Next Week's Beneficiaries for Welfare Dances—Nancy Wynne Sees a Pretty Costume—Rainbow Fete at Huntingdon Valley Very Successful

I HEAR that the Harrison Day Nursery, of which Mrs. Ben Frazer is president, and the San Cristoforo Day Nursery, of which Miss Miriam Roberts is in charge, are to benefit by the welfare dances at the Ritz next week. The dances have been moved to the roof, you know, which makes it much nicer on these hot nights. Utendals Baird Caner and her brother, Charles Baird, who made such a hit with their dance the other night, are coming to repeat it on Friday night, and next week there will be competition dancing. Sounds quite like Cape May, doesn't it? If they could just import some salt air and a few breezes it would be the real thing, wouldn't it?

I SAW Dorothea Obersteiner the other day in an awfully becoming get-up. It was a blue and white georgette crepe, the ground of soft, dull blue and the white in diamond-shaped blocks of narrow stripes. That doesn't describe it very well unless you've seen the dress, but it was lots of fun to think of. Then she wore the hat, close fitting, of tan straw, with the crown almost entirely covered with forget-me-nots. She has blue eyes, you know, and very light hair, and the effect was most attractive.

THE Rainbow Fete yesterday was really wonderful. It was held at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club to help the Abington Hospital, and it was a great success, if you ask me. It was quite distinctly military, you know, and all the aides wore the little blue of the Rainbow Fete, and there were hats representing the Salvation Army, the Y. M. C. A., the K. of C. and the Hostess House of the Y. W. C. A. There was a bugler, who gave the calls for various activities—attention, assembly at 2 o'clock and call to the Fashion Show at 3 o'clock, and that was some Fashion Show, too. Perfectly stunning gowns, such good-looking mannequins, and how the mannequins kept from behaving like human beings and speaking to their friends while posing is more than I can tell you!

Mrs. Nicholas Biddle was a stunning model and her husband Harry Dillard. But how on earth did they stand those fur coats and cloaks? Then there was drill call for the E. A. A.'s, and, oh, but those girls did look hot! They did awfully well, though, in spite of the heat. Then there was a mass call, which everybody welcomed with great pleasure. And at sunset that wonderful retreat. I don't think there's anything quite like that, just at the end of the day, when everybody quiets down to the strains of the bugle and then that strong, compelling note of the bugle and the flag fluttering down and every man in uniform standing at salute, and then that moment of silence after the bugle's still, very quietly but undeniably thrilling. Later the bugler played tattoo and finally taps.

AND speaking of bugle calls, a well-known Philadelphia call very properly called down the other day in connection with some of the kind. He's an artist, and he was doing a soldier picture. He wasn't quite sure about some detail or other of the blouse that he was making, and he went out on a still hunt for a man in that division to pose for him, or at least to stand still long enough for him to see what he wanted. So he started up Broad street, and suddenly at the same time that a parade was doing the same thing, and about the first thing he saw was a soldier wearing the blouse that he was after. Up he breezed to him, and as he breezed the band started the national anthem. Far be it from him to notice national anthems when he was getting information. So he continued to breeze. "I beg your pardon," he started, "but I think you can help me." The soldier turned around, with his overseas hat in his hand, reached up his hand to remove the artist's straw hat from his head, handed it to him gently and remarked politely, "Now, just what was it you wanted?"

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES At the wedding of Miss Mildred W. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Anderson, of Louisville, Ky., and Mr. James Edward Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Hooper, of Mermaid lane and Cherokee street, Chestnut Hill, which will take place on June 18 at 8 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church, of Louisville, the bride will be attended by Miss Josephine Hooper, sister of the bridegroom, and will be Miss Mary MacLoud and Miss Sarah McDermott, of Louisville. Mr. Robert P. Hooper, Jr., will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will include Mr. John Wynne, Mr. Lawrence L. Anderson, Jr., brother of the bride, and Mr. William Brown, of Louisville. Mr. Charles Carrigan and Mr. John Big, of this city, and Mr. Louis Erskine, of New York. The wedding will be followed by a reception. Mr. Hooper and his bride will spend the summer in Ruxton, Md., upon their return from their wedding trip.

