Buying Silks Now for Use Later on Means True Economy

The raw silk market is steadily advancing; labor and production costs will not be any lower to say the least. so that in all probability you will have to pay more for silks next autumn and winter. There is already a scarcity of many weaves. For these reasons we urge our patrons to anticipate their requirements along this line as far as possible, and buy now. We shall have plenty of silks next season and they will be marked as low as consistent with sound merchandising, but the prices, in most instances, are certain to be higher than prevail at present.
