DRIVERLESS AUTO KILLS MOTORIST IN 15TH ST. RUNAWAY

Willow Grove Man, Fixing License Tag, Is Slain—Doctor Hurt in Crash

David R. Twining, Jr., forty-two years old, of Willow Grove, was killed in a strange accident in front of his automobile repair shop at 226 North Fifteenth street last night. Twining was fixing a license tag on the rear of his automobile when another machine, running wild, dashed across the street and hit his, pinning him between the machine he was fixing and a telegraph pole. David Simpson, 3051 North Ninth street, owner of the other car, had stood on the other side of Fifteenth street. When he got ready to drive away he cranked his engine. The car had evidently been left in gear, because as soon as the engine started the automobile started to move, just missing striking Simpson. Then it struck Twining's machine. Simpson is under arrest in the Fifteenth and Vine streets station awaiting the action of the coroner. Dr. G. F. McCloskey, 2622 North Seventeenth street, was severely cut about the knees yesterday when his automobile was struck by a motorcar. The accident occurred at Twenty-fifth and York streets.

DRY FOURTH PICNICS

Soft Drinks Alone to Enliven Outdoor Parties
The "dry" Fourth of July picnic will take the place of the stage tomorrow. In bygone years respectable persons celebrated Independence Day with picnics at which firewater did not join with fireworks to make the occasion festive; but many respectable persons, avowing that no picnic was a picnic when the dry July dust wasn't washed away by beverages with more authority than lemonade. These latter stocked up with bottles and carried more drink than food out to where the grass is green and the sky is blue and the clouds are white.

One of the houses was completely burned out and the other was saved by the firemen before the flames had done very much damage. They are the property of the James McMullen estate and there has been no estimate of the damage given as yet.

KIN OF LIBERTY PACT SIGNERS WILL MEET

Descendants of Declaration of Independence Leaders Hold Opening Session Today
350 IN ORGANIZATION
The annual convention of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence will open today in the Bellevue-Stratford. The congress is particularly significant this year because the descendants of the men who signed the parchment that formally declared the independence of the thirteen original colonies will celebrate the victory just gained by the great nation grown from the colonies. There are more than 350 members of the organization in this country, and the majority of them have signified their intention of being present at the conclave and victory celebration.

143 Years Ago
The main session of the convention will be held in Independence Hall July 4, commemorating the historic deed enacted there by their forefathers 143 years ago. Colonel W. Gordon McCabe, president of the organization for the last four years, will be a candidate again. Russell Dunne, of this city, first vice president of the body, will be chosen to succeed Colonel McCabe. John S. Braxton, of this city, is treasurer, and Carl Magee Kneass, also of Philadelphia, is secretary. In the time that he has been president Colonel McCabe has enlarged the sphere of influence of the organization. It is largely as a consequence of his interest that such notable national figures as Colonel George Wayne Anderson, of Richmond; Joseph Packard, of Baltimore; Roger Sherman Baldwin, of New Haven, Conn.; Estace Conway, of New York; Charles Francis Adams, of Boston, and United States Senator Blair Lee have become interested in the work of the organization and are serving as members of its board of governors.

Founded in 1907
The Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence were founded on July 4, 1907, in Independence Hall. At that time it was decided that each annual congress should be held there on July 4 of each year. This year the members will vote on an amendment to the constitution that will make the date of the annual congress April 9. The amendment is being offered in the hope that it will lead to a full attendance at the meetings and also enable the members to create a larger interest in the history of the signers. It is also believed that because of the great celebration on the part of the nation on July 4 the true importance of the meeting is lost sight of. The first meeting of the organization for this approaching congress will take place at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Bellevue-Stratford, when the board of governors will meet. An hour later there will be a general meeting of the society. In the evening the annual banquet will take place.

New savings certificates in denominations of $100 and $1000 have been issued by the government. Announcement of the issue was made last night by Director Watters, of the Third Federal Reserve District, who was informed by the Treasury Department that the certificates could be purchased today. War-savings stamps in the denomination of $5 are convertible into these securities, which bear the same rate of interest as the savings stamps. 4 per cent compounded quarterly. Savings and investments in the 85 stamps have been widespread throughout the country. The $100 certificates are convertible into $1000 certificates. The limit of investment of $1000 for each individual, which is a feature of the savings-stamp issue, has been retained.

