

HUSBAND SHOTS WIFE, KILLS SELF

All-Day Quarrel Results in Suicide and Attempt to Slay Woman

IRON BAR USED IN FIGHT

Called to the door of her home, 5043 Market street, Mrs. Annie Young was confronted by her husband, Frederick Michael Young, from whom she had separated, owing to his alleged brutality, and was met with a fusillade of bullets.

Three of four shots fired by his hand struck the wife, one entering her head, another lodging in her back and the third in her right leg. The fourth went wild. She is in the Presbyterian Hospital. It is believed she will recover.

Following the alleged attempted murder of his wife, which took place late yesterday afternoon, Young turned the revolver upon himself, firing the remaining two bullets into the roof of his mouth. Death came soon afterward to him in the West Philadelphia Hospital.

Goes to Drug Store Mrs. Young, although but partly clad, showed great fortitude after she had been shot by her husband. She succeeded in making her way to a drug store at Fifty-third and Market streets, where she gnawed out her condition before she expired. She was hurried to the hospital for treatment.

The attempted murder of the wife and the suicide of the husband is described by neighbors to be the culmination of an all-day quarrel between the couple. Young, who was fifty-four years old, the police say, served a term in the Eastern Penitentiary for a similar offense. Her recently he was released.

Visiting his wife yesterday, Young is declared by his son Joseph to have engaged in a quarrel with his mother over the disposition of the children of the couple. The Youngs were married twelve years ago and have three children, William, twelve; John, eleven, and Charles, three. The children are being cared for by neighbors. Mrs. Young conducted a second-hand furniture store at her home address.

"Mamma and papa talked all afternoon," said eleven-year-old John, telling his story to the police of the Peace and Media streets station. "Then mamma sent me to mail a letter and while I was putting it into the mailbox a box came raining up to me and told me I had better go home because my father and mother were both hurt."

The three children of the Youngs are being cared for at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Catherine Born, 43 North Farnon street. They were in good spirits when seen there today, following a good breakfast served them by their friend and hostess, who was intimate with their mother. Only the fear that he would die in jail and thus bring shame upon the children kept Mrs. Young from separating from her husband a few days ago, it was said today.

News received by the three children that their mother was almost certain to recover from her wounds made them very happy.

Relatives of Mrs. Young from Baltimore are expected to come to Philadelphia today and arrange to take the three children and care for them until such time as their mother is discharged from the hospital and is physically capable to look after them. Meantime kindly Mrs. Born is attending to their wants voluntarily.

Seized Iron Bar Before turning the revolver upon himself, Young, the police say, seeing that the shots fired at his wife were not immediately fatal, seized an iron bar and hit her over the head with it.

Told that her husband was still alive, shortly before his death at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Young remarked, "Well, he ought to be dead."

When the Youngs were married, Mrs. Young was scarcely twenty. Her husband was about twice her age. Neighbors say that Mrs. Young is a hard working woman. They tell of frequent quarrels that occurred when the husband visited the home. Mrs. Sally Dietrich, a lodger in Mrs. Young's home, heard the revolver shots.

Acting Detective Senis, who visited the Presbyterian Hospital to obtain Mrs. Young's statement, was told by the surgeons that her recovery was almost certain, and left without taking her deposition. The tragedy occurred about 5:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Young was preparing supper when the doorbell rang, and she was met by a volley of bullets from her husband's revolver when she opened the door. Young, at the time of his marriage, was a divorced man. His first wife, neighbors say, obtained a divorce from him on the ground of cruelty.

At the Presbyterian Hospital today it was said that Mrs. Young, while suffering from her wounds and other injuries, was considered to be improving. She passed a comfortable night.

CAFÉ OWNER SEEKS DEATH

Lancaster Avenue Man Said to Have Lost on Races

H. McMahon, seventy-nine years old, a restaurant owner, of Lancaster avenue near Fifty-second street, the police say, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a small penknife. The wound is serious.

McMahon, who formerly was well known around the race tracks, and who is said to have lost a fortune in betting, has been ill for some time. Yesterday morning his wife, on going upstairs, found him with blood streaming from a cut in his neck. She called the ambulance of the West Philadelphia General Hospital and he was taken to that institution.

Pastor for Hog Island Church The mission of the new Presbyterian church which is being established at Sixty-fifth street and Bul at avenue has been placed under the leadership of the Rev. S. B. Goff. This mission is being organized with a view of assisting those of the Presbyterian Church who are new in the district of the Hog Island shipyard. Rev. Goff was welcomed by a large attendance at both services.

BOYS HELD FOR TAKING AUTO HAPPY IN POLICE STATION

Lads of Seven and Eleven Years Do Not Seem to Appreciate Gravity of Offense or Car Owner's Sympathy

Two youngsters who skylarked about in a room in the Lower Merion police station today did not seem to realize they were under arrest for the alleged theft of an automobile.

Joe Marmon, seven years old, and Chester Cattell, eleven, of Bryn Mawr, are accused of "borrowing" the motor car of Leonidas Beck, a paper manufacturer, of Wynnewood. They drove the car four miles Saturday in a downpour of rain and were caught after they ditched the machine.

When Mr. Beck called at the police station and saw the defendants his anger changed to sympathy. With the permission of Magistrate Richard T. Lewis, of Ardmore, he tried to make the boys realize the nature of the alleged offense and what it might lead to.

