and men of the Seventy-ninth Division. who were left in France because of of room on board transports when the division units sailed, have arrived in transport Cap Finisterre yesterday. Eager questions about their com-rades who arrived before, about the parade, the length of time the men had nained in camp before demobilization and the whereabouts of General Kuhn, were asked by the new arrivals, many of whom were given leave or furlough

He went out last July with the 317th Infantry, which saw no action, but was placed behind the lines at La Courtin, and was all ready for the big push on Metz when the armistice was signed. On May 13 the transport Virginian took on the 317th and brought it to Newport News, but there was not enough room for another officer, and so Lieutenant Reid was left behind. His first chance to come back occurred when the Cap Finisterre was ready to depart from
