

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR PEACE FETE

September Will See Splendid Pageant Here When Temp-lars Visit City

DOVE TO BE PET BIRD

Plans for a great peace jubilee celebration here in September will get under way today at a meeting of the peace jubilee committee.

Joseph E. Widener, general chairman of the committee, has called his associates to a conference in his Land Title Building office, this afternoon.

At the conference are expected the following officials of the jubilee organization:

J. Jarden Guenther, executive secretary; Mrs. Barclay Warburton, director of women's co-operation; Harry T. Jordan, director of meetings; C. B. Fairchild, Jr., director of transportation; D. B. Provan, director of accommodations; J. J. Spurgeon, director of historical records; Gilbert E. Gable, director of naval pageant; Richard A. Foley, director of industrial pageant; Charles L. Borie and Eli Kirk Price, directors of decorations; J. F. McLaughlin, director of electrical effects; F. G. Nixon-Niedlinger and F. H. Buehler, directors of moving pictures; Thomas J. Mulvey, director of bands, and Joseph M. McCready, director of publicity.

The tentative date set for the jubilee is the second week in September.

From September 6 to September 13 the Knights Templar will hold a convocation in this city. Many thousands of visitors are expected in Philadelphia during the convocation. Because of the crowds anticipated at that time, Dr. A. Howard Thomas will attend the meeting this afternoon and explain what arrangements have been made for the convocation.

No definite plans have been worked out yet for the pageants and masque that will be features of the peace celebration. It is the committee's intention during the jubilee to have the city abloom with flags and other decorations and at night to have the principal streets festooned with brilliant electrical effects.

Two days later, on September 28, of last year, the lieutenant was shot through the neck by a sharpshooter's bullet when he was carrying a wounded man of his company back to the trenches after an attack. He had already rescued three of his men.

Lieutenant Ferguson died two days later in a hospital.

Mrs. Ferguson has been notified she will receive the Distinguished Service Cross awarded her husband by General Pershing. A letter from the War Department to the soldier's widow explains his heroic action.

Lieutenant Ferguson had been gassed in a previous attack. In letters written to his wife he stated that he had many narrow escapes, bullets tearing through his hat and clothing on several occasions.

"I do not believe the Germans make a bullet that can kill me," he wrote shortly before he was fatally wounded. It was at that time he had been on the front line sixty-three days.

Lieutenant Ferguson, who was known as "Fighting Joe" and "Fergy" among his men, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Ferguson, who conduct a hardware store at Fifteenth and Clearfield streets. He was twenty-seven years of age. He served in France with Company 11 of the 119th Infantry.

During the trouble with Mexico he served on the border with the Third Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania.

In letters Mrs. Ferguson has received from friends of the lieutenant since he was killed it was stated that he was promoted to the rank of captain while lying on his death bed in the hospital. No official notification of this action has been received from the War Department.

PHILADELPHIANS IN WAR

Council of National Defense to Begin Compilation of Record

Work of compiling an accurate record of the 65,000 Philadelphians who served as soldiers, sailors or marines in the world war will be undertaken next week by the Philadelphia Council of National Defense.

On Friday, June 27, blank forms, on which the records of men in the military forces during the war are to be filled in, will be distributed to every house by members of the police force. They will be collected on the following Monday, June 30. Otherwise, they should be mailed to the council immediately. In no event should these forms be held for information not available at the time.

The council has enlisted the assistance of the churches, clubs, settlement houses, visiting-nurses societies and other organizations in acquainting the public with the importance of having these records compiled, especially among those of foreign birth or blood.

Boy Falls From Truck; Is Injured

Allen Smith, fifteen years old, is under treatment in St. Joseph's Hospital for injuries he received last night in falling from the rear of a motortruck. His head and shoulders are severely bruised and he may be hurt internally.

TRUCKS TO AID RECRUITING

Motor Transport Train Here Today. Will Camp Along Parkway

Army trucks—a score of them—carrying the full field equipment of a United States engineers' regiment, are coming to Philadelphia today to help in the drive for army of occupation replacement recruits.

