

KAISER SAWS TREES TO REWARD LOYAL

Cuts 77 Saplings Into Blocks Engraves Them and Sends Pieces to Faithful

ROYAL "HUND" SUFFERS

Amerongen, May 31.—Correspondence of the Associated Press.—Seventy-seven trees sawed into logs in one day is the best record attained by William Hohenzollern since his flight into Holland and his semi-imprisonment in the castle of Amerongen. William II completed on May 14 the sawing of 3000. The last of these was cut into about thirty small blocks, which were taken to the ex-kaiser's apartments in the castle and there marked by his own hand with the date of the occurrence.

On this occasion, as when the 1000th and 2000th trees were cut, blocks were presented as souvenirs to several members of the suite and to the workmen in the castle garden who help in arranging the trees for sawing. Most of the remaining blocks were then packed in a case and sent off to Germany for distribution among those who have remained true to the memory of their former ruler.

It must not be imagined that the trees sawed by William Hohenzollern are giants of the forests. Most of them are mere saplings. The ex-kaiser complained about the smallness of the trunks brought to him, and recently some trees of from three to six inches in diameter have been placed on the sawing block for him. He sometimes becomes very nervous when working at his self-imposed task, and is inclined to snap out a sharp remark to the liking of those aiding him, whether they be ordinary laborers employed by Count Bentinck or members of the former monarch's suite.

This occurs occasionally when a bent tree trunk is placed on the block, and in order to avoid such occurrences orders have been given that only straight limbs be brought into the shed, so that when they are laid on the block ready for sawing they shall not move. The trunks are all marked in advance with white chalk at the places where they are to be sawed.

On the day when the ex-kaiser completed his three thousandth tree there was a near-tragedy in the grounds of the castle. Cynthia, the former kaiser's mistress, was accompanying his mistress in the garden when he perceived the castle cat. Poesie, the mother of a litter of four kittens, when Cynthia approached the basket where the kittens were lying, Poesie sprang at Cynthia's nose. A shriek from a nearby attendant did not frighten the cat, which was protecting her young. The kaiser became terribly excited, and some one cried, "Kill the beast!" This, however, was unnecessary, as a gardener crept up from behind, seized Poesie by the neck and carried her off to a stable, to which her kittens were later brought. Since this she has been locked in the stable. Cynthia at last accounts was still suffering from several severe scratches.

Japan Becomes "Western" Nation

disappointed brothers without even letting them see the paper which disposed of them. And the disappointed brothers receiving the chattels joined the combination with western powers!

Who Wins, Yellow or White? What is it that happened? A great victory for the yellow world? Or a great victory for the white world? A vast debate will rage about this subject, especially in the United States, where, by reason of our interests in the Pacific, the people of the western states at least watch jealously every development of Japan in the Far East.

It may be granted that the port in Shantung and the power over the railroads there mean a greater Japan. Probably Japan has now an access to natural resources in China which will make her one of the three great powers of the world. Whether she will be third or fourth will depend upon her own, what capacity France shows to develop into a great industrial nation through the possession of the coal and iron of Alsace-Lorraine and of the Sarre and whether her victory and her enlarged opportunities will awaken France into new fruitfulness so that she can people her empire in northern Africa.

France has a bigger possibility in northern Africa than Japan has in China. Northern Africa lies right at her doors, a rich country waiting to be made, with room for a large population in a practicable climate. China, on the other hand, is overcrowded already and is overworked with a people with whom the Japanese cannot compete, whose scale of living is even lower than that of the Japanese. Japan cannot flow over into China and, like England, become a great empire by overseas dominions occupied by her own people. Japan has not yet opened the way to greatness in the only direction in which another island kingdom has become great, through peopling other parts of the earth.

At most she has gained a right to exploit China, similar to that which England and France have long enjoyed and to that which Germany, as a consequence of her defeat, has been forced to surrender. What Japan has gained is doubtless something much larger than what these other powers enjoy or have enjoyed, and on account of Japan's nearness to China it is doubtless of much greater value, but it is the same kind. And no one thing of European rights in China is contributing largely to the greatness of any European nation. The chance which they all have is a chance to exploit China—not a chance to found an empire there. The opportunity is commercial not political.

good laborers, who can live on less than the people of Japan can live on. But riches will not make Japan formidable. To be a great nation a country must have a numerous population and immense natural resources. The future lies with the industrial nations. The war has proved that. It lies with the United States, with the British empire, especially the colonies; with France, perhaps, if she makes the most of her possibilities; with Germany, if she recovers from the war, and with Russia, if she does not become another China, subject to exploitation by the rest of the world. The colonization of Siberia by Japanese and the possession of its natural resources would make Japan one of the greatest powers of the world. The chance does not lie in China.

