Nancy Wynne Tells of Cape May Doings—Gay Season Predicted—The R. Penn Smith, Jr., Move to Westerly—Joy Makes a Flax Pas

WELL, Cape May seems to have started on a wild and joyous season, quite like old times before the war. And I hear that the Red Mill is no longer to be called the "Dead Mill," for it's going to be a pretty gay spot all summer. Everybody is so glad to see so many of the men back again, because, as one of last year's debs, so-called, remarked, "Last year our steady diet seemed to be sailors, and of course, everybody just loves sailors, but—well, you know what I mean." And on Saturday night there were a bunch of overseas down there—John Scott, Roddie Page, Whitney Wright, Bill Davis, Eddie Cassard, Walton Clark, Graham Dougherty and lots more.

at their home this evening, in honor of their daughter, Miss Emily E. Clotier, who will make her debut next season. Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. DaCosta, of Villanova, will entertain at dinner before the dance in honor of their daughter, Miss Jessie DaCosta.

DOES it seem to you as if typhoid had taken a much stronger hold of its victims than ever before this year? I mean they seem to be ill so much longer than usual. You know Lucille Carter is still in bed, and she was taken down with typhoid the week before the Devon County Fair, that's six weeks ago.

Mr. H. Yale Dolan, of 1800 Walnut street, has taken Mr. Langdon Lee's house in Cape May for the summer.

THE C. C. Harrison, Jr., dance at Villanova last night was a lovely affair. It was for Augusta and Ellen. Augusta has been at boarding school and just returned last month, and Ellen, who is about fourteen, has been going to day school here. They are attractive girls and very popular with the younger set.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckley B. Cox, 3d, returned from their wedding trip on Friday and will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Cox at Malvern until after the Fourth of July.

WELL, the R. Penn Smith, Jr., stay here was mighty short, after Mrs. Converse's house in Bryn Mawr for the summer and came here to live about six weeks ago. Since then Mr. Smith has been made head of Cassatt & Co. in New York, and he has been given up the Bryn Mawr house and will live in New York; though at present they intend to go to Westerly, Rhode Island, for the remainder of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Lee, Miss Caroline H. Lee and Miss Catherine H. Lee, of Haverford, will leave this week for MacMahan Island, near Bath, Me., where they will spend the summer.

LITTLE Joy, who is only three, seldom comes to the grown-up table, but just recently mother and father took her out to Auntie's house, and as nurse was not with them, and Auntie wanted Joy at the table, she came. And she behaved with proper poise and distinction of manner. She rather upset the equilibrium of the family, however, when the vegetable salad of peas, beans, and carrots, much ornamented with white of egg and striped with pimento, was passed around by inquiring, in audible tones, "Mamma, is vat dat?"

Mr. and Mrs. George McFadden, of Bloomfield, Villanova, will spend the Fourth of July as guests of Governor of Rhode Island and Mrs. Livingston Beekman, at Land's End.

SEVERAL NEW FILMS ON LOCAL SCREENS

Favorite Players Appear in Worthwhile Productions of Varied Plots

STANLEY—"Mary Weber" with Anita Stewart. Story by Louis Weber. First National Play.

While this is not a highly important photoplay contribution, it has a quality of entertainment and suspense which pleased the audiences. Its direction by the most noted of the women directors, Louis Weber, is unusually quiet in style and the excellent work of the film editor also worthy of mention.

Anita Stewart has gained a lot of dramatic experience in the last year, which she evidenced in this film. Herebefore she stood about and posed, but in this production her capacity as an actress is brought out. Other players whose efforts contributed to success are Frank Mayo, Hedda Nova, Carl Miller, Barney Sherry, George Hernandez and Brinsley Shaw.

In an effort to live down the name of her father, who was a thief, the girl in the case refuses to have anything to do with a set of blackmailers, and in the end she wins the man she loves, an inspector of police, who arrested her father. That, briefly, is the plot of the story, and it involves a good big fight in a cabaret.

The beauties of Hawaii are shown in natural colors by means of the Prizma process. One of the interesting parts of this film showed the hula-hula dance, performed by the natives as a religious ceremony. A beach of black, volcanic sand, upon which white foam and waves were contrasted, was also beautifully seen. Mack Swain, in "Daddy Ambrose," was an added comedy film.

ARCADIA—"The Avancher" with Elsie Ferguson. Story by Gertrude Atherton and directed by George Fitzmaurice. Artcraft play.

There have been few offerings at this theatre which can boast of such an artistic atmosphere as is offered in the current film play. From start to finish it is a work of art. Particular attention has been given to lighting and the selection of interiors as well as exteriors shows admirable taste. Much of the praise for the production must be divided between the star and the director.

GAMBLING, according to this story by Gertrude Atherton, is the greatest evil of society, and she also believes it is hereditary. There is a little story, in which a woman's love for gaming leads her to marry one of the guests at her father's inn. It is later shown that the daughter of this union is also a gambler, destined to follow her mother's path.

RECENT—"Fools and Their Money" with Emma Weaver. Story by E. F. Ross and directed by George Fitzmaurice. Artcraft play.

Word has just been received that Emma Weaver has completed her contract with the Metro Company, and that her future plans are likely to lead her to the musical comedy stage once again. Her admirers will find in this picture a comedy role that fits her in every detail.

GARRICK—"Broken Blossoms," D. W. Griffith's latest creation, telling of a tragic story of London's Chinatown. Lillian Gish has the role of the pathetic little heroine, Richard Barthelmess, the kindly idealistic Chinese, and Donald Crisp, the brutish and brutal villain. Last week.

MUSICAL PLEYET HEADS KEITH BILL

Leona Stephens and Len Hollister. Legitimate Favorites, Score in Bright Offering

An attractively staged, new musical playlet, replete with catchy songs, is one of the features of the Keith Theatre program. It is labeled "Out in California" and is presented by Leona Stephens and Len D. Hollister.

Both Miss Stephens and Mr. Hollister have been seen here before, but not in vaudeville. The former was for a long time in the legitimate field and made an impression in this city in "The Only Girl." Mr. Hollister was formerly associated with Max Irwin's companies.

ARCADIA—"The Avancher" with Elsie Ferguson. Story by Gertrude Atherton and directed by George Fitzmaurice. Artcraft play.

There have been few offerings at this theatre which can boast of such an artistic atmosphere as is offered in the current film play. From start to finish it is a work of art. Particular attention has been given to lighting and the selection of interiors as well as exteriors shows admirable taste.

GLOBE—"The Grand" with Jack Wyatt and his troupe. A new and original production, featuring the grandest of grand spectacles.

BROADWAY—"The Management" with Emma Weaver. Story by E. F. Ross and directed by George Fitzmaurice. Artcraft play.

CURB MARKET HALTED; MAY OPEN THURSDAY

Site at Kensington and Lehigh Avenues Abandoned—Meat Prices Drop Again

The curb market opened last Friday at Kensington and Lehigh avenues will not be operated tomorrow. This decision was reached yesterday by the Philadelphia Curb Markets' Association at its weekly meeting.

Housewives sensed that grand and glorious feeling yesterday when they went to the cut-price stores and saw that prices of steaks and hams had taken another tumble. They paid forty-two cents a pound for rump, round and sirloin steaks instead of forty-five cents which they paid the week before.

Housewives that lived in neighborhoods in which no cut-price store was located did not come home singing Tra-la-la, which accompanies the grand and glorious feeling, since they paid, with few exceptions, from four to thirteen cents more than the prices quoted in about eight cents a pound—a drop of four cents.