WILSON MAY SPEAK HERE

Knights Templar Will Invite President to Triennial in September
President Wilson will be asked to speak at Independence Square on September 8, at the opening of the thirty-fourth triennial encampment of the Knights Templar of the United States. It is expected that the encampment will bring 150,000 members of the order to this city. In addition to the President, governors, representatives in Congress and army and navy officers of national reputation will be invited to attend the Independence Square celebration. The encampment will take on the aspect of a national pageant, and the first four days of the work will include a parade of 50,000 knights in their picturesque uniforms. The parade will be on the Parkway and Broad street. Headed by the grand master of the order, Leo Stewart Smith, of 1912, the parade will be directed by the men who served in the fighting forces of the country during the war. The committee that will extend the invitation to the President includes John W. Wainman, ex-Governor Edwin S. Stuart, Governor Sprunt, Senator Penrose and Representatives Vane, Darrow, Graham and Moore.

SOME PERTINENT "DON'T'S" FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY

Avoid the use of fireworks. But if you insist on permitting children to handle them, be sure they are safe. Don't fail to have in mind the nearest firebox and how to pull it, or the nearest phone and the way to get help. Don't fail to keep a watchful eye on children with matches and burning punk; they ignite more than fireworks. Don't fail to watch the small boy with the gun. He will want to imitate the soldier this year if never before. Don't fail to warn the children of the danger of the firecracker and the other fireworks that "have gone off." Toy balloons are forbidden by act of Assembly. Do not buy them and do not use them if given to you. Toy balloons specified in the act are the ones sent up by igniting cotton saturated with easily burned liquid. In the last fourteen years four of July fireworks caused 1892 deaths, injured 42,000 and caused millions of loss.

HOSPITALS PREPARED FOR FOURTH VICTIMS

Doctors and Nurses All Ordered to Be on Duty—Krusen Cautions Celebrants
Throughout the city hospitals are preparing for a busy day on the Fourth of July by mobilizing their entire force of doctors and nurses. They are preparing large quantities of antiseptic and to combat lockjaw. Director Krusen has issued a bulletin of what not to do in order to have the nation's holiday unmarred. It follows: Don't use fireworks, pistols or explosives of any kind within one square of any hospital or other institution for the care of sick, or injured persons, or of any dwelling where serious diseases exist. Don't forget that the nuisance created by unnecessary noises applies to the Fourth of July as well as to any other time. Don't sell or use toy cartridge pistols, toy cannons or steel horns. Don't sell or use fireworks containing picric acid, picrates, dynamite or other highly explosive compounds. Don't sell or use blank cartridge pellets or other tablets containing dynamite or other highly explosive compound. Don't let the children have any kind of fireworks in their possession. The supposedly harmless sparklers and lighted punk have caused fires that resulted in loss of life and property. Don't set a poor example for your children by shooting off fireworks for their amusement. Don't raise toy balloons. They are readily set on fire and often fall on places distant from their origin of ascent. Don't have Japanese lanterns and other lighted material or fail to keep a close watch on them during the period in which they are lighted.

GIRL IDENTIFIES ALLEGED SLAYER AS HE ENACTS TRAGEDY

Wilkes-Barre Authorities Force Suspect to Take Murderer's Part
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 3.—(By A. P.)—An arrest which may clear up the murder of Peter Yarnight at Hans Square Park late Tuesday night was made last evening. The suspect, Harry Jacobs, forty-one years old, of Innan Park, a settlement near the scene of the murder, was partially identified last night by Miss Winifred Conahan, who was with the murdered man. At 9 o'clock last night the tragedy was re-enacted at the scene of the murder. Jacobs was taken to the place and Jacobs was forced to walk over the path taken by the murderer. As he emerged from the clump of bushes he repeated the remark made by the murderer: "I don't want you; I want the girl." Miss Conahan, in great agitation, declared that the face of Jacobs' victim was the same as that of the murderer, and that he had the same build and the same shuffling walk. When the home of the suspect was searched, a thirty-two-caliber revolver, from which one shot had recently been fired, was found. Jacobs has served three terms in prison on charges of carrying concealed weapons, larceny and other offenses.