The motortruck train, driving here by way of Chester, will make camp along the Parkway at 4 o'clock this afternoon. They will remain here until Monday morning, and will give daily and nightly demonstrations. The feature of the show will be the "spotting" of an airplane at night by means of a huge searchlight captured from the Germans.

Ninety-five enlisted men and eleven officers make up the personnel of the truck train. Part of their work is to demonstrate the various trades taught in the army vocational schools.

DOCTORS HERE DOUBT CURE FOR INFLUENZA

Belief Expressed That Vaccine Will Not Do All That Is Claimed for It

Philadelphia physicians are skeptical of the announcement of Dr. Charles H. Duncan's vaccine, claimed to cure influenza, pneumonia, catarrh and similar laryngological diseases. Dr. Henry Beates, Jr., said:

"Entirely too many premature conclusions are made in such matters. The methods may and may not be good, but before endorsing it, I should have to be pretty sure of its merits. All I know of the matter is what I have read. I have seen plenty of patients get entirely well, after having had the influenza. The report says that 240 cases were successfully treated, but each of these cases might have been mere chance. The fact that the patients recovered is no positive proof of the efficiency of the method."

"The method is no new one," said Dr. Louis M. Golden, a widely known authority. "We have been experimenting with vaccines for some years, and have obtained remarkably successful results. So far as the cure of influenza, though, I think it best to be noncommittal upon the subject until it has proved itself."

Army physicians who attended the meeting of the Philadelphia Medical Club last night at the Bellevue Stratford were of the opinion that the vaccine was worthless.

In Atlantic City a great deal of skepticism was evinced by men of the profession, with respect to the alleged "cure." The general impression was that the Duncan-Wallace "cure" has been tried a number of times and has proved a failure. It is claimed that Dr. Simon Flexner, of New York, head of the Rockefeller Institute, was aware of the so-called "cure" when he said before the Congress of Physicians and Surgeons at Atlantic City on Monday last that the medical profession is still in the dark as to the prevention of a repetition of last fall's wave of death.

Mayor of East Paterson Dies

New York, June 19.—Hugo S. Speldel, first and only mayor of East Paterson, N. J., died of apoplexy in his home shortly before Tuesday midnight. Excitement over a fire earlier in the day in a home near his own, and at which he worked heroically to prevent destruction of the building, is believed to have caused the stroke.

VETS GET INTO FIGHT

Argument as to Who Is Best Fighter to Be Settled by Magistrate

Patrick McAnnally, Timothy Ryan and John Connelan are war veterans. Last night, at Ridge avenue and Ferry street, they started a free-for-all fight to decide who was the greatest fighter. Finally "Patty the Boer," as he is known, grew weary as the struggle went on between Ryan and Connelan. "Patty the Boer" decided to act as referee.

The appearance of Patrolman McHale, of the Twenty-second street and Hunting Park avenue station, failed to stop them.

"Let 'em go! They've only got one more round," the referee shouted. But McHale called for respect to his uniform, and the three warriors walked faintly to the police station with the patrolman.

McAnnally, who is forty-five years old, and lives with Connelan at 4038 Ridge avenue, said he fought with the American forces in France. He lives at 3637 Stanton street. Connelan, who is forty-five, fought with the English. They will be arraigned before Magistrate Price.

STILL AWAIT HIS BRIDE

Collingswood Man Hangs Around Station and Telegraph Office in Hope

"Charlie" Fuhs is anxiously haunting the telegraph office and the railroad station at Collingswood, N. J., these days waiting for word or sight of the girl he hopes to marry, Miss Veralaria Harris, of Minneapolis.

He sent her $50 by postal money order after she wired him she hadn't received the first fifty he sent. He has never seen her, having been introduced by mail through a matrimonial agency last fall, but he has infinite faith in her sincerity. He just figuratively kicked himself because he hadn't registered that first money he sent or asked for a receipt and was more careful in sending the second amount.

Fuhs lives with his sister, Mrs. Aaron Shooster, 50 East Madison avenue. He is known as the "handy man about Collingswood" and does everything from whitewashing cellars to cutting grass.

