VARE SEES GOVERNOR ON REGISTRY BOARD

Personnel of Commission Discussed—Also Confer on Other Philadelphia Legislation

PENROSE IN HARRISBURG

By a Staff Correspondent

Harrisburg, July 9.—Personnel of the new registration commission and a number of bills of interest to Philadelphia were discussed at a conference between Governor Sproul and Senator Vare here this afternoon.

The Senator arrived about noon, accompanied by Sheriff Harry C. Ransley.

Mr. Vare said his trip was not especially in the interest of appointments to the registration commission.

"I came to see the Governor regarding a number of bills, including the Philadelphia election bills, Delaware river measures and others regarding hospitals," he said. "I always come up after adjournment of the Legislature in behalf of bills regarding Philadelphia."

At the conclusion of the conference Senator Vare said everything was very satisfactory.

Asked if he had received any assurance that his adherents on the registration commission would be appointed to the new commission, the senate declined to make any comment.

With Senators Penrose and Vare in Harrisburg at the same time, politicians here are looking for quick developments which may bring about an early showing of strength in either faction of the Republican forces.

Other Philadelphia callers on Governor Sproul included Nathan Folwell, former president of the Manufacturers' Club, and Franklin Spencer Edwards, who discussed community service with the executive.

Governor Out of Mayor Fight

The Governor will keep hands off the mayoralty situation in Philadelphia. He made this plain in a brief interview at the Executive Mansion.

It is understood that those who are seriously concerned in the coming fight for political supremacy in Philadelphia have been sounding the Governor on the subject and endeavoring to obtain indorsements for prospective candidates representing high types of citizenship.

Those vitally interested have been endeavoring to draw Mr. Sproul into the controversy, according to persistent reports. He has steadfastly refused, and made it plain that he would not be inveigled into indorsements or suggestions which will throw any weight on either side of the fight.

Refuses to Act in Own County

"I will take no part whatever in the mayoralty situation in Philadelphia," said the Governor, "in fact I'm not mixing in with political situation in my own county.

"I am not particularly interested in the Philadelphia mayoralty controversy, aside from the fact that I would like to see a good Republican elected. I do not believe in interfering in the affairs of others."

Regarding appointments to the new registration commission, Governor Sproul was decidedly reticent. He declined to say how many of the present board would be retained, and refrained from making any comment whatever on the various names which have been brought forth in general speculation.

"I will announce the appointments probably tomorrow," said the Governor.

Long Conference With Sproul

The senator spent all last evening in conference with Mr. Sproul on legislative matters. He leaves late today for Washington.

Senator Penrose also spent some time with Auditor General Snyder, who will have a large number of apointments to make under the new revenue raisers now in the hands of the Governor, which it is expected he will sign very shortly. Senator Penrose held conferences with many heads of departments. He expressed himself as well pleased with the Legislature's work.

Senator Penrose refused to discuss any of the pending Philadelphia legislation.

He is anxious to have the appointments of the new registration commissioners made as soon as the bills are signed and one purpose in conferring with the Governor was to see that the appointments are such as will not prove to be a handicap to the independents in the mayoralty fight in Philadelphia this fall. The senator said he would take no part in the mayoralty campaign at present.

PARENTS MOURN INFANT, DEAD OF "FOURTH" BURNS

Three-Year-Old Louise Regan, Whose Clothing Took Fire From "Harmless" Sparkler, Will Be Buried Tomorrow

"I'd give both my hands to have my daughter alive and well."

"Yes, and I'd cheerfully give mine to have Louise here."

The death of three-year-old Louise Regan, reported to the police today, the second in this city from Independence Day celebrations, has left a great void in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. John Regan.

It was the father who said he would cheerfully part with his hands. And it was his wife who said she would be happy to make a similar sacrifice.

That they were sincere was shown by the fact that both parents almost did lose their hands trying to subdue the flames that enveloped their beloved child's clothing after she caught fire while playing with a "harmless" sparkler.

Mother Bought Sparklers

"And I bought them for her, too," the mother said brokenly, half accusing herself.

