, with very beautiful fair hair, large blue eyes and long lashes. She is tall and slender and her complexion is one that any color can be worn with. I saw her at dancing class one night in a vivid green taffeta frock with a high rolled collar up about her neck and no white between the green and her face, she looked so pretty. It's a gift to have coloring like that!

TOLD you that the E. A. A.'s are to be mustered out on Wednesday, didn't I? Well, now I hear that the National League Aides are to be mustered out on Sunday and the Motor Messengers of the Red Cross on June 2. There are to be parties and speechifying on both occasions.

But I have further news in regard to the Red Cross Motor Corps. What do you think they are going to do? Muster out on Monday and after a couple of days have elapsed they are going to start up their loved old organization, "The Motor Messengers," and the members will be able to re-enlist in the old service.

They will wear uniforms as before, but the Red Cross will no longer appear on their caps and buttons. They will be once again an independent organization. They will not go back to hard work till the summer is over, then a meeting will be called and the Motor Messengers will be a useful organization of the future. As these organizations muster out for war work, one cannot help but praise most highly the work they did. The Motor Messengers were simply marvelous in their untiring work on their appointed days, and did not a little to ex-pedite many undertakings in connection with the government's work. Both the Emergency Aid and the National League found their aides invaluable when it came to hard work, though as I have said before, every one is glad that the time has come to go back to normal things as far as possible.

BY THE WAY, talking about going back to normal things, have you heard as much as I have about unhappiness among some of the young couples who married in haste before the men left for war? It is a sproblem, but it seems to me an awful pity that some of the older and wiser people should not stop talking about it.

Everywhere one goes there's gossip about this one and that one, and if talkers would only allow the poor young people a few months to get used to changed conditions, if those most concerned will only make up their minds that it's for better or worse and stop making the worse into a mountain, when, in reality, it's only a tiny molehill in the beginning, things will straighten out.

It's the gossips in this world who make most of the trouble and start most of said trouble. Only the other day I was told: "Isn't it awful? You know B-. Remember she was married to So-and-So just a few days before he sailed for France and had only known him a month. Well, I saw them at a party the other night and he had had too much wine. Now, isn't that awful?" When I got through with that scandalmonger I think she had changed her mind a bit, or at least had decided to bridle her tongue a little.

Recause a young man who has gon through "hades" over there, and has gone without any wine for the greater part of the time he was in the army, makes a mistake and takes a glass of wine, which ordi narily would not have affected him at all. and does feel it and unfortunately shows that he feels it, the gossips are there to go out and talk about it and he, who is really a studious, sensible fine fellow, goes down in their books as a drunkard.

Just give them a little time, gossips, won't you, and let them have a chance, and perhaps we won't hear of all these threatened divorces and unhappinesses, because two people who have been living very opposite lives require a little time to get adjusted to thinking for two instead of one.

THE Horse Show yesterday was just as exciting as the first day. Just crowds of people and ever so much gayety and happis all round. I should think the women in the rummage sale would be about dead and the cafeteria, too! Just going hard from a. m. to p. m. And, really, with the dinners and dancing it's g. m. before many of them get home.

It's perfect to hear the remarks: One perfectly sweet, dainty little girl in the pink and white costume of an aide approached a dignified gentleman yesterday and remarked: "Oh, how do you do, Mr. -; don't you want a chance on a pig?"

To say that her vis-a-vis was surprised and pained would hardly express it. He lived in an apartment without even a window box, so where on earth could he put a pig, should he be so wild as to chance it. However, he overcame his surprise and took a chance instead on the diamond and gold wrist watch, which was a beauty.

Altogether, the atmosphere out there is so different from that of the last Horse Shows when the war was still on that it's like going into a different world.

EDWARD BOK RESIGNS FROM Y. M. C. A. WORK

Splendid Task Accomplished, He Gives Up War Work Council Chairmanship

The resignation of Edward Bok, chairman for Pennsylvania of the Y. M. C. A. war work council and chairman of the united war work campaign, has been accepted by the executive committee of the Y, M. C. A. war work council in New York.

Mr. Bok was appointed Y. M. C. A. war work chairman for Pennsylvania in Oc tober, 1917, and conducted the "drive" throughout the state in the following November which netted over $10,000,000, the state going $3,000,000 over its quota. He traveled all over the state and organized 137 district committees.

He then organized the Y. M. C. A. personnel board for Philadelphia, became its chairman, and sent 258 Philadelphia men for overseas service. This committee was composed of nine of the most prominent business and professional men of Philadelphia. and so efficient was the work of the organization that it was recently declared to be the only Y. M. C. A. personnel committee in the United States that had a 100 per cent efficiency of its men to its credit. Not a man recruited in Philadelphia has been known at New York headquarters to have failed in his work. In the summer of 1918 Mr. Bok went to France to visit, the front and study the work for himself.

Mr. Bok then organized a woman's Y. M. C. A. personnel board for Philadelphia, and scores of young women from this city, now in Y. M. C. A. oversea service, were recruited through this board. A committee for chauffeurs and automobile mechanicians also followed. Then came a committee for physical directors and educational men.

As chairman of the united war work council campaign for Pennsylvania Mr. Bok conducted the "drive" of November, 1918, and secured a total of $21,000,000 for the state, an excess of $1,500,000 over its quota. For this campaign he secured an allotment of $6,000,000 from the Philadelphia war

"My resignation," said Mr. Bok yester day, "simply means that my work is done in the city and state and I want to be relieved of further responsibilities. I wanted to retire some months ago, but the criticism of the 'Y' came just at this time, and I felt I could do some further service and quiet the unjust attacks upon the work. is over now, and there is nothing further for me to do. I am proud of the wonderful part played by the state, and I am proud of the work done by the 'Y'."