He and his fiancée were to have been married at the Methodist parsonage in Collingswood, but he learned that contracting parties must have lived in the state not less than forty-eight hours before they can be married in New Jersey. So he has announced the wedding for Saturday in Elkton, Md.

KEEP UP WAR METHOD IN MEDICINE, IS PLEA

Treatment of Nervous Diseases Must Not Stop Now, Dr. Williams Tells Alienists

HYSTERIA'S VICTIMS CITED

Treatment of nervous and mental diseases, so prevalent among the soldiers of our armies in the form of shell shock or nervous breakdown, must not stop now that the war is over, according to Dr. Tom A. Williams, of Howard University, Washington. He spoke this morning to the members of the American Medical Association, now convening at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

"Valuable lessons, which we have learned in the treatment of cases among the soldiers, must be advanced, and applied to the still greater army at home—the army of industry," he declared.

"Psychiatrists must work among the men and women of this country who are engaged in industry, whether it be manual or intellectual. The need here is just as great as it was during the war, and there is nothing else which will so help to build up the national morale."

Doctor Williams described the valuable work which the psychiatrists did during the war in the treatment of the soldiers of the allied armies. He said:

Many Forms of Hysteria

"One wonders at the amount of nervous disorder which was found in the form of hysteria. While this form of disease is easily remedied as far as the man himself is concerned, it had a disastrous effect in reducing the man power of the armies. In the British army alone, prior to December, 1918, more than 100,000 men were discharged because of hysteria.

"But the advance which has been made in curing mental afflictions has been remarkable indeed. It has been shown that afflicted soldiers, placed in the most efficient hands, with early treatment and the best of conditions, have entirely recovered at a rate approaching 100 per cent and the average among cases under all conditions, was a recovery percentage of 83 per cent. Even psychiatrists of a lesser degree of skill have succeeded in curing one-half of their cases."

Colonel Thomas W. Salmon, New York, said that the psychiatrists stood with the surgeons and physicians at the battle front doing their valuable work in keeping up the morale of the soldiers. Colonel Salmon, who has been decorated by the government, was at the front at the head of 219 assistants.

Morale Is Aided

"The successful treatment of nervous disorders among the men built up their morale as nothing else could," he said.

"That the French retained such high spirit under the most frightful of conditions was due to the excellence of their corps of psychiatrists.

"During the trip home from France a number of our soldiers, who had been declared cured on the other side, suffered from a relapse of their nervous trouble," he continued. "This was due to the depressing way in which their transportation home was conducted, and the matter should be brought to the attention of the government."

In concluding Colonel Salmon spoke in terms of highest praise of the work done by Surgeon Ireland.

DEATH NOT TO HALT FIFTH WARD CASES

Rotan Declares Prosecution of Men Convicted With Deutsch Will Proceed

The death of Isaac Deutsch, former Vaux leader in the Fifth Ward, will have no effect on the prosecution of the conspiracy cases growing out of the political fight in the Fifth Ward in September, 1917, and which resulted in the conviction of the decedent and four policemen, the latter then attached to the Third and De Lancy streets station, it is said.

This means that if the conviction is sustained the remaining defendants who are alive will serve the jail terms and fines imposed by the Chester County Court. If, on the other hand, the verdicts of guilty are overruled and no trials granted, District Attorney Rotan will proceed, regardless of the death of Deutsch, and present the case over again in its entirety. The same evidence can be used whether it involved the decedent or not, and, regardless of his nonpresence, even if caused by death.

The funeral of Deutsch will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Deutsch residence. Interment will be made in Adath Jeshurun Cemetery, Frankford. Friends may view the body this evening from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Delegations of various organizations of which Deutsch was a member will attend the funeral. Among them are Washington Lodge, No. 59, F. and A. M.; Tristram B. Freeman Chapter, R. A. C.; Philadelphia Forest No. 10, Tall Cedars of Lebanon; South Street Business Men's Association, South Second Street Business Men's Association, Fifth Ward Republican League and the Musicians' Union.