"Louise and our other two children, Margaret and Marie, were very patriotic," she said with mournful pride, "and we had to get them some fireworks. The sparklers were advertised as 'harmless,' so we bought them. But we didn't intend to allow them to fire them without us being right near.

"But they took the sparklers out of the kitchen when we weren't looking on the night of July 4," the father said, "and the first intimation of danger we had was when we saw our youngest daughter come running up the street, her clothing a mass of flames."

Death Ended Suffering

It was then that both parents were severely burned around the hands and arms trying to subdue the fire. But the child was too badly burned and had inhaled too much fire to survive. Her quick dash up the street had fanned the flames.

"I'm all right, mother," she said bravely about half an hour before she died in the Presbyterian Hospital Monday evening. "I want to come home to you and papa."

That was the last time she spoke.

The funeral will take place from the Regan home, at 727 North De Kalb street, tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

$100,000 ADEQUATE FOR PEACE JUBILEE

Sum Sufficient if Plan Has Civic Support, Declares Guenther

WOULD BOOM INDUSTRIES

It was brought to the attention of J. Jarden Guenther, secretary of the welcome home committee, today that the $100,000 city appropriation would be adequate to meet the expense of the peace jubilee and, furthermore, that the industrial value of the celebration to the city is being apparently overlooked.

"It was pointed out to me that the $100,000 appropriation of the city toward the celebration of the peace jubilee is sufficient adequately to meet the cost," said Mr. Guenther.

"That we still have $150,000 worth of grand stands standing and from $10,000 to $15,000 worth of decorations left over from the Twenty-eighth parade. That even if we only are able to get $100,000 and no more it is possible for us to have a $200,000 to $250,000 show.

"I believe that we can meet a small additional expense provided we have the co-operation of the various city associations.

"In view of the statement of Mr. Widener, that $250,000 is the sum needed, there was also brought to my notice the suggestion that the apparent industrial value of such a celebration to the city has been overlooked, and I hope to bring the suggestion to the attention of the committee at the next meeting. It is this: That the industries of Philadelphia and the vicinity have boomed to a vast extent during the war. With the coming of peace these industries have suddenly ceased because the wartime demand ceased.

Would Draw Business Men

"And now in peace time the owners of these industries are casting around for somewhere to place their work.

"It can be readily understood that business men from all over the United States and Canada will flock to Philadelphia for the jubilee. And what better way, it has been suggested, could there be for our great industries to advertise by pageantry and parade how much Philadelphia can do, and how much cheaper she can do it, with her wonderful port and railroad facilities.

"Of course, it is generally believed, from the purely sentimental point of views that Philadelphia, because of its earliest tradition, is the place for a formal recognition of the great peace. The history centered about Independence Hall and Valley Forge makes Philadelphia the most desirable locality. And if the world peace is passed up by Philadelphia, it may be to its everlasting shame."

ONE OF FIVE VICTIMS DIES

Child Hit by Fire Engine Truck Succumbs to Injuries

Leonard Harner, eight years old, one of the five children injured when they were crushed against a wall on Levering street above Silverwood, in Manayunk, by the chemical truck of Engine Company No. 9 Monday night, died in St. Timothy's Hospital, Roxborough, yesterday after an effort had been made to save his life by amputating one of his injured legs. The dead boy lived at 229 Hermitage street.

LEONARD HARNER

Physicians at the hospital yesterday found it necessary to amputate one of the legs of Lottie Wheeler, another of the child victims, whose home is at 124 Gay street. The other childrenr were reported to be doing well.

CITY TO KEEP DOPE RECORD

General Hospital to Determine Effect of Prohibition on Habit

The relation of prohibition to the dope habit will be under observation at the Philadelphia General Hospital during the next six months.

Director of Public Health and Charities Krusen has instructed the physicians at the city institution to keep a record of every dope addict admitted to the institution and to determine whether the condition of the dope user is in any way a reflection of prohibition.

Since July 1 there has been a slight increase in the number of morphine, cocaine and heroin addicts admitted to the Philadelphia Hospital, but the increase was so slight that no significance is attached to it by Director Krusen.

Prohibition has not been in force for a sufficient length of time to show any effects at the hospital if such results will follow, he said.

