

Hurrahing for Peace Treaty in London : Paradise Farm Tongue Test : Fishing From Seaplane

Photo by GILLIAMS SERVICE

CELEBRATING THE SIGNING of peace on the Strand, London. Tommies, Yanks and Australians in vociferous and enthusiastic demonstration outside the Eagle Hut when the news arrived that Germany had signed the treaty.

FISHING TRIPS are now being made by seaplane. The Atlantic City angler wings his way out to sea for five or six miles, then alights on the sea's surface for an hour or so of sport with hook and line.

Photo by LEDGER PHOTO SERVICE

HOLDING HIS TONGUE OUT so Dr. Alice Milligan may see that he is all right for a two weeks' outing on Paradise Farm, the Children's Country Week Association's vacation land.

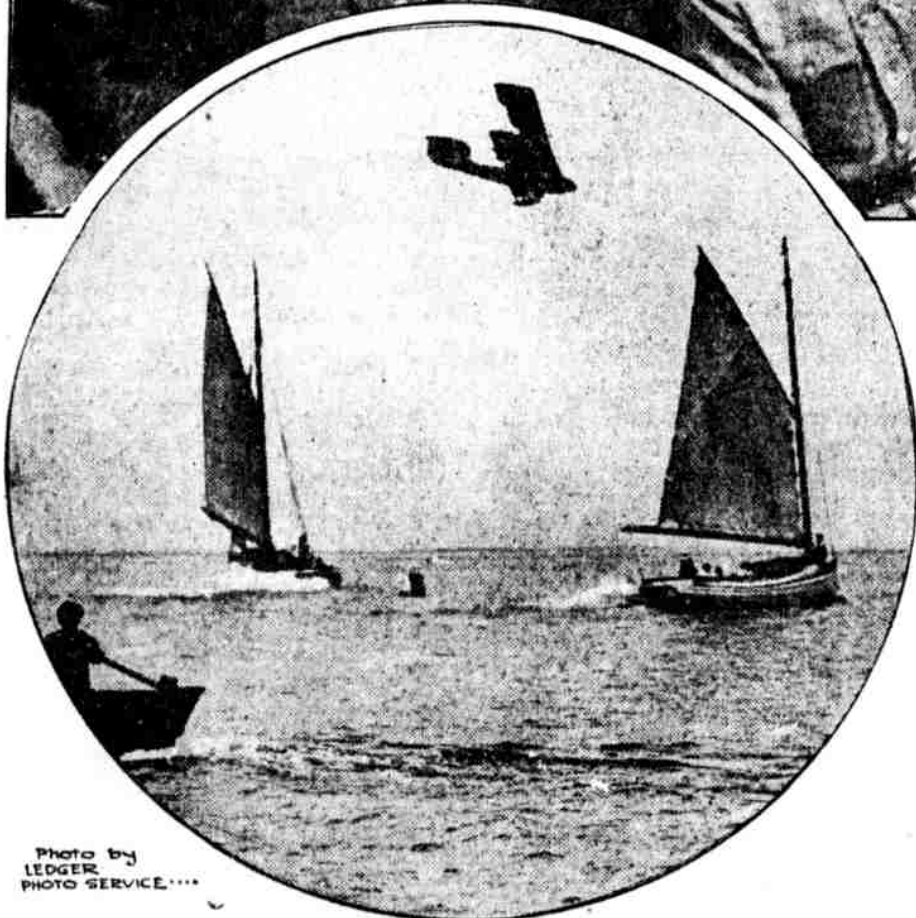

Photo by LEDGER PHOTO SERVICE

Photo by LEDGER PHOTO SERVICE

START OF the long-distance run in the Washington Yeomanettes' athletic meet held in the national capital.

