

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Hears of the Entertaining in Rhode Island Resorts—She Talks of Another Debut and Describes Old Country Place

NARRAGANSETT PIER is "going strong," as it were, when it comes to entertaining. Miss Lily Gatchel is up there now starting with the Frank Samuels and Mrs. C. W. Bailey is with Mrs. Amy, who is staying at the Massachusetts Hotel.

Mildred Harrison von Holstein, in other words the Countess von Holstein, has been visiting Mrs. Plunkett Stewart, but she has just left for Wood's Hole, Mass., to stay with her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harrison. Mrs. Saunders Jones gave a dinner last night at Holiday House for Miss Gatchel and Mrs. Amy gave a luncheon on Monday for Mrs. Bailey. There have been several other entertainments arranged for Miss Gatchel, too, so not only the younger set is gay up there.

WASN'T it a joy yesterday when it actually went from morning till afternoon without rain, and even though humid there was a change of wind and so we can hope for clear weather again for a while at least.

Let's take a trip across the bay from Narragansett to Jamestown, and motor across that island and catch the little old ferry to Newport and there we'll be. And maybe we'll find out what all the fuss at the Clubhouse is about. I heard it was because Mr. Reggie Vanderbilt insisted that the parties had to finish at one o'clock at the latest. And that the younger set was mad about it, because they liked to dance in the wee sma' hours and did not want to stop so early.

But then you know attendants do have to sleep some time and by the time you sleep up a club house after a dance and the club members start coming in by nine and ten the next morning you just aren't cleared up. Some one had to do something and Mr. Vanderbilt was really very liberal in allowing things to go on after midnight. And when you come to think of it there is nothing to startle you that early; wonder what they'd think of that?

MR. JOSEPH HARRISON gave a dandy party for the younger set on Tuesday night at the Clubhouse. There were about thirty at the dinner, and some fifty extra guests came to dance. Pauline Wainwright, Margaret Dunlap and P. W. Widener were among the Philadelphians at the dinner. Suzanne and Betty Pierson were there, too, and so was Barbara Lowy.

THE Annual Rescue League seems to be turning attention to higher animals this summer. The rescue league has that some members of that society are getting up a dance to be given tomorrow night, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to ice cream for the tubercular patients in Blockley.

If you have ever been through the tubercular wards out there you will know what a treat it is to those poor suffering people, and I doubt not there will be a large attendance at the dance which is to be held at Newman's in the Fuller Building, at Eighteenth and Market streets. Miss Kitty Biddle is president of the league. Miss Beatrice Biddle is vice president. Mrs. E. P. Halvey, secretary, and Mr. Samuel Hinds Thomas is treasurer.

SARAH VALENTINE FOX is to be a debutante next year. She is the daughter of the Joseph Mickle Foxes, of Andalusia. They live at the "old place," the old country home of the Fox family, which Doctor Fox bought some fifteen years ago. The late Mr. Charles Borie, who married Miss Clementine McKean, lived at the Dell for many years before his death. And their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lewis, Jr., and their family lived there for many years after that, but finally sold the property to Doctor Fox.

The late Mr. George Fox lived on the adjoining place in Andalusia at the time, and next to his place was the late Mr. Sam Fox's home. Mrs. Sam Fox and her daughter Elizabeth still live in the old place, but the George Fox property has been sold, and Mrs. Fox and her daughter Emily live now in Chestnut Hill.

Sarah Fox, the debutante, is named for her aunt, Mrs. George W. Norris, who was Miss Sarah Fox. She has a first cousin, Mrs. George Farrer, who was also Miss Sarah V. Fox. Her sister Maud married Mr. Stanley Babson, of West Orange, a couple of years ago, and Jean, another sister, made her debut just before the war.

There are all extremely attractive girls and have very pretty names. Sarah is to have a tea out at the Andalusia home early in November. I understand, though, the date has yet been set. Indeed, it's hard to find a day that has not been taken; and one must be careful if one lives in Andalusia, for instance, not to choose the same day as some other debutante who lives on the Main Line. For one or the other would have to do without some of the guests, as even in fast motors it takes much time to go across country that distance. The Fox place is perfectly lovely. It stands high on an embankment over the Delaware between Torresdale and Cornwells, and is just opposite that small, uninhabited island in the middle of the Delaware; Edgewater Park is about a mile farther up on the other side of the water.

There is a beautiful sunken garden at the back of the old-fashioned house, and the house and most of the grounds are shaded with great old trees. It is a perfect spot. NANCY WYNNE.

IT'S FAIR ON BOTH SIDES

ASSERTS HOME ASSISTANT
Life of Social Economy Professor Says She and Her Aid Work Together—Result Pleases Both

A home assistant is the only possible solution of the domestic situation for a woman whose activities extend beyond the home and who needs a responsible person to look after the affairs of the house during her absence, according to the experience of Helen Glenn Tyson, who has tried the experiment both in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

There is no other possible solution, says Mrs. Tyson, wife of Francis Tyson, professor of social economy at the University of Pittsburgh, and now lecturing on sociology in the summer school of the University of Pennsylvania. "We have really come to the time when it is Hobson's choice."

Of course, it is not a new idea to me, in Pittsburgh, where perhaps 50 per cent of the students in the university earn part of their way through college. I have been used to the requirements, I am accustomed to address my assistants by their last name and title.

Works for Day Nurseries
Mrs. Tyson is filling in as executive secretary of day nurseries during her stay in Philadelphia and is living at 3540 Chestnut street, in Pittsburgh, during the winter, she lectures at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. For a number of years she has been active in social work in the state, at one time having been state supervisor of the "Mothers' Assistance Fund."