J. F. LILLY & CO.'S ASSETS TO BE SOLD

Little Property Left Out of Which to Pay Off Million in Claims

COURT ORDERS INVENTORY

To save as much as possible for creditors out of the uncertain assets of J. Frank Lilly & Co., curb brokers, who were forced into bankruptcy after their New York offices had been raided by District Attorney Swann's detectives, Federal Judge Thompson has ordered the sale of whatever assets there are at the local office of the firm, at 123 South Broad street.

After a week's investigation receivers appointed by the New York and the Federal District Court here, have not been able to ascertain even an approximate value of the assets of the brokerage firm, but they have learned that the liabilities are in excess of $1,000,000.

Percival H. Granger, who was appointed by Judge Dickinson here as ancillary receiver for the brokers, has made a vain effort to locate assets in addition to some $1352 that is on deposit with a trust company, and on his request, Judge Thompson ordered a sale of the property that has come into his possession. The assets include principally office effects and furniture at 123 South Broad street. Judge Thompson directed that the sale take place after an inventory and appraisement had been made of the property, and ten days' notice had been given to all parties interested.

R-34 PLANS FLIGHT OVER CITY ON WAY ACROSS ATLANTIC

British Air Official Wires That Balloon, if Possible, Will Return Home Via Phila.

Philadelphians may after all get a glimpse of the "R-34," the famous British dirigible which crossed the Atlantic.

If weather conditions permit the great lighter-than-air liner will sail across this city on her return journey, which is expected to begin tomorrow.

This city has been anxious to see the big spindle-shaped craft which won the pioneer honors of the transatlantic voyage, but until noon today it seemed unlikely that Philadelphians' curiosity would be gratified.

Today, however, a telegram came from Lieutenant Colonel Lucas, representing the British air ministry at Mineola Field, addressed to Joseph A. Steinmetz, president of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, indicating that the visit might be paid after all.

Mr. Steinmetz wired congratulations, in the name of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, to the commander and crew of the British dirigible. Yesterday he went over to New York and will remain there until tomorrow. The telegram was sent to his office here in reply to his own wire of congratulation, and arrived today in his absence.

Lieutenant Colonel Lucas telegraphed as follows:

"Deeply appreciate your good wishes. If possible R-34 will fly in locality of Philadelphia on her return journey."

Officers of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania suggest that a lookout be established on the top of City Hall tower, the highest point in Philadelphia, to watch for the coming of the R-34. When the big craft, which should be visible in good weather many miles away, is sighted in the distance, the plan is to have the electrical bureau send out notice of her coming, which will be spread broadcast over the city, so that whistles may be blown and bells rung.

FRANKLIN APPLE DEAD

Berks Street Pharmacist Succumbs to Heart Disease

Franklin M. Apple, forty-nine, 3233 Berks street, well known as a pharmacist at Thirty-first and Berks streets for fifteen years, died suddenly at his home of heart disease this morning. His wife, Mrs. Mary Apple, survives him.

Mr. Apple was connected with the chemical warfare service during the war, working at Woodbury, N. J. He was graduated from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in 1890 and was given his degree in medicine by Medico-Chi in 1912. He belonged to both the Philadelphia and Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Associations.

JAMES H. CHILLMAN, JR.

FELLOWSHIP IN ROME WON

J. H. Chillman, of University of Pennsylvania, Takes Academy Prize

For the third time in seven years the annual prize of the American Academy in Rome has been awarded to a University of Pennsylvania man. The man honored this year is James H. Chillman, Jr., of 127 West Logan street, Germantown, who received his bachelor's degree from the University in 1913 and his master's degree the following year. The prize is a fellowship in the academy, and Mr. Chillman will leave for Europe in September to begin a three years' study of research in old world architecture.

Students of the Architectural School at the University of Pennsylvania, of which Dr. Warren P. Laird is director, have been admitted to the final competitions for this prize seven times in seven years. The competition for the prize which Mr. Chillman won was conducted in 1917, but during the war it was decided to abandon the prizes, and the American Academy did not notify him until yesterday of the honor that had been conferred upon him.