A wedding of international interest took place in the Russian Church, New York, today, when Miss Cecilia Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Campbell Higgins, was married to Mr. Andre Kalpachnikoff, of Russia. The wedding was attended only by the immediate families and a few intimate friends. The bride was unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Kalpachnikoff will leave today for China on a business trip and will spend next winter in New York. Among the Philadelphians who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Buckley, Mrs. Edward Dale Toland, Mrs. Edward Dale Toland, Jr., Mrs. George McCull, Mrs. Nicholas G. Roosevelt and Miss Julia Rush. Mrs. Kalpachnikoff is a niece of Mrs. Toland and Miss Rush.

Mrs. Archibald C. Thomson and her son, Mr. Rodman Wainwright, 2d, of Maryland Woods, Ardmore, will give a dinner dance on Saturday evening in honor of Miss Rebecca Thomson. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh I. Wilson, of Bryn Mawr, and their mother, Miss Helen Wilson, a debutante of next season, will go to Washington on Friday to attend the wedding of Miss Marie Palmatier and Mr. Frederick Dixon.

$1,000,000 ASKED TO HELP MOTHERS

Need for State Aid Emphasized by Loss of Many Husbands Through Influenza

Representatives of the city government and of civic and charitable agencies here petitioned the Legislature to grant the full appropriation of $1,000,000 asked for by the mothers' assistance fund of Pennsylvania, to care for dependent mothers with children.

The influenza epidemic has so greatly increased the number of widows needing help that unless the Legislature takes action there is danger there may be widespread suffering among fatherless families in Philadelphia, according to the appeal.

The appeal was sent in the form of the following telegram: "Serious distress already exists and more suffering is imminent among women with small children whose husbands died in the influenza epidemic. The burden of caring for these families is greater than the private charities can bear."

"The undersigned, having made a thorough investigation of the situation, believe that the only effective available means for meeting this distress is through an adequate appropriation to the mothers' assistance fund. For the sake of 500 widows and fatherless children in Philadelphia and of hundreds more throughout the state we urge upon you the immediate approval of the full appropriation of $1,000,000 to the mothers' assistance fund now under consideration by your committee."

It was signed by Dr. Wilmer Krusen; Walter I. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce; Joseph P. Gaffney, chairman of Councils Municipal committee; Mrs. John W. Wainwright, of 1813 North Fifteenth street, and Mr. Sidney Klein, of 3126 Old York road, who recently returned from France, will take place at 6 o'clock on Wednesday, June 11, at Mercantile Hall. Mrs. Herbert Sostman will be matron of honor and the best man will be Mr. George Seaver, of Boston, formerly of this city. The wedding will be followed by a large reception.

A victory dance was given last evening at 1818-20 Market street, by Excelsior Chapter, No. 58, O. E. S. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daroff, of 1813 North Thirty-third street, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Rose Daroff, and Mr. Allen Kaplan, on June 17, at the Mercantile Club.

At a picnic given by the A. S. C. Girls last week at Wissahickon Park the following were present: Miss R. Abrams, Mr. M. M. Drogan, Miss A. Brown, Mr. L. Samuels, Miss F. Stern, Mr. E. Goldberg, Miss A. Gottesfeld, Mr. H. Manchin, Miss R. Herman, Mr. A. Bernstein, Miss A. Tartman, Mr. J. Levin, Miss C. Ellis, Mr. M. Luber, Miss E. Hoffman, Mr. I. Fienstein, Miss M. Cohen, Mr. D. Shuler, Miss B. Cohen and Mr. N. Brody. This is the last affair of the season to be given by the A. S. C. Girls.

Miss Helen D. Baker entertained at a small theatre party last Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Jessie Leah Ames and her bridesmaids, Miss Ames's marriage to Mr. James Taylor Hawthorne will take place on the evening of June 11 at the Bellevue-Stratford.

