

WHISKY SALE HERE CHARGED; 3 ARRESTED

Saloons Man Accused of Selling Liquor to Agent of Department of Justice

BONNER QUILTS AS LEADER

John P. McShea, a saloonkeeper at 1438 Glenwood avenue, and his sister, Elizabeth McShea, were arrested today charged with having sold whisky to S. A. Twiss, an agent of the Department of Justice.

Twenty-one warrants ready United States Marshal Noonan has twenty-one other warrants ready for service charging saloonkeepers and bachelors with violation of the wartime prohibition act.

Through the vote of the Philadelphia Retail Liquor Association, Association, ratifying the agreement made by Neil Bonner, its president, to provide the federal authorities with evidence that 1000 or more saloons in this city are selling 2.75 beer.

Acceptance of the saloonkeepers' evidence, together with other data, such as the time and place of sale, name of purchaser and a sample of the beverage sold, had been made by the federal attorney, after serious cogitation.

It was realized, it is said, by both Mr. Kane and Todd Daniel, head of the Bureau of Investigation, of the Department of Justice, that in no other way could the desired evidence be obtained, taking into account the government's lack of money and paucity of investigators to track saloons selling beer.

Announcement that Assistant Attorney General William J. Frierson, in charge of the liquor enforcement act, had not only frowned upon the contemplated step, but had actually repudiated District Attorney Kane's action, caused consternation in the office of that official and others in the Federal Building.

Saloon Men to Meet Ratification of the offer of Mr. Bonner was made unanimously on Sunday by the members of the auxiliary committee of the organization, convened especially for consideration of the action.

The 250 members present were heartily in accord with the suggestion. The entire association, at a meeting called for tomorrow, is expected to approve the action of the auxiliary committee.

Mr. Bonner, who is serving his third term as head of the organization of 1500 liquor dealers, has resigned, deferring his leaving office until August 24 at the request of the executive committee. He assigns his desire for a vacation as the reason for his resignation.

Declaration that the Department of Justice under no circumstances will consent to the continued sale of any beer, pending a final decision on the "beer test" case by the United States Supreme Court late this fall, was made today by Assistant United States Attorney General Frierson at Washington. The plan outlined by the government is to arrest and rearrest beer sellers and to continue doing so until every person selling the beverage is held under bail.

INTERMYER STOUTLY DEFENDS WILLIAMS

N. Y. Lawyer Tells Senate Committee Comptroller Is "One of the Best"

Washington, July 28.—(By A. P.)—John Skelton Williams was described before the Senate banking committee today by Samuel Untermyer, of New York, as "one of the best comptrollers of the country ever had."

The committee is considering Mr. Williams' nomination. Untermyer denied testimony of Frank K. Hogan, counsel for the Riggs National Bank, that he had suggested that federal indictments charging bank officials with perjury might not be returned if they would resign.

He told the committee the comptroller had shown "great magnanimity" in resigning after the Riggs case had ended, adding: "I don't believe I would have done it."

Mr. Untermyer said he was counsel for the committee of creditors of the closed First National Bank of Uniontown, Pa. He thought the comptroller was a "little unfortunate" in the selection of a receiver for that bank.

Questioned as to the salary he received as counsel for the government in the Riggs case, Mr. Untermyer said because of his friendship for former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, he had offered to act without compensation, but finally had agreed to accept $5000.

Mr. Williams followed Mr. Untermyer, resuming his defense of his action against the Riggs Bank. He presented what he said was conclusive evidence that the bank had engaged in real estate and brokerage business and deplete the bank to discontinue these operations its business has greatly increased. This showed increased confidence on the public's part, he said.

Italy Seeks Philadelphia Business

The corporation gives as reference the American Chamber of Commerce, of Milan, and the Italo-Czechoslovak chamber of commerce, of Milan, and states that it has been endorsed by the Italian Institute of Credit for Foreign Commerce.

THIS IS THE LIFE! GIRLS REVEL AT ELLIS COLLEGE

Fatherless Children Taught to Work and Play—Cottages to House Fifteen Will Be Erected

It was the homiest, coziest sort of a room, a small, neat, comfortable room. Eleven pretty, clean, happy little girls laughing and chatting over their work on a wide screened-in veranda overlooking acres of velvety lawn, meadowland and, in the distance, waving cornfields.

Some of the larger girls were culling linen pillowtops. Several were making baskets of willow. And the smaller tots were busily knitting tam-o'-shanters for their dolls.

Certainly they looked anything but institutional in their becoming frocks and their general air of being at home. They were the "charter students" of the Charles E. Ellis College for the Education of Fatherless Children, on the Diston estate near Chestnut Hill.