GERMANS 'UNSAFE'

SAYS MUSEUM PAPER IN SPITE OF PROTESTS
Commercial Bulletin, However, Railroad Administration Heads Warns That Competition Will Not Be Negligible
Say Shore Business Men Were Warned of Move
SOME BARRIERS REMOVED TROOP MOVEMENT HEAVY
The Commercial Museum believes that it would be "unsafe" for American business men to place too much credence in the rumor picturing Germany as merely awaiting the signal to become a formidable competitor for world trade. On the other hand, it maintains, it would not be safe to assume that German competition will be an entirely negligible factor. "The contrary theory rumors as to the activities of Germany industries when the war was in progress, of their working day and night accumulating stocks for export, are having their counterweight in the equally contradictory reports of the volume of goods which Germany now has at its borders awaiting the lifting of the blockade," says a museum statement today. "The delay which has taken place in the signing of the peace treaty after the unconditional acceptance of its terms has afforded an opportunity for a reconsideration of the immediate effect of the actual signing of the treaty upon the world's industry and commerce in general. This is entirely reasonable, and the effect the easiness and insincerity which have characterized the delay will have upon the question of the resumption of commercial relations with Germany itself. "The actual signing of the treaty will clear up some of the uncertainties, and perhaps the main one, which has deferred the carrying out of certain commercial projects, particularly those of large proportions extending over a long period, and the signing will also mark in a historical sense the beginning of that new era of commercial relations which will be a direct result of itself. But the signing will not of itself lead to, or justify any expectation of, an immediate and rapid return of business to a normal and satisfactory basis. "Barriers Removed
"The cessation of actual hostilities with the signing of the armistice on November 11 by removing some of the barriers which stood in the way of free intercourse and by releasing some shipping did permit the shipment of certain accumulated orders and also orders of an emergency nature, but it did not lead to the re-establishment of permanent business relations on a large scale. A great deal has been done in that direction in the seven months which have elapsed, but what actually has been accomplished has not measured up to the general expectations. "There has been an improvement in international business conditions generally, but the movement has been most gradual. It is unlikely that the cessation of commercial events in the months immediately following the signing of the peace treaty will show any marked variation from the history of the months immediately following the signing of the armistice."

EXCURSION BAN HOLDS

Protests of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce and other business organizations of New Jersey seashore resorts against the Independence Day ban on excursions will not cause the ban to be modified. "Military necessity" has effectively tied the hands of the federal railroad administration, it was explained today. Business houses and hotels in Atlantic City claim that they want to great expense in preparation for the Fourth, and that they had no notice of the cancellation of excursions. They will lose $400,000 tomorrow because of it, they said in a telegram of protest. "Charles R. Camp, assistant regional director here, said that the shore resorts were given notice two weeks ago that cars for excursion trains probably would not be available at this time because of expected troop movements. A great number of soldiers from overseas have been landed at various points in the last few days, and others will land today and tomorrow. "Most of these men," Mr. Camp said, "are eager to get home for the Fourth, and the War Department is doing everything in its power to comply with their wish. "Every passenger coach and sleeping car that could be spared from the regular traffic has been taken over by the troop section of the railroad administration and diverted to the uses of the army. Consequently there are no extra cars available for special excursion trains tomorrow, and only the regular trains will be run. "This ban will remain probably until August 1, when the troop movement will about have come to an end. A loosening of the traffic likely will be felt in the next week or ten days. "I would like very much to cooperate with the shore business men, but I can do absolutely nothing."

Palmyra, N. J., July 3.—A joint parade of the returned service men of Riverton and Palmyra is to be the chief feature of the Fourth of July peace and victory celebration in these two towns. Usually torn by rivalry, the two communities submerged their long-standing differences in mutual respect for the day and the service men who are to march, and a new era of good feeling between the two is expected to result.