MACCABEES OPEN CONVENTION TODAY Reception Will Be Held Tonight in Honor of Founder, Miss Bina M. West

Delegates from all parts of this state will attend the quadrennial convention of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees to be held in the Hotel Walton today and tomorrow. The sessions will be directed by Miss Nellie Lounsbury, of Warren, state chairman. A reception will be held this evening in honor of Miss Bina M. West, of Port Huron, Mich., founder and supreme leader of the association. Miss West is one of the leading women fraternalists in this country.

During the convention delegates will be appointed to represent the state association at the "supreme review" to be held at Port Huron in July under direction of Miss West. The committee in charge of the convention includes Supreme Chaplain Miss Minnie E. Burgin, chairman, assisted by the commanders of the various associations in this city, Mrs. Cora Emery, Mrs. F. M. Helms, Mrs. Georgia England, Mrs. Carrie Posner, Miss Lena Sechrist, Mrs. Hanna Binkley, Mrs. Louisa M. Jones, Mrs. Mary Crouch and Mrs. Marian Nicholson.

Pennsylvania has the record of being the leading state in the woman's benefit phase of Maccabee work for the year.

IN RITTENHOUSE SQUARE

Final Week of "Fiddlers Three" This will be the last week of "Fiddlers Three" at the Forrest. Marjorie Pringle, who is taking the prima donna role, has made a success with her rich voice, graceful presence and clever acting. The final performance will be on Saturday night.

Mr. Titus and his bride will leave on a short trip and will spend some time in Atlantic City. They will be at home after June 23 at 2029 North Twenty-fifth street.

DANCING IS FINE, BUT 'NUFF, CRY A. E. F. GIRLS Phila. Y. W. C. A. Worker Does Not Want to See Waxed Floor Again for Twenty Years

"I am so tired! When I get home I shall never dance again; not for twenty years!" Miss Marjorie Persons, a Philadelphian, who was for two years secretary for the East Central field committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, 630 Witherspoon Building, voiced the sentiment which animates virtually every woman worker in France these days, in a letter sent recently to Miss Esther Hawes, field executive.

Miss Persons is now with the signal corps at Treves, Germany, in a house which the United States Government has taken over for the Y. W. C. A., a building equipped completely with linen, silver and four maids.

"Life is indeed very pleasant in the army of occupation," Miss Persons writes, "and I can't get believe that I am in Germany; but yes, there are times, too. I have been crying for two days, and I have to see the German servants how to do them."

Miss Persons met General Pershing and during one of her trips to Paris encountered Admiral and Mrs. Benson, who formerly lived in this city. "Thank goodness we are going to stay home tonight," Miss Persons writes fervently. "I have been to three dances already this week. I am going out on official dances and just to get out of men's. I almost feel as though I'd never want to see men or hear dance music again!"

Her sentiment is that of all the American girls who have been caught in the "dancing mania" of Europe. All over France there are slender brown figures dancing.

It is a natural reaction after the excessive strain of the war, and so the girls must dance too. None of them signed up for such overseas service. But the girl who can't do it, might as well be back home.

British Honor Pessoa London, June 4.—(By A. P.)—The government gave a dinner in honor of Dr. Pessoa, I am going out on official House last night. Earl Curzon, Lord Keston, presided. The sixty-five guests included the lord chancellor and the home secretary. The ceremonial exchange of visits began today.

Band Concert Tonight The Municipal Band will play tonight at Jefferson Square, Fourth street and Washington avenue.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. GUMMERE Alert, Keen Scholar and Charming Gentleman, Writes A. Edward Newton

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: "Gummere is dead!" I kept repeating these words to myself yesterday afternoon as I walked across the beautiful campus of Haverford College after the simple service over the remains of my dear old friend.

"Gummere is dead!" I wonder how many people in Philadelphia understand that one of its most distinguished citizens—in some respects its most distinguished citizen—has passed away, for Gummere was reared and spent the greater part of his life at Haverford, on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad is just as much Philadelphia as any other street.

