ATTRACTIVE PORCH SUPPER MENUS SUGGESTED BY MRS. M. A. WILSON

Now Is the Time for Simple Social Affairs "Out of Doors"—A Bamboo Screen or Awning Gives Privacy and the Affair Savors of True Old-Time Hospitality—These Bills of Fare Require Very Little Actual Effort

NOW is the time for simple social affairs. Hot weather makes it undesirable to have elaborate or over-rich foods, yet the hostess will wish to have guests frequently. An ideal way of entertaining is to have a porch or garden supper.

A group of happy and congenial folk gathered about a table laden with the simple and easily prepared foods lends an air of old-time true hospitality. Let each guest serve himself; he knows that this spells camaraderie and promotes sociability. Allow plenty of room at the end of the table. Overcrowding makes folks hot and uncomfortable.

To prepare the porch it is necessary to have bamboo curtains or an awning, screening the porch from the view of the street. Then, too, nearly every one now screens his porch for protection from flies. Arrange the table with a flat bowl of flowers in the center and then place the dishes, etc., in place. Put a folding screen at the end of the table if your porch adjoins another.

Have the food prepared and everything ready, so that just a few minutes will be required to place everything in position. Select a menu that will require very little actual effort. Use the platter style for convenience.

Chocolate Layer Cake Iced Tea
Deviled Eggs, Parisienne
Boil one egg hard for each person. Cut in half, cutting the length of the egg. Rub the yolks through a fine sieve into a bowl and then add to every six eggs
One-half cup of finely chopped ham,
One onion, grated,
One green pepper, chopped fine,
One and one-half teaspoons of salt,
One teaspoon of paprika,
One-half teaspoon of mustard,
Six tablespoons of mayonnaise
Mix and then fill back into the whites of egg. Mold up very high and then roll in finely grated cheese and dust with paprika. Roll in wax paper. Set in ice box until ready to serve.

Gelatin a la Melba
Cut a slice of sponge cake. Place on a fruit saucer and pour over it three tablespoons of sirup from a jar of peaches and then place two halves of peaches on the cake. Dust with pulverized sugar and top off with fruit whip and a maraschino cherry.

Baked Tomatoes (Cold)
Select firm tomatoes. Cut a slice from the top and then with a spoon carefully scoop out the centers. Rub the outside of the tomatoes with plenty of shortening. Place in a baking dish and pour into the dish holding the tomatoes one-half cup of water. This will prevent the skin from bursting. Now place in a bowl

Fruit Salad
Place in a bowl
One-half cup of coconut,
Two bananas, peeled and cut into slices.
Then hull, wash and cut into tiny pieces sufficient strawberries to measure one and one-half cups. Toss gently to mix. Line a sherbet glass with crisp leaves and then cover lettuce with the fruit salad, piling high, and cover with fruit whip for fruit salad dressing.

PRETTY COIFFURE FOR EVENING

This attractive coiffure, which is so popular in Paris at the present time, is a revival of the Greek bandeau mode and is a style that is becoming to a great many women. It adapts itself readily to straight or curly hair, and as the bandeau is worn either over the forehead or directly upon the eyebrows, it would look equally well on a low or a high forehead

THE return of parties and fluffy evening dresses has brought necessity for a change of hair-dressing. During the war, when the quickest method of doing everything was the method that appealed to the greatest number of women, it made very little difference what style of hair-dressing was used as long as the hair was neat and out of the way. It was so often hidden beneath a khaki cap or Emergency Aid Aids' overseas cap or canteen or Red Cross headdress that very little of it showed at any rate. Now, however, the uniform caps have gone and many popular hats are the ones that turn up sharply in back or at the side, to show a gracefully waved roll of hair. Evening parties, dances and formal dinners are being "revived," and the hair must be carefully dressed to be in harmony with a light evening gown. Hair ornaments are becoming very popular and are made in all sorts of unusual shapes and colors. An attractive ornament which is used very often as a headress for evening wear is the Greek bandeau. This style of coiffure is decidedly fashionable in Paris now and shows signs of becoming popular in this country, as it is becoming to almost any type of face. Some of these bandeaux are made in three strands of pearls or a single wide band of gold or silver cloth. The bandeau shown in the accompanying picture is made of black satin in a wide point directly over the forehead and graduating to a narrow line at the back. It is adorned with a line of sequins, with a large cut rhinestone just at the widest part of the front. A special arrangement of the hair is used with this bandeau. The hair is parted on the right side, waved softly and allowed to fall quite low in front of the ears. The back is then drawn up into a French roll and fastened just below the middle of the head. The bandeau disappears behind the roll at the back and rests upon the eyebrows at the front.

Please Tell Me What to Do By CYNTHIA

Make Up for It by Character In Distress—My dear, stop thinking about your looks and appearance. Be sure to dress neatly and keep your hair and complexion in good condition; but do not make that your first aim. Be pleasant, kind and thoughtful for others, and your beauty of character and soul will find you better friends than mere good looks ever would.