Yellow Combination Improbable And the idea may be dismissed from the mind that Japan will turn China into a great Asiatic power—an ally in a great yellow combination for dominating the world. Japan has now definitely joined the group of western powers against the East. The league of nations or Entente, which is the vital part of the league, is a white man's combination. It has just deliberately rejected the yellow man's plea for an extremely moderate recognition of the equality of races. And, nevertheless, Japan has joined it.

Moreover, as respects China, Japan is now put into a class with the yellow races. She is an exploiter, not a supporter and leader of China. She is perhaps the leading exploiter. But still her interests with respect to China are going to be the same as those of Great Britain and France and to a less extent the United States. If you make a man your partner in exploiting some one he is less to be feared than you excluded him. If there is anything wrong about the transaction he is bound to you by sharing the guilt.

Japan Doesn't Want Strong China Japan will not want a strong China. In this connection it will be remembered that when the other powers wanted China to enter the war against Germany Japan opposed her entrance; and the ground of Japan's opposition was that entrance into the war would cause such a moral awakening in China that Japan could not view it otherwise than with anxiety. This was given officially as the reason. An aroused China threatens Japan, an inert China subject to exploitation ensures Japan's continuance as the leading Asiatic nation and Japan's gradual enrichment. Therefore there is no danger of Japan's arming and training China and making a formidable yellow power for the conflict which some people see coming between the East and West in the distant future.

Japan's New Business Partners The entrance of Japan into the bankers' consortium is the logical development of Japan's joining with the west in the exploitation of China. Japan is now, or its business interests acting with the support and approval of its government, are a partner sharing equally with business interests of the United States, England and France in the commercial opportunities presented by China.

pose they are benevolent. Japan shares in the benevolence. She is neither a better nor a worse friend of China than is any of the great western powers. Her old pretense of being a yellow brother and therefore better trusted than the western nations is ended. She has demanded and received her sphere of influence in China. She is a partner in the consortium. The favorite Chinese diplomatic policy of playing Japan against the United States, each of whom professed to be a better friend of China than any one else in the world, has to be abandoned. Japan and the United States are partners in the commercial development of China, and if the United States has not a foothold in China, if any rate it has signed away to Japan without even consulting its good friend at Peking a vast sphere of influence in China.

Japan cannot rouse China to expel the European nations which possess spheres of influence in China. If she does, she is arousing China in the end to throw out Japan herself.

East Becomes West So far as the East is concerned Japan has definitely become a western nation. She is exploiting the East. She is a partner in the consortium. Her influence in the East. The process which commenced when an American warship opened Japan to the western world is completed. Japan is westernized. All the powers in the new combination to control the western world are interested in maintaining the status quo. The league of nations is a device to maintain the status quo. The status quo requires a China without a sharp nationalistic conception, non-militaristic, developed only to open its natural resources to the western world, and to afford a better market to the western powers. Japan is vitally interested in that kind of China. A China that might cause anxiety to the western world is infinitely greater anxiety to Japan, whose position as the dominant power in the Orient, representative of the five-power combination cemented at Paris and targeted upon the Anglo-Saxon control of the seas, would be threatened by the emergency of a nation of 400,000,000 people.

Some persons, propagandists for China, say that Japan is only nominally joined the consortium; that her influence in China, in whose cabinet are many agents of the island empire, she will block every development the bankers' group attempts. But this prediction overlooks the weakness of Japan's position apart from the Anglo-Saxon combination. Japan has a vital interest in retaining the friendship of the United States and England. They control the seas; they control the credit of the world; they control most of the national resources. As an island kingdom Japan lies under their suzerainty. Even to profit in a larger way by the opportunities China presents, Japan must go to England or rather to the United States for capital.

The war has taken away from Japan liberty of action. She has now no choice. She must co-operate with the ruling combination. She has nowhere else to go. And she is relatively so weak that she must co-operate, generally speaking, upon their terms.

