

PART OF CHARTER EFFECTIVE TODAY

Civil Service and Finance Sections in Operation and Trial Boards Abolished

FIREMEN OUT OF POLITICS

The civil service and finance sections of the new city charter go into effect today.

Under the provisions of the civil service section the police and firemen are now officially out of politics, and considerable change is made in the methods of handling other city employees.

In an opinion from City Solicitor Connelly it has been made clear that the old system of trying delinquent policemen and firemen by trials boards was abolished.

The Civil Service Commission now takes charge of this important work.

Until the city solicitor gave his opinion administration officials were mystified as to just what course to pursue in the trial of policemen and firemen.

While the main provisions of the civil service section go into effect today, the new members of the Civil Service Commission are not elected until after the new Council takes office.

Provision was made in the charter bill for the selection of the civil service commissioners by the new Council of twenty-one. Until the new Council becomes operative the present commissioners will serve.

Drastic penalties are provided in the civil service section for policemen and firemen found guilty of political activities. After months of discussion it was decided by the framers of the charter to take the police and firemen out of politics by making the provisions of the old Sheran law more severe.

An opportunity for studying the effect of the workings of the finance section will not be afforded until the fall. On October 15 the Mayor is required to present to Council a detailed estimate of the anticipated expenditures for 1920, together with an estimated statement of the city's anticipated receipts and expenditures for that year, compiled by the city controller.

INSECT BITE KILLS MAN

Acting Patrol Sergeant Ledger Dies of Blood Poisoning

Camille Ledger, acting patrol sergeant of the Third Precinct and Fairmount Avenue Police Station, died in the Roosevelt Hospital from blood poisoning which developed from an insect bite on his arm. He was fifty-two years old and lived at 119 Fairmount Avenue.

Ten days ago, when Ledger was on his vacation, an insect bit him on the hand. In rubbing his hand he irritated the wound and a few days later when his hand and arm began to swell to unnatural proportions he went to the Roosevelt Hospital. Physicians there were unable to curb the spread of the poison, however, and he died late yesterday.

GOOD OLD DAYS ARE GONE FOR "FLIVVERING" GYPSIES

Nomads in Darby Camp Discard Palm Reading for Modern Science of Phrenology and "Swallowing" Bad Luck of the Credulous and Superstitious

"WHERE are the horses and the brown-covered wagons?" The chief, wearing a Van Dyke beard, looked rather bored.

"We travel in automobiles," says Pete Eli, chief of at least a part of the large encampment of gypsies out beyond Darby.

And sure enough. Nearly every tent has its automobile alongside, and not an ill-fed horse was in sight nor a covered wagon filled with straw, in which the women and children used to be carried from town to town. The dark-skinned nomads do their roving at fifteen miles an hour, or faster if need be.

Two hundred of them have already arrived at the camp in Darby, where a large sunny field has been rented for the summer. "I don't know if you please," there was a time when the gypsies did not use such businesslike methods.

A muttering on all sides showed that a variety of languages were understood inside the camp—sounds that meant nothing to the outsider. But every one understood and speaks English. Chief Eli when questioned about the last stopping place. "Some of us have been here since spring."

"Some come from Russia," said one of the women. "We have come from Bulgaria, Hunania and a lot of places."

Women Are Beautiful. The women are beautiful, with lustrous black hair and eyes, and they hold to tradition by wearing the ample dresses of rich, contrasting colors such as gypsies have worn for centuries. About their necks are the curiously wrought bangle chains of gold coins from the many countries where they have pitched their tents.

The children grow up very fast in gypsyland. Little Mary Meekin, who is twelve years old, is engaged to marry twelve-year-old Antonio Petrovitch, according to Madame Petrovitch.

The little girl spends her days with her future mother-in-law, on Market street, where Madame Petrovitch reads fortunes by feeling the head. But Mary is not one of the brides of Sunday. Although her engagement has been formalized, she is to be married in Philadelphia.

State Reconstructs Human Derelicts. New Bureau Has Been Created for the Rehabilitation of Industrial Cripples.