"The decision is made only in part as the result of the competition," said Doctor Laird, "and in part after careful consideration of the qualities of the candidate."

WOULD KEEP ALL U. S. PRESIDENTS AT HOME

Campbell Says U. S. Must Pay Later for Flattery to Wilson in Europe

INTRODUCES BILL IN HOUSE

By the Associated Press

Washington, July 9.—The President of the United States would not be permitted during his term of office to leave the country or to perform the duties of his office except at Washington under a bill introduced today by Representative Campbell, of Kansas, chairman of the House rules committee.

Representative Campbell had prepared a lengthy address in which he sharply criticized President Wilson for going to Europe for the peace conference, but unanimous consent for its immediate delivery was refused by Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas. Mr. Campbell hoped to deliver the speech later in the day, but in the meantime he made it public in the form of a statement.

"The President's arrival in Europe," he said, "was marked with the usual attentions that have ever been given to princes of the royal blood or to emperors with imperial power.

"In Paris, in London, in Rome, every art of the entertainer was exhausted upon the President. He approached royal palaces amid the applause of the multitude; he entered royal banquet halls in ancient and regal processions; he was wined and dined in royal state in every capital he entered. He was flattered with every attention that mankind can give to man. He liked it all.

"The statesmen of other lands, intent upon the welfare of their countries, artfully led him to see their countries' needs. He was easily beguiled into assuming the role that had been carefully created for him.

"The government and people of the United States are to pay for all these honored attentions in the years to come.

"The President wanted a league of nations; it was given to him. Those who sat with him at the peace table wanted to add more territory to their domains; wanted more friendly harbors at the doors of teeming millions at the ends of the paths they controlled on the sea; wanted dominion and control over smaller and weaker nations; wanted indemnity for the losses they sustained in the war; wanted security and prestige for their government and people for future wars, and wanted the United States to share the burden of policing Europe and maintaining the boundaries of their nation, and they got what they wanted.

"No country can safely permit its chief executive to intrude himself into the domestic affairs of another country. When the President of the United States, in France, in England and in Italy, mistook the royal reception he had received from those in high places and the applause that was given him by the multitude for an invitation to become their political master he lost his own prestige and that of his country.

"It will require the work of years to restore the government and the people of the United States to their former cordial and congenial relationships with the other countries of the world and with those people with whom the President has recently come in contact."

ASQUITH VISITS COBLENZ

Dines With Commander of U. S. Army of Occupation

Coblenz, July 9.—(By A. P.)—Herbert H. Asquith, former British premier, who has been visiting the British occupied area, arrived here today and was a dinner guest of Major General Henry T. Allen, the new commander of the American forces in Germany.

Mr. Asquith plans to spend several days in the Coblenz bridgehead district.

$25,000 AND HOME WILLED TO SERVANT BY EMPLOYER

Oliver D. Wood, of Camden, Also Bequeaths $130,000 to Hospital Out of Estate of $150,000

A negro woman domestic, employed for thirty-five years in the home of Oliver D. Wood, 312 North Third street, Camden, was left $25,000 in the will of her employer.

She also receives the house, in an excellent section of Camden, and its contents. In the will, probated today, she was remembered "for faithful service" not only to Mr. Wood, but to all members of the household. The servant is Anna Blackstone.

Mr. Wood left an estate valued at $150,000 and upwards, to which there are no heirs who are relatives.

The will left $30,000 to Cooper Hospital for the establishment of five beds in memory of his father, his mother, his two sisters and himself. The Camden Home for Friendless Children receives $5000, as do the West Jersey Homeopathic Hospital and the First Presbyterian Church.

"To my friend and physician, Dr. F. A. Marcy," Mr. Wood left his jewelry and $10,000. Another friend, Miss Sara Turner, of Twelfth and Cooper streets, Camden, received $10,000 through the will.

Bequests of $5000 were left to Myron W. Miller, of Pensauken Township, and Morris Blackston, of Elkridge, Md.

To Frank Klagtennigker, of Twelfth and Linden streets, Camden, who cared for Mr. Wood's boat, are left the boat, the boathouse, and $1000. Alfred A. Gardner and Helen Weigantz, of Vineland, N. J., friends of Mr. Wood, received $1000 each.

