

BERKSHIRE HILLS IDEAL IN APPEAL

Close Enough to Big Cities to Make Them Easily Accessible to Tourists

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Old Mohawk Trail Lures Diversion-Seeker Far into Connecticut Valley

Lenox, Mass., June 11.—The exceptional fascination of the Berkshires for the summer tourist needs no explanation for one who has enjoyed their unsurpassed scenery, health-giving ozone, wonderful views and automobile trips that simply lure the antonist on and on until he would forget all business cares and just revel in pleasure riding mere words fail to do justice. Then there are the famous hostilities, known throughout the length and breadth of the land, and even beyond our shores, for their exceptional cuisines, their unfailing hospitality and air of comfort and rest on all sides that tempt one to extend his stay to the utmost limit.

Small wonder then with the strain of the war passed, prosperity budding on all sides and reunited families all desiring to forget the past and enjoy the present that the Berkshire country is looking forward to a summer's business that will eclipse all records. Indeed, advance bookings already indicate late comers will have to step lively if they would secure any choice in the matter of accommodations.

It has been truly said that in the Berkshire Hills lie health and happiness.
To go there once is to go again, and to go there the second time is to become a regular visitor. They form one of New England's greatest pleasure resorts, and in the matter of these resorts New England is peerless.

Wellspring of Health
For the vacationist seeking, as it were, a nearby wellspring of health and happiness, there is no spot that can surpass these glorious hills.

They afford practically everything the most ardent tourist could desire, a wealth of green fields and hillsides, fascinating forest streams, exquisite lakes and mountain country unrivaled in its distinct individuality. They have the exceptional advantage of being within striking distance of the big cities, so that one can keep in touch, if necessary, with affairs of the world without serious interruption to his vacation plans.
They are so popular and so attractive that each season sees the tourist extending his stay to take full advantage of nature's wealth. All want to enjoy the summer at its best and then linger to live in its unrivaled autumn season.
The Housatonic river and its tributaries, the Shepaug and Naugatuck, afford excellent facilities for boating and canoeing besides adding immensely to the picturesque surroundings.

The Berkshires are second to none as the summer home of wealth and fashion.
All have heard of Lenox, in many respects the most exclusive summer colony in the east; of Stockbridge, the home of the Mellons, Choates and other digni-taries; of North Adams, the Barringtons and North Adams and Williamstown with its famous "Old Greylock" peak, and its numerous lesser heights.
For the golf enthusiast, this country is a veritable paradise, as it abounds in links, not only ideally prepared by nature, but kept up as only the desire for the best can afford. Golfing parties regard the Berkshires as their mecca.
They cannot only play the game under the best possible conditions, but find everything right at hand to make their outing an unqualified success.

Year after year thousands find here restfulness and ease for brain and body, gathering new strength for work or pleasure of other months. It was this same charm that led many men of wealth to establish great estates among surroundings that more resemble the beautiful landscapes of old England than any other region in America. In addition to these great estates of the wealthy there are numerous camps and bungalows which may be secured at a reasonable rental, notably at Lake Pontoosne and Lake Ototo, both of these beautiful sheets of water being fairly surrounded with attractive sites.

When it comes to accommodations either for the day visitor or one planning a stay, the Berkshires are second to none, either as to desirability or rates. Thus at Adams, a favorite spot for many, one finds the Greylock and the Kenesaw House, both deservedly popular, as well as many smaller places, and in North Adams, which needs no introduction to the tourist, the New Richmond, the Wellington, and the Berkshire, North Adams is the favorite starting point for parties planning to ascend Mount Greylock. They start out in the afternoon, spend the night on the mountain to enjoy the beautiful sunrise view from the top of this, the highest peak in the state, and then journey leisurely back to their stopping place in the morning. Mount Greylock is said to be geologically one of the oldest peaks in the world, one of the first bits of land to appear above the prehistoric seas.

Also from North Adams many parties start along the Old Mohawk Trail, with its well-known Trail Top Inn and Trading Post where one may find rest and refreshment and incidentally pick up a number of interesting souvenirs.
This inn is well called "The Top of the World" with its fine view of no less than nineteen mountain peaks and scenery that defies description. The Trail summit of which is always revealed by the pedestrian into the Connecticut Valley. Still a third popular trip from this charming town is the ascent of Little Mountain, near Cheshire. From the summit of which a view may be had of portions of four states, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York. The view of a large part of the "Green Range" and the Green Mountains is unexcelled.

If one elects Lenox for his stopping place, there is the Curtis Hotel, which accommodates 300, with its old register containing names that would be treasured in many private autograph collections. It is here that one follows the footsteps of Henry Ward Beecher.

Charlotte Cushman, James Russell Lowell and many others. Only a short distance from Lenox is Lake Mahkonee on whose shores Nathaniel Hawthorne lived when he was writing "The House of Seven Gables" and "The Scarlet Letter." Naturally, the tourist thoughtful enough to have brought along his camera, takes snapshots which will be treasured, while those who failed to bring their cameras never fail to regret the oversight. It was of this country that Hawthorne, after a delightful summer spent amid its glories, wrote:
"To me there was a peculiar, quiet charm in this broad, modest and gentle enclosure. They are better than mountains."