Club Members Write Dear Cynthia—Answering Twenty-one in June, I would like to say she did not draw a very good comparison between "The Clinging Vine" and the ordinary clock. She said the clock sort of a girl was tiresome; but, nevertheless, the world could not get along without clocks.

Twenty-one in June, I am afraid you misunderstand me a little; but I did not mean to give the impression that I always choose a girl who never has an opinion of her own. In fact, I keep away from her. What I mean by a girl who does not say "Where shall we go," etc.; I mean the one who says, "We will go to this theatre or that show tonight." If a fellow is a true gentleman when he asks a young lady to go out he always consults her tastes in motion pictures and the like; but you must admit that there are girls who use fellows for nothing but a good time. They were the ones I meant, in comparing them with "The Clinging Vine," give me the latter always.

Miss Twenty-one in June, will you try to answer me this: What do boys mean by a regular fellow? If a girl is quiet, has a clean face and well-kept hands, does not smoke or chew and enjoys good music and the like, he is dubbed a sissy. On the other hand, if he is a loud dresser, wears spats, smokes cigarettes, hangs around corners calling after girls he is a "no account." Please tell me what you would call a regular fellow.

NEARLY TWENTY-ONE. Why Do They Do It? Dear Cynthia—Why is it that the boys are so anxious to kiss a girl against her own will? Would you not think they would take the hint when you showed signs of disagreement? But no, they try it again and again. Why do they insist upon this? Do not think I am backward. I have been in society all my life, and had no chance to become backward.

Cynthia, it seems that it is generally those that you dislike most, and especially those that are less educated. I found this out from my own experience. Many of my friends who go to college ignore this. Is it because they are more educated and have more etiquette? Boys, I'll tell you, girls don't like this kind of conduct. You can show that you like her without that, but I suppose it is only one of your habits, and it is about time you got over it. F. V. H. Why do you do it, boys? You should learn when signs of disagreement are shown that the girls don't want you to. Why do you?

WHY DON'T GIRLS LOOK AFTER FATHER'S CLOTHES?

Many a One, Smart and Dainty With the Things He Has Always Tried to Give Her, Is a Bit Ashamed of "Dad"

THERE are many girls smart and chipper as a May morning who look with mingled pity and scorn on their shabby-looking fathers. Poor, dear, old dad, you have worked hard all your life and your clothes, it must be acknowledged, are beginning to show signs of age. There are spots on your blue serge but to be very frank with you they are very, very baggy now. And your ties, father, or rather your tie! Bless your heart, you don't care, do you? You have worked so hard so long that somehow it would never occur to you to sit up at night trying to take spots out of your clothes. And just how many years ago was it you decided there was no earthly way to pay the tailor's bills that always came after you sent your clothes to be pressed? That is, to get them and buy pretty clothes for the girls at the same time. Sometimes a body wonders why the sweet, dainty young person who spends an hour in the kitchen at 11 o'clock at night ironing an organdie dress for the next day doesn't have a thought for father. His clothes have grown old and shabby in the service of providing for daughters whose demands never cease. The least a girl could do would be to look after them. Many a wife performs this duty, but on the other hand, many a mother is equally busy as a father. She, too, like father's blue serge, has grown faded and shabby in the service of her family. And when you are tired clothes do not seem so important.

What Fashion Says Velvet bags have beaded effects produced by bands or small quantities of beading. A charming blouse of fine yellow linen has a row of crocheted buttons down the front and a string belt edged with black.

Adventures With a Purse

IN ONE of Dorothea's favorite books, which she insisted on my reading and for which I shall be everlastingly grateful to her, there is a genuine, wholesome New England girl, with a perfectly delightful sense of humor. "A girl who takes cold showers in the morning," she says, in that dry, inimitable way, "always manages to work it into the conversation," which may or may not be true. But if she had one of the lovely sprays I saw today, one could hardly blame her for talking about it. It was a big generous bulb, which sends the refreshing cool water stinging over one, and in addition it has a rubber-bristled massage brush, for massaging the scalp of the skin. Complete it is $2.50, and as they say in the ad—no bathroom is complete without one.

Royal White Icing Whites of three eggs, Two pounds of XXXX sugar, Juice of one-half lemon. Beat until glossy. If the eggs are very large more sugar may be required. This mixture must be just thick enough to spread. Dip a spatula in hot water and then shake free from excess moisture and use for spreading the icing.

"What a duck of a dress," I exclaimed involuntarily. It is a cool-looking green and white checked voile. A fichu of misty white organdie forms the collar and finish to the waist, and soft frilly little organdie cuffs add a most delightful touch. The skirt has demure pockets, and a large perky bow at the back. There are just one or two of these dresses, one in lavender and white and one in blue and white, and they come only in small sizes, specially priced at $15.