"Gummere is dead!" That alert, keen, intelligent scholar and charming gentleman—we shall never see him again; but we shall never forget him. It has been my privilege to live on terms of intimacy with a good many college professors; Felix Schelling, of Pennsylvania, I have known for more than thirty years. Goodwood, the head of the English department at Princeton, I count as one of my warmest friends; and Tinker, "dear old Tink," the idol of Yale—have we not walked each other's legs off book hunting in London? There are a lot beside, but all English scholars were accustomed to doff their hats to Gummere.

Gummere was in a class by himself. There was only one other man in it, Kittredge, of Harvard. Sometimes when Gummere forgot himself and showed what a wealth of learning was concealed beneath his customary modesty, we, at the club, used to say to him, "Come, come! Gummere. You are not Kittredge, you know." How he would smile and say, "I have been known to be in Boston and lunch with Kittredge at the 'Club of Odd Volumes,' in Mt. Vernon street, and I told him this story. 'Did you ever know a more wonderful man?' he said, and, of course, I never did."

What was his subject at Haverford? It was literature, of course, but what literature it is not for me to say. The literature cannot be taught; the mistake so many scholars make is in trying to teach it. As in the old adage, "one can lead a horse to water yet can't make him drink," so it is with literature. The best that one can do is spread the table bountifully and say, "Dinner is served," suggesting perhaps a wise sequence of dishes and the wines that best go with each. This was Gummere's plan.

What a range he had! Sometime ago one of the trustees, or board of governors, or overseers, or whatever they call themselves, out at Haverford, came visiting from a long illness, sent to the library for some novels when he discovered to his surprise that the college library contained very little fiction. He sent for Gummere and said, "I have been reading to the librarian and I want the money spent in buying fiction—good stuff, you know, the sort of novels that last." Gummere told me the story himself and he told me, too, of the novels that he bought. "All my favorite authors," he said, "reeling off a list which might have led you to believe that he was the most inveterate novel reader that ever lived, rivaling the late John G. Johnson or my old friend Judge Sulzberger."

And he has gone! Gummere has gone! I have referred to his friendly rivalry with Kittredge. In another respect the Gummere family impinge upon a Boston tradition. Boston has its Adamses; we have our Gummere.

There is no doubt whatever that the Adams family is the most distinguished family this country has yet produced, but the Gummere family press hard upon it. Gummere himself was of the third generation of teachers, and his oldest son, whom we call Dick, that fine Latin scholar, is no not the headmaster of the Penn Charter School? The little house in which Gummere lived as a child still stands only a stone's throw from the larger residence where the funeral was held yesterday. He is dead, but the family lives, and will continue to do honor to the name. A. EDWARD NEWTON. Philadelphia, June 3.

Defends Ukrainians To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Sir—With greatest pleasure I am reading every day your estimable paper, because here I find some news about Ukrainians, which interest me much.

In the article "War on Ukrainians, Only with Candids," the correspondent of the Associated Press interviewed Mr. Paderewski the Polish premier. Mr. Paderewski is quoted as saying regarding violation of Ukrainian armistice, "Polish government did not violate the Ukrainian armistice, attacking in eastern Galicia, because we signed armistice with Petura's Government, which is the real Ukraine Government and has no connection with Ukrainian Candids in Galicia, who had been attacking us and had to be suppressed."

I must confess I was surprised. It is obvious, Mr. Paderewski wished to lead into error the public opinion of the U. S. about the true eastern Galicia situation, which is as follows: After the Austrian collapse last fall, the Ukrainians, which constituted 75 per cent of all population in eastern Galicia, according to the principle of self-determination, established their own republic as West Ukraine. Based on January 22, 1919, the government of West Ukraine proclaimed union with the Ukraine of Russia, headed by Petura's Government and since that time Petura's Government executed power in both parts of Ukraine. Mr. Paderewski's statement, that the Polish Government did not violate Ukrainian armistice, aimed at justification of Polish aggression against the Ukrainians. Mr. Paderewski calls four million Ukrainians in eastern Galicia Candids because they are striving for freedom and he wants them subjugated at any cost. If he succeeds, there will never be peace in that part of Europe, and the Ukrainians of eastern Galicia will never cease fighting until they will be free. Rather they will die than bear the hated Polish yoke.