Thus one could go on virtually forever extolling the wonders of this greatest of all New England's attractive summer vacation spots. No section of the eastern mountain ranges possesses more scenic charm and historic interest than is found here in western Massachusetts in the far-famed Berkshire Hills. Throughout this entire section, no matter in which direction the visitor may turn, there is always revealed a beautiful panorama—the same vision of beauty that inspired the pens of Holmes, Longfellow, Bryant, Curtis and other world famous writers who have gladly paid tribute to the charm of the Berkshires.

It has been truthfully said that until one has spent a summer in this wonderful country he cannot know real vacationing at its best, amid surroundings that cannot be equaled and with health-

SOCIETY AT WHITE SULPHUR

Philadelphians Arrive at Famous West Virginia Resort

The Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 11.—Philadelphians continue to arrive at the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, W.
Va., where a record spring season has been enjoyed, and among society people now there are Mrs. Jesse Nalle, of Bryn Mawr, who has a cottage there for the summer and has lately returned from a trip to New York to meet her son on his arrival from overseas. The Misses Angelina Nalle and her cousin, Gabriela Tilghman, are expert tennis players and on the courts daily. Mr. and Mrs. C. G.
Butterick, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Wieder and J. A. Wister all arrived at the Greenbrier on Wednesday for stays of varying length.

Mrs. R. Jay Flick, of Wilkes-Barre, is in Washington with Mr. Flick, who is still engaged in government work, but goes next week to Baltimore to pay some visits, where the Misses Margaret Flick, now at White Sulphur, will join her.

From there they will motor to their summer home in the Pennsylvania hills.

B. Dawson Coleman, who attended the Iselin-Brown wedding at Pittsburgh Saturday, will arrive at White Sulphur Springs this week to spend a fortnight, and will be accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. George Biddle, and by Mrs. Swan.

Dr. W. E. Wright, of Harrisburg, is among the late arrivals at the Greenbrier.
Miss Margaret McClaren, of New York, gave a picnic at the White Sugar camp on Wednesday in honor of the Misses Flick, cooking steak and potatoes in the open and making coffee over a wood fire.

John R. Valentine, of Bryn Mawr, arrived this week to join Mrs. Valentine at the Greenbrier. Mr. and Mrs. Royal R. Mattison and Master R. Mattison, Jr., have spent a few days here this week.

Mr. E. E. White, of Mount Carmel, who, with Mrs. White and their son, is established at his country place at Glen White, Va., for the summer, spent a few days here this week while presiding at a meeting of the Winding Gull Coal Operators' Association held here.

Narragansett Pier

RHODE ISLAND

Many places on the New England coast front the sea. But none look out on the Atlantic with a finer, broader view than Narragansett. The beach, more than a mile long, slopes gently to the ocean. The many hotels of the resort stand on tree-shaded sites, but are open to the ocean breezes.
A network of perfect motor roads lead out of Narragansett through one of the most picturesque sections of New England. Off the rocky headlands of the shore the angler will find the best of deep sea fishing. At the Point Judith Country Club are all the recreations for a delightful Summer vacation—golf, polo, tennis.

The one distinctive feature above all at Narragansett is its Casino—the indoor playhouse of cottage dweller and hotel visitor. Here, after the morning on the beach, all Narragansett gathers for an hour of pleasant converse and refreshment. Here, in the late afternoon, meet the summer colony for tea and dancing, and with the evening comes Narragansett society and nearby summer home owners to attend the brilliant entertainments.

The best hotels are—

Massasoit	Gladstone	*Metatoxet
Imperial	*Revere House	*Atlantic House

*The last three are on the water front.

Boston!

Where Pilgrims to New England's glorious vacation land tarry in the atmosphere of American tradition to plan a wonderful summertime.
From Boston you hear the call of the gay life at Narragansett, Newport, Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard, Cape Cod, Bar Harbor. The scenic grandeur of the White and Green Mountains or the camps and trails of the Maine woods are easily reached by rail or motor through beautiful country.

The favored hotels of Boston are:

LENOX—A center of Boston social life.	SOMERSET—An atmosphere of refinement and taste.
BRUNSWICK—Satisfying in every respect.	PURITAN—Delightfully quiet and homelike.

Fireproof, modern and comfortable in every way. Situated in the fashionable Back Bay section of Boston, they are far removed from crowds and noise, but less than five minutes by subway or taxi to theatres, shops, business center and railroad station.

BAR HARBOR

On the "Isle of Enchantment"

The gay center of Society's pleasureland. Headquarters of Lafayette National Park, the only National Park on the sea-coast—often called "The Little Switzerland Afloat."

Fir-clad summits, surrounding clear mountain lakes beckon the hunter, climber, angler, the lover of magnificent views. Perfect roads, winding through stretches of the most charming country in America, invite motoring, riding and driving. Fine tennis courts and golf courses and broad, sail-dotted bay. And the cool, bracing air adds zest to sport. For booklet address:

flowers from spring to fall—Birds and water fowl darting to cover at unexpected turns in the road. There is no more delightful place to spend your vacation than historic Cape Cod.

And more than the setting in which you are to play the role of Idler is your company of interesting Cape Cod people. The Cape Cod fisherman, no longer a sea-farer, is your guide, and, like all people who live in the open, is a philosopher who will so mingle your outdoor life with tales of experience, myth and mystery that you will live in an atmosphere of romance.
