

SERGEANT GUARINI WON FRENCH BRIDE

"America Mos' Beautifullest Country I Evars See," Says Pretty Madame

PARENTS PLAN RECEPTION

When Juliet, the fair French munition worker, met Sergeant Anthony Guarini, of the salvage corps, at Bourge, France, there wasn't anything else for Mr. Dan Cupid to do but let fly one of his golden arrows.

Juliet worked in a salvage factory in the town of Bourge. Her father, Alfred, after four years' service at the front, was invalided home, and since Juliet could not go to the front she worked with more than 200 other French girls visiting their families one day about two years ago an American salvage outfit went into camp at Bourge. The men were detailed to work at the same factory and Sergeant Guarini was one of the men.

On May 15, 1919, Anthony and Juliet were married at the home of Juliet's parents. The best man was Sergeant Michael Di Santis, a buddy of Anthony, and the bridesmaid was Miss Gabrielle Martelin, the bride's sister. Attendants at this wedding of the big and the olive drab were Private Anthony Batiste and Josephine Galtier Martelin. There was a host of kinsmen in veteran blue.

"I cannot talk ze English so nice," said Mrs. Guarini today, "but I talk her well enough to tell you America is ze mos' beautifulst contry vat I evars see. Oh, please do come Sunday. My new mothair and ze papa promise to give us—vat you call? a reception? Yes? You woul come? That woul be gra-n-and!"

"DEAD" SOLDIER HAS CROIX

William Blee Wears Decoration Sadly Sent to Family

The Croix de Guerre, with a silver star, sent to this city to be delivered to the home of Private William Blee, of 4133 North Darius street, who, according to the War Department, "was killed in action last August," is being worn by the young soldier himself.

The French decoration was received at the army recruiting office at 1425 Arch street, from the adjutant general in Washington. Inquiry made at the home of Mrs. Margaret Liddy, the man's mother, revealed the fact that official announcement of his demise probably resulted through an error in cabling.

Private Blee enlisted when war was declared, and served eighteen months in France. Last year he was gassed and was in a hospital for several months. He was awarded the French decoration for driving his ambulance through a heavy gas attack and caring for the wounded until finally he was gassed.

CITY SOLDIER'S FRENCH WEDDING PARTY

The above group was taken in Bourge, France, on May 15, 1919, after the marriage of Miss Juliet Martelin, of Bourge, France, to Sergeant Anthony Guarini, of 1630 South Fifteenth street, Philadelphia. The bride couple are sitting in the middle of the group. On either side are members of the bridal party. In the rear are the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Martelin, and other relatives. Sergeant Guarini and his bride are now living at the South Fifteenth street address.

CAMPBELL MAY BOLT

Vare Worker Threatens to Quit Downtown Organization

Charles R. Campbell, a Common Pleas Court staffer and Vare leader of the Fifteenth division of the Thirty-ninth ward, one of the Vare strongholds in South Philadelphia, threatens to bolt the Vare forces.

Campbell's attitude is due to the fact that the Board of Education denied a petition sponsored by him from the neighborhood to throw open the grounds of the Southern High School, Thirteenth and Jackson streets, for recreation purposes.

After the petition was denied the school grounds were given over to a carnival company.

Also there is a strong sentiment in Campbell's section for Common Councilman John H. Batiste, veteran member of Council, who would like to be a member of the new Council.

POLICE PENSION BILL VETOED BY GOVERNOR

Sproul Says Charter Provides for City Employees Retired From Active Service

OTHER ACTS DISAPPROVED

Governor Sproul today announced his veto of the House bill providing that the city of Philadelphia must appropriate certain moneys to the police pension funds. "By an act recently approved, known as the charter act for the city of Philadelphia, a new charter was provided for that municipality," says the Governor in his veto. "It was drawn with much deliberation and viewed with close scrutiny during its passage through the Legislature. That act provides that the pensioning of employees of cities of the first class should remain as now provided by law."

"I am of the opinion, therefore, that no bill should be approved which would in any wise conflict with the provisions of that act and that the fullest degree of home rule in such matters would leave to the City Council the power to take care of subjects of purely local concern. The police safety forces of the city should look to their representatives in Council for just treatment in providing for their pension funds."

Other bills vetoed include: Providing for a chief inspector of the board of censors of moving pictures. Prothonotary's fee bill for counties having between 200,000 and 1,000,000 population, the necessity for an increase not being apparent. "The poor litigant would be deterred from attempting to go into court to secure his rights or redress his grievances" if increased cost of appeal proceedings were allowed. The Governor has also vetoed the bill providing a method of getting rid of mosquito breeding places on the ground that it would make a radical innovation in the assessment laws of the state. The Governor says that the division of the assessment is not clear in some places and that instead of viewers being named, as is usual when benefits are assessed, the commissioner of health is to determine the benefits. The Governor also objects to the fact that only after the commissioner determines the amount in notice given to the property owners and then only by advertisement in the newspapers.

Dry Law Drives Hotel Man to Death After long brooding over prohibition and frequently declaring that now he would "be better off dead," Harry Knowles, for more than twenty years proprietor of the Washington House at Washington, D. C., committed suicide by taking poison. Before taking over the hotel, Knowles was a patrolman in this city. He was sixty-five years old.

Low Cost of Packard Truck Transportation

One Hundred Eight Quarts of Milk Carried a Mile for One Cent

TO "build better than you know" is responsible for an occasional lucky record in a motor truck as well as in anything else. But consistency is the jewel for which the business man is looking when he works out his motor transportation problems. And it is only achieved when builders of motor trucks know the high mark at which they must aim and refuse to place their name on anything lower.

Nearly everybody knows the high standard of automotive engineering that Packard Motor Trucks are required to meet before they are ever given to the public.

But comparatively few people realize that after Packard trucks have been delivered to their owners, their performance is subjected to a closer scrutiny by the Packard people themselves—and a more intelligent scrutiny—than any owner could possibly give them.

Co-operation between the Packard truck owner and the Packard organization result in the most efficient transportation and in costs which can be depended upon to stay low.

An instance of such co-operation is where the Hershey Chocolate Company, of Hershey, Pa., is improving the routing of its trucks and its other methods of transportation by means of suggestions and analyses made by representatives of the Freight Transportation Department of the Packard Motor Car Company of Philadelphia.

By means of carefully kept costs (National Standard Truck Cost System) it is shown to be possible to transport milk by Packard trucks at the marvelously low cost of 9 1/10 cents per ton mile.

Intelligent transportation engineering will improve the operation of any motor truck. But to insure dependable figures year in and year out it is necessary to have a dependable motor truck—a truck with a practical record long enough to prove design and engineering perfectly sound.

That Packard trucks meet these requirements has never been open to question.

Add then the knowledge and ability of the Packard Freight Transportation Department and you have all the insurance a business man could ask that the very important delivery end of his business may be scientifically handled.

The Packard Freight Transportation Department is instituted for the benefit of all business men regardless of the make of the trucks they already own. We shall be glad to hear from them. No obligations.
