Bars Poorly Patronized Judging from the small sales made by Fhiladelphia saloonkeepers on Satur day, when it is estimated there were 1500 saloons open offering 2.75 per cent beer for sale, the vending of the inferior product will not appeal indefinitely to the masses. On Friday the official record of saloons open in the city was 1275. Saturday night most of the saloons we strangely empty or lacking in the number of customers and bartenders, wear-ing bored expressions, leaned across the bars and had little occasion to use the cash registers.