The State Bureau of Rehabilitation, an outgrowth of experience of the state government in administration of the workmen's compensation law, has been created in the Department of Labor and Industry by Governor Sproull's approval of a bill passed in the closing days of the Legislature.

This bureau, which will be administered by a chief to be named by the commissioner of labor and industry, is to care for persons physically handicapped by reason of industrial accident.

Provision is made through an appropriation of $100,000 for a survey of such persons in the state and for establishment of relations with hospitals to give special treatment to injured persons in accord with the nature of their hurts as well as special education to fit them for occupations which they may be qualified to fill after recovering from injury.

The state may also supply artificial limbs or such appliances as are needed to enable them to earn a living. The terms of the bill, which were drawn after an extended study of the subject by state compensation board officials, provide for care of "any resident or residents of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania whose capacity to earn a living is in any way destroyed or impaired through industrial accident occurring in the commonwealth."

MARTIN URGES MOORE TO STAY IN CONGRESS

He Should Not Sacrifice National Career for Mayoralty, Says State Senator

WILL BE LOYAL TO VARES

State Senator David Martin, one of the chief leaders in the Vars camp, does not favor the entrance of Congressman J. Hampton Moore into the mayoralty race.

Reports have been current that if the Pennrose Independent coalition supported Congressman Moore, Senator Martin would break away from the Vars organization and go along behind Moore.

Senator Martin says he not only does not favor the entrance of Congressman Moore into the mayoralty field, but advised the congressman to remain in Washington because "he is one of the best congressmen in Washington."

Martin also set at rest any rumors of a bolt from the Vars organization by declaring he would support the man who is regarded as the Republican organization of Philadelphia.

Republican Alliance and Town Meeting forces have been amalgamating in district organizations for the purpose of concentrating their effort in the mayoralty campaign.

Ward organizations affiliated with the Pennrose faction and the reform committees in the six wards in the Fourth Senatorial district, which takes in all of West Philadelphia, have merged.

John Fieser, a manufacturer, who was defeated for the congressional nomination in 1918, is chairman of the organization which will be known as the Allied Independent Association of the Fourth Senatorial District.

James A. Courts, a Town Meeting committeeman in the Forty-sixth ward, has announced himself a candidate for Council in the Fourth district. Courts is also running against "the contractor oligarchy."

Republican Alliance men of the Thirty-ninth ward will hold a meeting tonight at 1726 South Broad street.

PHONE MERGER APPROVED. Governor Sproull Signs Bill Permitting Double Ownership. Governor Sproull has approved the telephone merger bill. The measure provides that, subject to approval by the Public Service Commission, corporations accepting the provisions of the act may buy and own all or any part of the capital stock of any other like corporation and may acquire, enjoy all the franchises, corporate property, rights and credits then possessed, owned, held or exercised by said last mentioned vendor corporation, including telephone lines.

Waterfront "Round-Up". The police of the Third and Delancey streets station conducted their "mid-summer round-up" along the Delaware river front at 2 o'clock today, with the result that twenty-six "floaters" from all parts of the country faced Magistrate Imber. Three of the men proved they had jobs. The others were sentenced to from thirty days to three months each in the House of Correction.

COMMITTEE OF 100 READY BY MONDAY

Politics Will Not Figure in Choice for Mayor, Says George W. Coles

George W. Coles, chairman of the Town Meeting party, announced today that the makeup of the committee of one hundred will be made public on Monday. There may be, he said, a few more than one hundred names in the list.

"In selecting a man to endorse for the mayoralty," said Mr. Coles, "the question of whether he is an independent or one formerly active in organization politics will not figure. Decision will be based solely on his qualifications to hold the office."

The Town Meeting headquarters has put out a pamphlet covering registration matters, embodying a clarification of one important phase of the Dais-Brady law, qualifying challenges.

"Any person who is registered and also enrolled as a member of a political party," it reads, "may vote the ballot of such party at the primaries without being subject to any challenge regarding his party membership."