FRANKFORD SYMPHONY HEARD IN CLOSING CONCERT

Orchestra Gives Good Program, With Susanna Dercum as Soloist

The Frankford Symphony Society gave the closing concert of its eleventh season before a good-sized audience in the audi-torium of the Frankford High School last evening under the direction of Hedda van den Beemt, who has acted as conductor for

The orchestra of the society opened the program with the popular and melodious verture, "Pique Dame" of Von Suppe, and played with good intonation and tune. The other orchestral numbers on the program were the "Gitanilla" suite of Lacombe, a group of smaller numbers, ending with the Ballet from "William Tell" and some tune-

Miss Susanna Dercum, the well-known contralto, was the soloist. She sang first the famous aria. "Amour viens aider" fron "Samson and Delita," with orchestral accompaniment, and later three songs by Chadwick, Vanderpool and Woodman, with piano accompaniment. Miss Dercum was in good voice and sang with her usual artistic

OUSTED PASTOR GOES TO BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. George Richmond, Discharged by Episcopalians, Will Take Pulpit in Brooklyn

The Rev. George Chalmers Richmond. erstwhile "stormy petrel of the Protestant Episcopal Church," and former rector of St. John's Church, Northern Liberties, will preach his first sermon in a Baptist church on Sunday, June 15. Announcement to this effect was made by the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, in Brooklyn, who baptized the for mer Philadelphia rector in the Baptist faith last Sunday in Calvary Church, Brooklyn, Doctor Richmond's first pulpit appearance as a Baptist will be made in Greene Avenue

Church, Brooklyn. "Doctor Richmond came before our board of deacons recently and we voted to make him a member of the church," said Doctor Straton. The Baptist Council is to meet here June 2 and act on Doctor Richmond's ordination. It has the power to ordain him a minister in our faith." As to Doctor Richmond's future plans Doctor Straton was unable to say whether the Philadelphia clergyman proposed seeking a church in New York or in this city.

Doctor Richmond was deposed from the Episcopal ministry by Bishop Rhinelander as the result of an ecclesiastical trial that followed a long controversy with the prelate and his predecessor, the late Bishop Mackay Surith. Doctor Richmond in 1907, while pastor of St. George's Church, Rochester, N. .. engaged in a controversy with Bishop Walker concerning the appointment of a wealthy brewer to the standing committee of

COL. ROBERT BACON, DIPLOMAT, IS DEAD

Former Ambassador to Paris Served With Pershing in France*

New York, May 30.-Colonel Robert Bacon, formerly ambassador to France, died at 11:30 o'clock last night at the Eye and Ear Hospital, where he underwent an opera tion Saturday for mastoiditis.

Colonel Bacon was born in Boston, July 1860, and rowed in many a victorious Harvard crew. He later became associated with J. P. Morgon & Co., of New York, and with Drexel & Co., in Philadelphia. He was assistant secretary of state in President Roosevelt's cabinet. Shortly after America entered the world war, Mr. Bacon, who had been a member of the advisory board of the American Defense Society, entered the army as a major the United States Reserves. He was transferred in May, 1917, to the staff of General Pershing, and went to France in that capacity, where he served continuously with the American expeditionary force with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

In the years intervening between Colonel Bacon's banking and business activities and his entrance into military life, he had figured in the diplomatic and political arena.

Whether it was his close association with Theodore Roosevelt, at Harvard, as classmate and intimate friend, that gave him his taste for public affairs, or whether he inperited this liking from his New England forbears, who for eight generations had been prominent in the communities where they lived, it is a fact that Mr. Bacon, after retiring from Wall street, where he had been a dominant figure, and spending a year or two in Europe for the recovery of his health, which had suffered to some extent in his business activities, found the transition into public life quite easy when he accepted the post of assistant secretary of state, tendered by Elihu Root in 1905.

While holding the post of assistant secretary, in which Mr. Bacon had shown remarkable diplomatic aptitude, President Roosevelt asked him to become ambassador to Germany, but the post was declined. When President Taft offered him the post of ambassador to France in December, 1909, Mr. Bacon accepted and filled the place with distinguished ability until January, 1912.

CAN'T GAS OLD SOL In August, 1916, Mr. Bacon, in the heat of a presidential campaign, announced his Presence of Huga Volume of Vapors candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, as successor to Senator James A. O'Gorman. The candidacy was won, however, by William M. Calder, after a brief fight.

ATHENS PROFESSOR TO TALK ON GREEK

Dr. Andreades Will Address Members of University of Pennsylvania Faculty Tomorrow

Dr. A. Andreades, Greek professor of the University of Athens, who has just arrived in America on an important mission, will lecture before the members of the University of Pennsylvania faculty tomorrow night at the home of Dr. William N. Bates, professor of Greek, 220 St. Mark's square.

Among Professor Bates's guests, in addi-tion to the members of the University faculty, will be a number of prominent Greeks of Philadelphia and scholars interested in economic and political science. Professor Andreades is the author of numerous works on political economy and a writer of international repute on the Near Eastern ques-

Professor Andreades received his degree of doctor of law from the University of Paris with the highest distinctions. He studied in England and is the author of the "History of the Bauk of England." In the last fifteen years he has written articles and studies for both Greek and French, as well as English, publications on the Near Eastern problems. He is president of the Anglo-Hellenic Lengue of Athens, a cor-responding member of the Societe d'Economic Politique, the Royal Economic Society and the Academy of Political Science of New York. He was the Greek censor-inchief during the Balkan wars.

Professor Andreades represented Greece at the congress of the league of nations at London in February, headed the delegation of Greek professors who visited the leading universities of France, England and Italy, and was in Paris from the beginning of the Peace Conference, connected with the Greek pence delegation.