"There is a bigger problem here than the mere stealing and damaging of the car," Mr. Beck told the magistrate. The boys looked up at the officer as though expecting a session in the woodshed. The younger boy's head was lower than the edge of the desk in the hearing room.

"These tiny youngsters," Mr. Beck continued, "are future citizens, and you and I have simply got to do something in the light of that big problem."

So it was decided to turn the boys over to the juvenile officials of Montgomery county. While waiting for the juvenile officers, Joe and Chester were locked in a good-sized room in the police station.

"They got up early today and have been raising Cain and skylarking about ever since," a police sergeant said this morning. "They don't seem to realize what they did."

Saturday was not the first time Joe Marmon met the magistrate. He was caught once before with other boys who broke into a baker shop, the police say, and ate up all the ice cream and cake they could find.

The Marmon boy is one of a family of twelve children. His father has been in a hospital for nearly nine months.

RETURN MISSING BOY

Camden Lad Told Benefactor He Was Orphan

When nine-year-old Halsey Blaint, of 1120 South Second street, Camden, failed to return to his home after an absence of about a week, his step-mother reported to the police that she believed he was drowned.

Yesterday Mrs. William Hertline, of 210 South Eighth street, called on the police with the boy. She said she stopped at her home and said his mother was dead and he had no one to care for him. He was given something to eat.

When he returned the next day he was again given food. He said he was sleeping at the home of a neighbor.

Later the boy admitted that he had been sleeping on porches and in out-houses.

MRS. DREXEL AT CAMP

Red Cross Worker Reviews Men at Biddle Field

Red Cross Day at Camp Drexel Biddle, the civilian training camp at Lansdowne, was featured by the visit of Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, in charge of the eastern service section of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Red Cross. Mrs. Drexel inspected the camp, and, with the officers, watched 200 men training there pass in review.

Mrs. Drexel with two staff captains as aides was formally received by Major A. J. Drexel Biddle, of the marine corps; Captain H. H. Conroy, commander of the camp; Colonel Hamilton D. South, fleet marine officer, and members of the eastern section of the Drexel Biddle Red Cross Chapter, No. 9.

According to a report of the police, Rich, went in bathing in Neshaminy creek, near Hallowville. The waters of the stream are swollen and the fierce depth before his eyes for help could be answered.

Search for the body has thus far proved futile. Robert Best, one of the drowned boy's companions in the canoe charged patient of the Philadelphia Hospital.

The two Taylors and Steenman were injured in an automobile accident on Bensalem turnpike just outside of Bustleton. Joseph Taylor was driving. He turned aside to avoid colliding with another automobile and struck a tree standing near the road. All the occupants of the machine were thrown to the street.

None was seriously injured. Joseph Taylor was arrested and charged with reckless driving. He will be given a hearing at the Tacony station this morning.

Eight Philadelphians were among more than a score of summer visitors from several cities who were snatched from a heavy sea into pitching lifeboats after they had been trapped in a deep hole on the South Carolina avenue bathing grounds at Atlantic City.

Until it was filled by a rising sea the hole excited no alarm among bathers as they made their way seaward, for the reason that it then was but little more than a heavy sea into pitching lifeboats. The attacks of the crashing breakers, men and women suddenly found themselves slung into a train that was over shoulder deep, and wild screams for help ensued.

Mildred Young, Abraham Meyers, Rudolph Hanson, H. J. Johnson and Charles Benson were picked up one after another by Guards McCullom and Yates while their boat shipped large quantities of water and repeatedly threatened to capsize.

At the same point Guards McKenna and McCann rescued Fred Estell, John Anderson and Harry Bright.

BIG DEMAND FOR PENNIES

Coinage at Philadelphia Mint Breaking All Records

The demand for pennies continues unabated. The Philadelphia Mint for the greater part of the present month has been turning out 2,500,000 pennies a day and at present is producing from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 of the copper pieces each day, the reduced output being due to work in coining nickels and dimes.

The coinage of pennies is breaking all previous records.

4 KILLED, 3 INJURED, IS ACCIDENT TOLL

Two Boys Drown in Creeks, One Run Over by Trolley, Another Hit by Train

EIGHT RESCUED AT SHORE

Four persons are dead and three are injured as the result of week-end traffic and water accidents.

Eight other Philadelphians were rescued at Atlantic City.

This is lower than the average of the last several Sundays, but the police say that the heavy rainfall of the last several days kept many persons at home and thus decreased the chances of injury.

The dead persons were: Edward E. Rich, 3310 Bonner street, Westmoreland; drowned in the Neshaminy creek.

Amos Richardson, a negro, eighteen years old, 2202 South Seventy-second street; drowned in Cobbs' creek.

Tony Tolsko, four years old, 1246 South Clinton street; run over by a trolley car.

An unidentified man; struck by a train at Percy and Willow streets. The injured are: Joseph Taylor, Westmoreland street near Emerald; general contusion; non-fatal automobile accident.

Thomas Taylor, Westmoreland street near Emerald; bruises and lacerations of head; automobile accident.

Hugh Stevenson, Westmoreland street near Emerald; bruises and lacerations of head; automobile accident.

Goes in Bathing According to a report of the police, Rich, went in bathing in Neshaminy creek, near Hallowville. The waters of the stream are swollen and the fierce depth before his eyes for help could be answered.