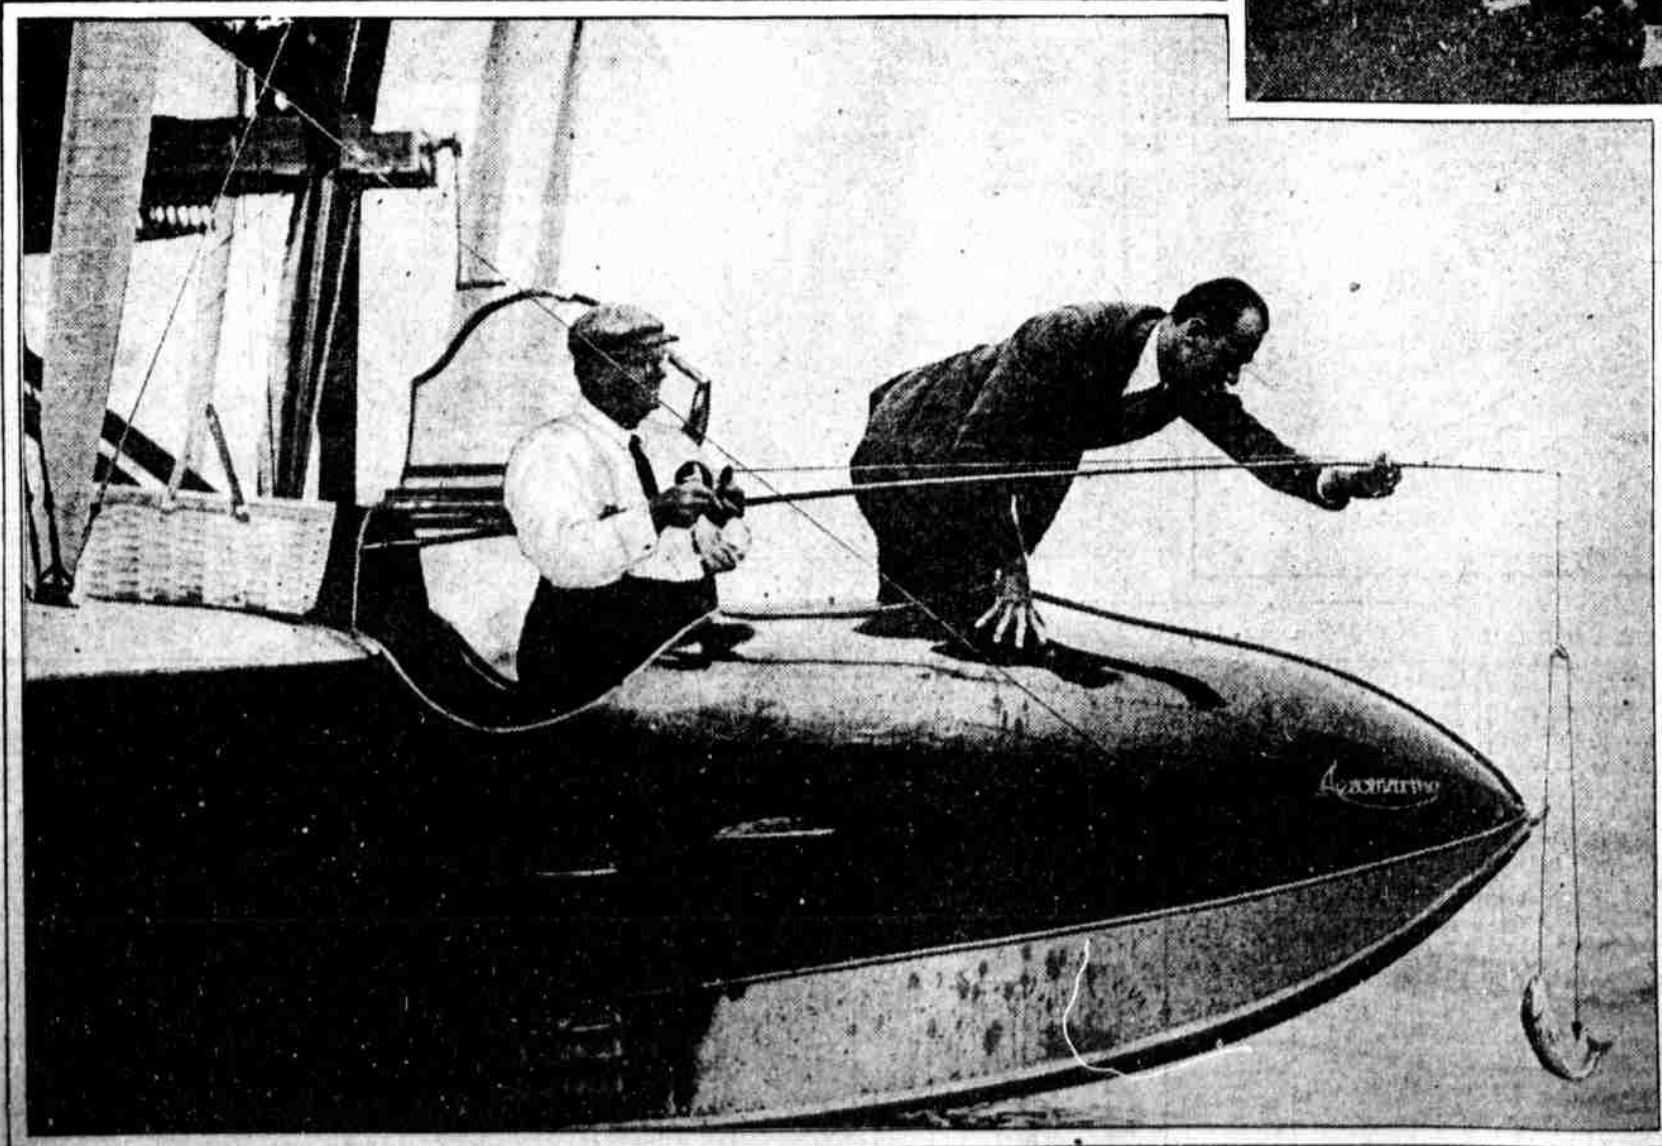

Photo by LEDGER PHOTO SERVICE

A SEAPLANE FISHERMAN, John Ralston, who flies out to sea from Atlantic City in the airmarine limousine to fish. E. K. Jaquith is the pilot. When the fish fail to bite in one locality, the pilot flies his plane over the water to try again.

Photo by LEDGER PHOTO SERVICE

RIGHT OUT OF THE SALT WATERS of Strathmere, N. J., a nice one just reeled in by E. Miner Fenton, of Philadelphia.