Has Lost Her Vantage Point Before the war or during the war various combinations were possible. She might join with Germany, she might join with Russia. England and the United States had not clearly joined together. Japan was independent. She was sought. In the recent struggle she possessed for a long time the balance of power. By joining Germany and attacking the British in the East she might have changed the final result. She is no longer thus sought. She must act with those who have been left masters of the world or be sadly and dangerously alone. She cannot safely block the development projects of the business representatives of the other powers in China while the present world combination lasts.

CAVELL BETRAYAL BRINGS SPY TO TRIAL

Sixty Witnesses Are Called to Testify Against Gaston Quien Next Month

Paris, June 9.—Gaston Quien, also known as Luc, who, it is believed, played a prominent part in the betrayal of Miss Edith Cavell, who was executed by the Germans at Brussels in October, 1915, will be placed on trial next month.

A long preliminary inquiry conducted by Captain Grebaut, of the Sixth Military Court, established that Quien was serving a sentence in the jail at St. Quentin in 1914 and was liberated when the Germans first took the town. It is said he entered the German service as a spy and got employment in Miss Cavell's hospital at Brussels. Soon after he began to work there, it is alleged, Miss Cavell was arrested and executed. Quien was afterward sent to Switzerland as an invalid. Sixty witnesses have been called to testify in the trial. They include Princess Maria of Croix, who also was denounced to the Germans by Quien, and Madame Bovard, who was tried at the same time as Miss Cavell.

UN ACCORDO TRA GLI ALLEATI E ORLANDO

I Piani Relativi alla Questione dell'Adriatico Sarebbero Stati Approvati

Parigi, 9 giugno.—Il Presidente del Consiglio dei Ministri Italiani, On. Orlando, capo della delegazione italiana alla Conferenza della Pace, ha avuto una conferenza alla frontiera italiana col vice-Presidente del Consiglio dei Ministri Onorevole Colosimo, col quale ha discusso i piani concernenti il problema dell'Adriatico, piani che sarebbero stati approvati dagli Alleati e dalle Potenze associate.

Gli Alleati e le Potenze associate hanno deciso che la replica alle controproposte della Germania non sarà consegnata ai delegati tedeschi prima di venerdì 13 giugno. La Germania avrà un periodo di cinque giorni durante i quali dovrà accettare o rigettare il trattato di pace.

Non appena sarà possibile il Presidente Wilson s'imbracherà per far ritorno negli Stati Uniti. Si ritiene probabile che egli lasci la Francia prima di una quindicina di giorni. Il Consiglio dei Quattro, con il Primo Ministro d'Italia On. Orlando assente, ha tenuto un'altra breve riunione alla "White House," ieri mattina. La riunione ha avuto per scopo gli ultimi accordi sulla replica alle controproposte della Germania. Sembra, però, che un completo accordo non sia stato ancora raggiunto, ma si ha fiducia che una intensa avvezza tra Clemenceau e

Lloyd George prima di mercoledì a giovedì.

Roma, 9 giugno.—Il giornale "L'Epoca" dice di aver appreso da fonte autorevole che l'Onorevole Orlando tornerà in Roma verso la metà della corrente settimana, per annunciare al Parlamento riguardante l'Adriatico.

Il "Giornale d'Italia" annunzia che le trattative sulle aspirazioni italiane hanno raggiunto una fase finale fin da giovedì scorso e che il convegno tra l'On. Orlando e l'On. Colosimo alla frontiera italiana abbia avuto per scopo quello di sottoporre all'approvazione dei colleghi del gabinetto l'accordo che sulle dette aspirazioni era stato raggiunto con gli Alleati e le Potenze associate. Il giornale assicura che a quest'ora tutto è stato sistemato e che la comunicazione al Parlamento è imminente.

Washington, D. C. 8 giugno.—L'appello di Fiume al Congresso Americano, letto Venerdì dal Senators Lodge, ha prodotto profonda impressione tanto al Senato quanto alla Camera dei Rappresentanti.

Il Senatore J. Heister Ball ha presentato una mozione da essere discussa dal due rami del Congresso, con la quale si dichiara che tanto il Senato quanto la Camera dei Rappresentanti richiedono che giustizia intera sia resa all'Italia nella questione di Fiume. Nel presentare la sua mozione, il Senatore Ball ha dichiarato che il potente aiuto prestato dall'Italia agli Alleati da essa il diritto di una piena soddisfazione nelle sue legittime rivendicazioni. Il Senatore Ball è certo che la sua mozione sarà approvata e rimessa subito al Presidente Wilson.
