

TREAT LABOR RIGHT, ATTERBURY WARNS

Ex-Director General of A. E. F.
Transportation Sees Alternative in Economic Difficulties

FAIR DEAL IS SOLUTION

Economic difficulties with serious consequences for the United States unless a satisfactory solution of the labor problem is found immediately was forecast last night by Brigadier General W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and formerly director general of transportation for the American expeditionary forces. At the same time, General Atterbury expressed confidence that such a solution will be found, and gave his opinion that it will consist of intelligent and sympathetic co-operation between capital and labor.

The general address the members of Department No. 2, Pennsylvania Railroad Women's Division for War Relief on "Co-operation" at the Pennsylvania Railroad Branch of the Y. M. C. A., Forty-first street and Broad street. At the same time, the speaker urged the continuance of relief organizations, as the entire world looks for salvation to America—the only country which has come through the war unimpaired financially and economically. He then broached the topic of labor, and said:

"Peace may be signed at any moment, but the aftermath of the war is far beyond anything that has heretofore been conceived. All of the nations directly involved in the war are today financially and industrially broken down, with the exception of our own country. America has become a world through financially, economically and otherwise unimpaired; and to America today the world looks for salvation."

"By intention, or as a result of the war, the industries of the world have been destroyed. Their immediate rehabilitation is essential unless we desire something worse than war to overwhelm us."

"The cycle of paralyzed industry, unemployment, labor unrest, transportation breakdown, lack of ocean tonnage, lack of raw material, inability to reach the markets and no credit, is complete. The solution is simple, if immediately applied. The wheels of industry must be started; labor must be employed—the solution is financial credit to the world."

"The matter is now being studied by our most able financiers, who themselves realize that unless a solution is found our own destruction will ensue. I am confident that in a short time a successful solution will have been evolved."

"The solution of the labor problem, the general continued, means nothing more nor less than that the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness will be granted to all. And this right will be enjoyed by all. And this is an essential point, as adhered to. They are: First, steady employment; second, a good wage; third, time for recreation; fourth, opportunity for the worker to elevate himself in his own employment; fifth, a voice for the employe in determining the rules and regulations under which he should work, and, sixth, a fair division of any profits achieved, a fair division of any profits achieved and a sufficient amount paid in capital to attract it to an expanding business."

"Some industries, through competition, may not be able to supply a good wage," said the general. "Artificial restrictions may limit such competition, but in general the only answer can be 'get out of business.'"

"Some business, such as our railroads and public utilities, we cannot get out of. They must be carried on. Therefore, to support a good wage there must be either a subsidy from the government, which then becomes a direct tax on all the people, or such increases in rates as will permit the payment of a good wage and a return on capital sufficient to attract its investment—a tax on the user."

VETERAN TEACHER RESIGNS

History Instructor at Girls' High School Forty Years

After forty years as head of the history department of the Girls' High School, Seventeenth and Spruce streets, Miss Louise H. Haeseler, of 2224 Wallace street, yesterday resigned her position with the Board of Education of this city.

Miss Haeseler graduated from the Girls' High School with the class of 1877, the first class to be graduated in the building at Seventeenth and Spruce streets, which was erected in that year. Shortly after graduating Miss Haeseler entered upon her career as a school teacher. Since she first took up her duties in this capacity she has witnessed many and varied changes in public education in Philadelphia.

In speaking of her retirement, Miss Haeseler said that after having taught about 14,000 girls in this city she decided she had earned a quiet rest far from the call of a classroom. Miss Haeseler is known in the educational world as one of the foremost as well as one of the oldest school teachers in this city. She was formerly president of the Teachers' Association of Philadelphia.