Alfred R. Haig, an dttorney of this city, is named as executor of the estate.

MAYOR SMITH TO URGE $250,000 FOR BRIDGE

Says He Will Have Bill Introduced in Councils Tomorrow. Passage Assured

ALWAYS FAVORED MEASURE

Vote on Bridge Loan in November, Is Report

A permanent loan to be voted upon in the November election will be the method used to finance the Philadelphia-Camden bridge, according to a report this afternoon which Mayor Smith would neither deny nor confirm.

Louis N. Spielberger, chairman of the joint bridge committee of the Philadelphia and Camden Chambers of Commerce, said that this method was suggested in a conversation he had with Chairman Gaffney, of Councils' finance committee.

According to the report, the money appropriated for the bridge would be refunded from the loan, which would be sufficiently large to undertake the first couple of years' work on the bridge, and, if a popular loan were floated, it would include funds for water and other municipal improvements.

Mayor Smith announced today that he would have introduced in Councils tomorrow a bill appropriating $250,000 as Philadelphia's share for the first year toward constructing the proposed Philadelphia-Camden bridge. Work is expected to begin in the fall.

Governor Sproul is expected today to sign a bill passed in the last Legislature appropriating $250,000 as the state's first contribution to the project and $500,000 for the second year. New Jersey already has provided for its equal share of $500,000 for the first year.

The Governor is expected also to sign a bill putting the present bridge commission out of existence. The members are Mayor Smith, Alfred E. Burk and John T. Windrim. The new commission will consist of the Governor, the Mayor and the head of one of the state departments.

Joint Meeting Held

At a joint meeting of the Delaware river bridge committee of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and of the Camden Chamber of Commerce yesterday a subcommittee of the Philadelphia Chamber's committee was named to interview Mayor Smith. This subcommittee is composed of Louis N. Spielberger, chairman of the Delaware river bridge committee; George Wentworth Carr, William T. Kirk, Wilson H. Lear, Joseph S. MacLaughlin, director of the Department of Supplies; William H. Richardson, and Joseph F. Stockwell.

Await Sproul's Action

At the joint meeting it was pointed out that action by Philadelphia City Councils is all that is necessary to begin the actual undertaking of the bridge between the two cities. New Jersey has a commission appointed and waiting for the action of Pennsylvania, and with the signing of the new act by Governor Sproul, which is expected today, the entire project will be up to the city of Philadelphia.

The members of the Camden Chamber of Commerce Delaware river bridge committee who attended the joint meeting yesterday were Dr. I. N. Griscom, chairman; Charles K. Cook, J. M. Headman, Charles Curry, Walter Williams Sharpley, Robert D. Clow, Jr., A. C. Abele, William Schmid, Joseph Forsythe and E. B. Hollinshead. F. Morse Archer, president of the Camden Chamber of Commerce, and Upton S. Jeffreys, editor of the Camden Post-Telegram, also attended the meeting.

CITIZENS FIGHT BAN ON SUNDAY SPORTS

Petition to Protest Injunction Action on Park Games Prepared by Taxpayers

ACTION SET FOR TOMORROW

Counsel representing six citizens and taxpayers, who oppose the suppression of the outdoor games in the park on Sundays, have prepared a petition of protest to the suit for an injunction to be heard by Court of Common Pleas No. 5 tomorrow. They will present it at the bar of the court, and ask that their clients be permitted to intervene as parties to the case. The petitioners desire to be placed in the controversy as representing the public at large. Their names and residences are give nas follows:

H. Willis Fleu, 1839 North Twentieth street; Jacob Rudolph, 1945 North Napa street; Solomon Getz, 2500 North Stanley street; Solomon Beitleman, 1910 North Patton street; Isaac Greenberg, 1936 North Patton street, and Dennis A. Sullivan, 1339 North Eleventh street.