"I never had a doll before," whispered Amelia, the newest comer. "Her name's Margaret and she sleeps with me, and I'm making her this blue and red tam." This last she rushed out all in one breath, and then she hurried upstairs to find "Margaret," so the visitors could see her.

But She's Different Now

"I wish you could have seen Amelia when she first came to us," said one of the teachers, when a visitor wondered how on earth the school happened to get a group of such good-looking children. "I'm certain her dress was made from an old lace curtain. It reached to her shoelaces, and there was a faded, soiled sash. Her hair was matted, and altogether she was the sort you wanted to put immediately in the bathtub with plenty of disinfectant. She looked like a different child when she was cleaned up.

VARES PUSH FIGHT FOR REGISTRARS

Alliance Candidate, Clad in Undershirt, Opposed Case Held Under Advisement

ARRESTED ONCE, HE SAYS

The expected squabbling over the appointment of new division registrars did not materialize in full strength today because of the Republican Alliance policy of not trying to fight appointments where the Vares admittedly held the "upper hand."

The full board of commissioners was present when the hearings opened in the commission's rooms on the sixth floor, and the proceedings are going along much faster than was supposed would be the case.

Vares forces, however, were not so passive, and many protests were heard against Republican Alliance candidates in the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth wards, where the Vares hold the whip hand.

The first objection raised was to the appointment of Michael DiGiannino, 1811 South Canine street, Fifth ward, an Alliance candidate.

"Have you ever been arrested?" Leopold Glass, Vares attorney, asked.

Admits Arrest The candidate admitted he had been, and to further questioning said he had been charged with robbery.

DiGiannino appeared before the commission wearing a short-sleeved undershirt, with no topcoat or coat.

His case was held under advisement. Another protest that met the same fate was the one against Oscar Pippit, 1222 East Moyamensing avenue.

Pippit appeared as candidate for the job of registrar in the Fifth division of the Second ward. Organization attorneys tried to prove that the signature of Gordon McLain indorsed on his petition was a forgery.

McLain, they produced witnesses to show, is in the government service and has not been in Philadelphia for more than six months.

Two other Republican Alliance men whose candidacy was fought were Joseph J. Scarpato and Joseph Massa, both of the Twenty-first division of the Second ward. Nicholas Di Gregorio, 740 South Hess street, appeared and testified that signature of his name on their joint petition was a forgery.

The case was held under advisement, because both men had the required number of signatures without the disputed one.

Finley Is Present

William E. Finley, high in the affairs of the Republican city committee, was present during the hearing of applicants from "his" ward, the Third.

The Republican Alliance was represented by John A. Voorhes, executive director; J. Claude Roth, J. Louis Breittinger and other attorneys.

HALL JANITRESS DIES

Mrs. Quigg, 56, Fourteen Years in Service, Dies of Apoplexy

After fourteen years as janitress at City Hall, Mrs. Martha C. Quigg, fifty-six years old, died yesterday as a result of a stroke of apoplexy.

During her long service, Mrs. Quigg became well known and was well liked by the officeholders in the building.

Mrs. Quigg was stricken on Saturday while at work in the office of Municipal Court Judge Charles L. Brown, at 501 City Hall. She was removed to the home of her sister, Mrs. Margaret Cooper, matron of the Central Police Station and was attended by Dr. John Egan. Later, Mrs. Quigg was taken to her home at 2025 West York street, where she died yesterday.

STEWOT TO BOIL AT DARBY GYPSY CAMP

Music, Song 'n' Everything to Celebrate Engagement of Two Boys and Two Girls

A big stewpot, with "everything" in it, will boil tomorrow at the celebration of the engagements at the gypsy encampment at Darby.

"You can believe the 'everything,' for Chief Johnson is in town today to do shopping for the event, and several of the women are also expected to make a number of purchases.

"I am here to order the music," said the chief when asked what he had spent $1000 on staff for the celebration. There will be three truckloads sent out to the camp.

One of the women mentioned a variety of foods that would be prepared and included wine. At first the chief looked noncommittal, but then his face broke into a wide smile and he gave a hearty understanding laugh.

There is considerable doubt as to just when the celebration starts. According to some, it will begin tonight; according to others, it will be in the morning; but there is no possible doubt that a celebration will be planned.

"Don't you believe the story about the $2000 for a bride," said one of the women when questioned about the wedding money. "If a boy likes a girl and she likes him and their parents say it's all right, then there is no money. Don't you believe about the money. That's all wrong."