This is calculated to do away with any possible repetition of such incidents as were frequent at the primaries in 1917, when opinions conflicted as to a man's right to vote the Town Meeting ticket who had registered Republican or vice versa.

WATER SHORTAGE SHOWS CITY NEED

Necessity for Two Systems Emphasized When Torresdale Pumping Station Fails

WILL TAP 12-INCH MAIN

Need for two independent systems of water supply for Philadelphia, either of which could supply the entire city, is emphasized by the present water shortage, due to a pump break at the Torresdale pumping station.

Although $3,000,000 for the Water Bureau is included in the recent city loan, that sum will be sufficient only for the start of the new system for supplying the needs of the city, according to Chief Davis, of the bureau of water.

Through the use of the available appropriation the capacity of the Queen Lane plant will be doubled, and it will then be able to function with the Delaware works. It is planned to add a 75,000,000-gallon capacity to the Queen Lane station.

The twelve-inch main which serves West Philadelphia and which runs under City Hall, is to be tapped to furnish water to residents of the city most seriously affected by the present water shortage—Kensington and Frankford residents and those living in the central and southern portions of the city and deprived from their usual supply of water a hardship.

"The entire system of distribution will be changed, necessarily," said Chief Davis today. "This work will require days to complete. More than 2000 valves will require adjustment."

A contract was awarded a short time ago to the Grand Shipbuilding Company for six steel shafts, each twelve feet in length and nine inches in diameter. The company has arranged to finish one of the shafts by Monday next by working day and night shifts. Arrangements have been made with the Camden Iron Works to furnish emergency parts for the damaged engines.

Today work on one of the crippled pumps is expected to be completed. This will provide a supply of about 50,000,000 gallons a day.

Chief Davis advises economy in the use of water throughout the city for the next two weeks.

POLICE FORCE OF FLIERS URGED FOR PHILADELPHIA

Veterans of Air Service Organize, Offered Equipment and Money of Pennsylvania Aero Club

An aerial police force for Philadelphia. That is the plan of Captain Claude R. Collins, president of the Pennsylvania Veterans of the United States Air Service, who met in the Hotel Walton last night to perfect plans for the organization which were begun some time ago.

It was announced at the meeting that Joseph A. Steinhilber, president of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, had offered the new organization the entire equipment of the Aero Club, including about $1500 in cash, its meeting place and the money collected to erect a memorial to those members of the Pennsylvania air service who lost their lives in the war.

Three points were advanced for consideration of the members. Encouragement for Flying. First, the phrasing of the coming candidates for Mayor and City Council on the encouragement of flying; second, a resolution to the federal authorities for the creation of a federal department of aviation with a cabinet member at the head and, third, a petition to Governor Sproul for the appointment of a committee to draft an aviation statute for the state of Pennsylvania. It also was urged that members, in their election of officers, keep absolute control of the organization in the hands of the active flying men.

After considerable debate as to procedure, the new body elected the following temporary officers: President, Captain Claude R. Collins; vice president, Bruce Edwards and George S. Ireland; secretary, C. W. Garvin, and treasurer, Floyd Shewalter. A board of directors, consisting of John B. Huhn, Murray Earle, George R. A. Brown, S. W. Catheart and D. Willard Zahn, was also chosen and the officers were appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Steinhilber and other members of the Aero Club as to the taking over of their equipment.

Captain Collins is a newspaper man of this city, a member of the New York

Plans in New York. In commenting today on the possibilities of an aerial police force for this city Captain Collins said: "There is every reason to believe that Philadelphia will soon be brought to the realization of the advantages and practicability of an aerial police force. Giant strides along this line are now being made in New York, and a large appropriation from the state has been made. When this is obtained New York will lead the world in aerial police work unless Philadelphia gets busy, forms a force of fliers, purchases machines and establishes flying fields. The expense of carrying such plans into completion would not be great. Aircraft can now be purchased at the same price as some of the higher-priced automobiles."

The meeting opened with C. W. Garvin in the chair. He explained the object of the organization, which is to stimulate interest in flying and in time to get a municipal airfield from which the members can make flights.