After setting forth that the petitioners are citizens and taxpayers, interested in the welfare of the park, the petition calls attention to the filing of the injunction suit by the commonwealth, at the instance of District Attorney Rotan and the Sabbatarian associations and ministers. The suit, it is explained, is of great public interest, affecting the recreation, health and outdoor life of thousands of the residents of this city. The petitioners "pray for the right to intervene as parties to the said bill and as friends of the court for the purpose of bringing before it the rights of the people at large in the subject matter of the suit."

Attorneys held a conference with Judges Stanke and Monaghan today, and were directed to formally present their petition at the bar of the court when the injunction suit is ready for hearing.

NO SALOONS IN CITY SELL HARD LIQUOR

Department of Justice and U. S. Attorney Kane Make Announcement After Inquiry

BUT COMPLAINTS CONTINUE

Saloons in this city are not selling whisky or wines.

This statement was made today at headquarters of the Department of Justice and was confirmed by United States District Attorney Kane.

While scores of complaints have been received at the Federal Building, giving names and addresses of alleged violators, the dragnet spread by the Department of Justice agents and the city detectives working in conjunction with the federal authorities, has failed to produce a single violation.

Mr. Kane said this afternoon that he was astonished that the saloons which remain open have adhered so strictly to the law. "It seems almost incredible," he said. "I have had scores of letters, but no evidence whatsoever has been obtained to show that whisky is being sold."

Twelve additional complaints were received in today's mail. These will be investigated, the United States attorney announced.

Bartenders of Local No. 115 went in session this morning and are continuing their meeting during the afternoon. This meeting is to perfect details for a massed gathering tonight in the Union Trades' Association Building, 232 North Ninth street.

It is understood that protests will be made against nonunion men working in the saloons which remain open. All union men will be asked to refrain from patronizing establishments where nonunion bartenders serve beer.

The state-wide attempt being made to have the Brooks high license law made applicable to the sale of near-beer is fostered by the brewers in an attempt to placate the retail liquor dealers, according to the latter.

The retailers view it as an attempt to delude them, and say there is not the slightest doubt that if 2¾ per cent beer is made legal all drug and candy stores and similar establishments will be permitted to sell the near-beer without molestation.

Union bartenders yesterday completed their walkout in their attempt to make Philadelphia "bone" dry. Last night it was stated that but twelve union bartenders are still on the job dispensing liquid refreshments over saloon bars.

According to reports made to Superintendent of Police Robinson, 435 saloons were open in this city yesterday. About the same number are believed to be open today.

Seek to Clarify Thompson Case

Creditors of Josiah V. Thompson, the bankrupt Uniontown, Pa., banker and coal operator, who failed to appear at an argument before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here on June 24, were ordered by the court today to file a statement whether they intend to retain their status for objecting to an injunction restraining them from attempting to collect their judgments against Thompson.

HOLD HE SHOULD BE TRIED

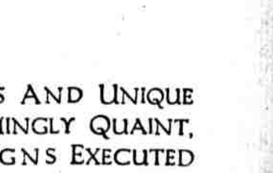
Special Dispatch to Evening Public Ledger

Harrisburg, Pa., July 9.—New York authorities today informed Attorney General Schaffer, before whom the extradition proceedings for the removal of Harry K. Thaw, of Pittsburgh, to New York for trial on the charge of having assaulted Frederick Gump, a Kansas City school boy, that they had information to the effect that Thaw's mental condition has so far improved he is able to make trips to Pittsburgh and elsewhere and is frequently seen in Philadelphia theatres and cafes.

They asked to be permitted at a hearing to show that their contentions are founded on fact, and that Thaw is in condition to be returned for trial.

Aged Man Found Dead

George Frymaire, eighty-four years old, was found dead in bed today by his daughter at his home, 1302 South Hancock street. Dr. Philip Getson, a family physician, pronounced his death to be the result of natural causes. Mr. Frymaire was known about the neighborhood as a traditional figure.



What Do You Call It?

You know the name of your favorite soap, tooth-powder and numerous articles of food and clothing. But when you need an umbrella you do not ask for a particular brand, simply because you do not know of any. Yet THE DELINEATOR families spend yearly $855,000 for umbrellas—umbrellas enough to make a roof over 112 acres. And there are other articles of necessity not yet advertised. What do you make of interest to a million families?