But whenever the party starts, it is sure to last quite a while. Sometimes it has been known to last three days. There will be dancing to music and singing and eating, besides the church ceremony.

The participants will be Eli Johnson, fifteen years of age, who will become engaged to Annie Bobb, fifteen; and John Johnson, sixteen, to Rosie Annie, fifteen.

It will be some party.

NEED FARM LABOR IN STATE

U. S. Employment Directors Say Situation Is Due to Harvesting Shortage of agricultural labor throughout Pennsylvania is noticeable at the present time, but directors of the United States employment service here see nothing alarming in the situation.

It was explained today there is always a shortage in farm labor at this season of the year, because of the increase in the work of harvesting.

The annual report of the division of operations of the employment service, made public today, shows not only a shortage in farm, but in common labor throughout the western and southern states.

The report is said to be a general surplus of professional and technical men and clerks.

Statistics made public by the Department of Labor show that 10,000 men were placed each working day during the eighteen months since the employment service was organized.

FOUR MEN ARRESTED BY MURDER PROBERS

Poles Held as Material Witnesses in Killing of Glassboro Woman

EVIDENCE ACCUMULATES

Four Poles, arrested at the boarding house of Maech Marzio, at New and High streets, Glassboro, Sunday, are being held as material witnesses in the Clara Sabor murder case by the Gloucester county authorities. They are in the county jail at Woodbury, N. J.

One of the men under suspicion for the crime, Alex Barvenik, is known to have stopped at the Marzio house the night before the shooting. Mrs. Marzio admitted Barvenik had been a boarder, but declared she had ordered him to leave when she learned he had been implicated in a robbery at Chester.

She said he returned to Glassboro last Tuesday to get back wages due him from the glass works where he had worked under the name of Alex Berry. Her husband cashed one of his pay checks, she said.

Marzio quit his job at the glass works last Tuesday, the day before the murder, and took a job under an assumed name at the new plant two days later. The other boarders gathered in the police net had jobs on the night shift at the glass works. These men, the police say, did not report for work last Tuesday night. The Sabor murder was committed early Wednesday morning.

The funeral of Mrs. Sabor was held in Philadelphia yesterday. Burial was in a Jewish cemetery.

PROBE WOODBURY DEATH

Investigation Begun Today in Saturday's Shooting Case An investigation into the death of William Casperson, eighteen years old, who was shot and killed in Woodbury, Saturday night, will be made at the Woodbury courthouse today.

The police have been unable to determine whether the shot was fired from a revolver in Casperson's own hand, or one held by Alexander Morgan, seventeen years old.

Casperson resided at the Morgan home on West street and was employed as a truck driver on the new road being constructed between Woodbury and Millies Hill.

The two boys were looking at revolvers in a second-hand store. Each was examining a gun when it exploded. Casperson ran from the store, with Morgan after him. A passing automobile was summoned, but Casperson died before reaching the nearest doctor.

The highwaymen overlooked $36, which was in his watch pocket. Corumak was identified by Osborne as the man who had struck him.

JAIL ENDS SAILORS' ROW AT WILDWOOD

Gobs Beat Up Negro on Boardwalk, Resist Copette and Come to Grief

Wildwood, N. J., July 28.—Three sailors, W. C. Burns, Guy Montgomery and S. O. Locke, from Cape May naval base, got the choice of a $90 fine or ninety days in the county jail from Mayor F. E. Smith last night for being drunk and disorderly on the Boardwalk.

The fight which caused their arrest was witnessed by hundreds of promenaders. According to witnesses the sailors began taunting Robert Thomas, colored. Thomas paid no attention to them it is said. One of the three struck the negro and when he endeavored to defend himself the others also attacked him and later threw him over the railing of the Boardwalk to the beach below. Thomas was taken to the hospital, but later went to his home.

Mrs. Lillian M. Fisher, a policeman ran up on the walk to arrest the sailors. By this time the gobs had entered the store of J. I. Schwartz. Mrs. Fisher told Montgomery he was under arrest. The sailor grasped the wrist of the policeman and began twisting her arm. Men and women came running from all directions. Schwartz attempted to assist the copette and was struck by the prisoner, Leslie Hoff, one of the beach guards, subdued Montgomery. Meanwhile the other sailors were fighting with other men, one of whom was Paul Sheutz, 2829 North Twenty-sixth street, Philadelphia. Sheutz received a bruised nose in the encounter.

Shortly after the sailors were jailed friends tried to saw the locks of the cells and liberate them. To prevent a jail delivery, Chief Smith took the sailors to the county jail at Cape May Court House.
