Miss Martin will actly that she is pretty, but she certainly maid of honor. is piquant and dainty; and her burnished gold-brown curly hair is always so prettily arranged.

Mrs. John Drexel also entertained on Thursday night at Fairhaven. Mrs. Drexel, you know, is an airst of Mrs. Cassatt, who was Minnie Fell and the daughter of Mrs. Alexander Van Rens-selaer, who was Miss Sarah Drexel, a sister of Mr. John Drexel.

AND speaking of the Drexels makes me think of another member of that family, young Anthony Drexel Biddle, Jr. I hear that he and his wife have bought a large place there between Rye and White Plains. They have spent their summers in Long Island since their marriage, but will henceforth be Westchesterites, as they say in New York. The place they have bought is beautifully situated, and there is no doubt there will be some dandy parties

But letters come to me and I hear bits of gossip from birds and sandileas as you know, and altogether there's usually something to tell about. I find.

There is much talk in Newport now season. lady. Naturally Philadelphians are interested, as Mr. Goelet's first wife was Elsie Whelen, the daughter of Mrs. Hartman Kuhn, and sister of Mrs. Craig Biddle. Though very few Philadelphians outside of the Newport set know Mr. Goelet well, they have a natural curiosity about him and his doings, even though he and Elsie Whelen were discontinuous for saveral weeks. vorced five years ago, and she has been married nearly five years now to Mr. Henry Clews, Jr., of New York.

HEAR young Tristram Colket, Jr., has been quite i'l at his home in Resement. But the latest bulletins are that he is so far recovered that tutoring will start in again on Monday. He's preparing for Harvard, I believe, How these boys grow into men in no time, don't they?

Tris is a brother of Lippincott and Harrison Colket. All three boys are extremely popular with members of the younger set. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Tristram Colket, of Bryn Mawr. Mrs. Colket was Miss Eleanor Lippincott.

T HEARD of a nice engagement that is to come out in the fall. Of course it may be just gossip, but somehow I don't think it is. The girl in question is a Main Liner and the man is not a Philadelphian. But he knows Philadel phians and has visited here quite a lot and is very much liked. I hope it is true, for the girl is awfully nice and has a dandy brother and sister. I won't tell you another thing, no matter ho hard you try to drag it out, because it's not to be told yet, and besides I am not sure, anyhow. How can I tell that that bled is always telling me toe truth? To be sure, I have not caught it in a whopper yet, but how can you tell? NANCY WYNNER