"I spend about twenty hours a week on the day nurseries, which means two full days away from home and a few additional hours. I am particularly fortunate in having Miss Worsham with me this summer. She is unusually competent and I can feel safe in leaving my fifteen-month-old little girl with her, for she understands infant psychology."

Miss Mayne Worsham, the home assistant, frankly admits that the summer's work is only an experiment. She is a graduate of Temple University, in the domestic science department, and is particularly interested in dietetic work. "She hopes to teach in the fall or to take a position as dietitian in a hospital or other institution."

Her present position Miss Worsham has had an opportunity to prove that the home assistant is far removed from the old-time domestic.

Fair on Both Sides
"It's fair on both sides," she says, and it is far more definite.

Answering the question as to who planned the meals, Mrs. Tyson and Miss Worsham looked at each other and smiled. "We plan them together," was the reply.

Miss Worsham arrives at about 9 o'clock in the morning in time to finish the kitchen work and following the breakfast, which Mrs. Tyson herself prepares. During the course of the day Miss Worsham has a half-hour's free time for lunch, three quarters of an hour for dinner and a rest hour in the afternoon. Her eight-hour day is ended shortly after 7 o'clock, when she goes home.

For convenience Miss Worsham gets her luncheon and dinner at the Tyson home and for these two meals pays $2 a week to Mrs. Tyson from the $12 which she receives as home assistant.

In addition to the evenings and nights spent at home Miss Worsham has her work at noon Saturday and returns the Monday morning following.

Loneliness Eliminated
The problem of loneliness, which has been a big factor in the domestic situation for many years, is virtually eliminated by the free evenings and free work and for social life that obtain in the home assistant experiment. Drudgery, of course, cannot be eliminated so long as cooking is done and pots and pans need to be washed, but a sharing of the drudgery has taken away the stigma that formerly attached.

The home assistant movement was started by the Germantown Y. W. C. A. several months ago. A considerable number of people showed interest in the experiment and probably a dozen home assistants have been placed in this vicinity. The success of the experiment always depends upon the ability of the employer to organize the work of her home and to realize that the home assistant is an employee and not a servant.

FIFTH DISTRICT PLANS

$10,000 MEMORIAL
Franklin Square May Be Site of Proposed Monument to Soldiers of World War

A $10,000 memorial monument in honor of those who entered service from the fifth district of Philadelphia will be the culmination of the patriotic work done by members of the sixth, eleventh and twelfth district boards and women's auxiliary of the fifth district.

Funds for the monument are being raised by a series of street carnivals in the different wards, the second of which will be held Friday and Saturday of this week on New Market street between Green street and Fairmount avenue. Committee members hope the $10,000 will be raised by September. The monument probably will be erected in Franklin Square.

Since the beginning of the war women of the fifth district have taken good care of their service men, supplying each with comfort kits and all the paraphernalia that made things easier and more comfortable for the boys.

"Nothing was too good for our boys," said Mrs. Adam Shanfer, chairman of the women's auxiliary of what is now called the Fifth District War Memorial Association, "and when the men suggested a monument as a memorial to those who served the women were eager to do their share. The monument will be in honor of all those who entered service from the district. There were at least 1100 drafted men, probably 200 enlisted men and a few nurses. We don't want to leave any of them out. I believe more nationalities were represented from this district than any other section of the city. It was a cosmopolitan contingent, but race or creed made no difference to the committee. We provided for all alike as they started to camp, and now we hope to keep the names of them all on an honor roll that will live through generations."

Daniel Connolly is chairman of the Fifth District War Memorial Association and also treasurer of the women's auxiliary. Mrs. Shanfer is chairman of the auxiliary and Mrs. Louis Schuler secretary.

The street carnival this week will be featured by a number of surprises. There will be music by the police band and by local talent. Booths are to be erected along New Market street, where refreshments, souvenirs and handkerchiefs articles will be sold. Residences and business houses along the block will be decorated for the occasion.

ACTORS IN ANGRY MOOD
Possibility of Strike Seen in Refusal of Managers to Confer

New York, July 24.—Possibility of a strike by actors that would do much to tie up the theatrical business of the country became evident yesterday, following a meeting held by the council of the Actors' Equity Association to consider refusal of the Producing Managers' Association to appoint a joint board of arbitration with the players.

The letter of the actors, who recently affiliated with the Federation of Labor, requested that a joint committee of players and managers meet to "find a means of obtaining continuous operation instead of constant lock-out."

To this the managers returned a refusal, based on the contention that such a conference had been made impossible by the recent action of the Actors' Equity Association in bringing into their councils "men who have proved in the past neither friend to the actor nor to the managers, men who have thrived only in the fostering of bitterness and discord which it did not previously exist."

This reply has greatly incensed the actors.

Frank Gilmore, executive secretary of the actors' body, said in the event of a strike his new affiliation would enable it to call out the stage hands, electricians and theatrical employees generally.

PROHIBITION SCORES

AGAIN IN STATISTICS
Fewer Commitments of Men to House of Correction. Women Till Farm

WANTYED—Farm labor. Apply House of Correction.
For the first time in the history of this institution, the scarcity of compulsory men and women inmates in tilling the soil and harvesting the crops on the Holmesburg farms. Score again for prohibition.

A decrease of 25 per cent in the number of men committed to the House of Correction has followed the closing of the saloons, according to statistics furnished today by Chief Clerk John Bennett. For the first time in two days in July, sixty men and forty-six women were committed from Philadelphia, as against 102 men and forty-eight women committed during the same period last year.

As a consequence, the institution is short about 800 men to operate the farms, quarry and the gas works. An expedient, Superintendent John Patterson says, is to put the available men to work in the quarry and gas works, and is using the women inmates on the farms.

Prohibition apparently has had little or no influence on the number of women committed. The average of last year, it is said, has been maintained this year by the commitment of women of the underworld for reformation.
