

British Airship Will Try to Cross Atlantic : Bee Culture for Soldiers : Divers Views

THE GIANT DIRIGIBLE R-34 was formally taken over by the British Admiralty recently. It is announced that an attempt will be made to fly across the Atlantic within the next fortnight.

BEEES CAN be handled with impunity by trained keepers, but novices find it advisable to wear masks. A government demonstrator is teaching bee culture to wounded soldiers who expect to be farmers on a government farm in Maryland. The soldiers are from Walter Reed Hospital, and even the nurses are interested in the demonstrations.

ARRAYED in the quaintest of grand mother's days. The shawl is of soft pink, brown and cream, attractively blended.

NEW JERSEY'S newest senator, Walter Evans Edge, at his desk in Washington.

"THE AMERICAN SOLDIER," a pretty Parisienne posing as the khaki-clad fighter from the west who came to France to fight for freedom.

LITTLE PERFORMERS from Sunnyside Day Nursery, Jessie Hickok, Anna Hoar and Ida Parkhill, who appeared in "A Pantomime" at the Conference of Philadelphia Association of Day Nurseries in the Rose Garden of the Bellevue-Stratford.

MRS. LESLIE HABLES, of King City, Calif., champion woman bowler and holder of three world's records for women. Mrs. Hables participated in the recent Pacific Coast Women's Bowling Championship matches at San Francisco, Calif.