Twelve persons were injured as the result of week-end motor accidents. George Leybig, his wife, Charlotte, and their son, George, Jr., eighteen months old, were knocked down at Broad street and South Penn Square last night, by an automobile driven by Harry Dankelman, 327 South Twelfth street.

Dankelman placed the injured persons in his machine and drove to the Jefferson Hospital. He was arrested, and will have a hearing before Magistrate Pennock. The Leybig family live at Indiana, Pa., and were on their way to Broad Street Station when the accident happened.

Two automobiles collided at Fifth and Locust streets last night, and the five occupants of the machines were injured. One car, owned and driven by Dr. Walter Sander, of 812 North Forty-first street, also contained A. Longhead and Emory Ellison, of the same address. They were slightly injured. Matthew S. Rosen and Mrs. Ernie Kesler, both of 1413 South street, were in the second machine. They were cut and bruised, but refused to go to a hospital. ALCOHOL UNDER BAN, MUTE SEEKS DEATH

No Home, Friends, Nor Money, and What Is Life With Prohibition?

"What good is life with prohibition?" asked eighteen-year-old James McCordley, a deaf mute, after he had twice been frustrated in attempts to end his life in police cells here. He is now in the county prison awaiting an investigation of his sanity.

When McCordley saw a row of bottles yesterday in the window of a saloon at Nineteenth street and Fairmount avenue, each bearing the familiar label which showed that the contents were "hooch," the temptation proved great. He seized a brick and smashed the window, flooding up a nearby alley with one of the coveted bottles. There Patrolman Kelley, of the Twentieth and Buttenow streets station, found him weeping because the bottle in his hand contained only water.

The man was arrested and an hour after he had been placed in his cell the turkey caught him in an attempt to hang himself from the bars by his belt. Later he was sent to Central Station by Magistrate Beaton under $600 bail. He had no sooner been placed in a Central Station cell than he again attempted to choke himself. This time using his socks, which he had tied together. He was again detected and to prevent any further such move he was stripped of all his clothing.

Asked why he wanted to die, McCordley wrote: "I have no home, no friends and no money. Anyway, what good is life with prohibition?"

"MAGNIFIQUE!" IS WAR BRIDES' CRY AT FIRST GLIMPSE HERE

French and British Girls, Arriving on the S. S. Maui, Enthuse Over Their Reception

"Ah, tres jolie! These America, it is so grand place and we have in Philadelphia, see reception extraordinary."

The eight French brides, who arrived here with their husbands on the S. S. Maui, are wide-eyed, shy and blushing happy at the wonder of the new country—so far as they have been able to see it.

"And the high buildings!" said an English bride. "We said to each other, we would pretend we were not surprised, but we couldn't help marveling."

Mrs. Americo Perella, the English bride of an American army officer, has served many months in a French canteen, and has an international point of view on the league of nations.

"I should very much like to say that I am frightfully keen for the league of nations, and I do think that the newspapers have a great work to do in stabilizing the world."

"I cannot say too much about the Red Cross. You know when strangers arrive in England we always look at them first disapprovingly. It is natural for the British to be formal, but to have your Red Cross attendant serve us with tea at the wharf—it was wonderful. And they never asked us any questions. It was a relief to go into a hotel and not have to give your pedigree before the clerk should decide whether you should have a room on the third or the sixth floor."

Mrs. L. C. Osborn is a Swiss bride who has lived some time in Ireland and England. She will make her home in Loveland, Col.

Most of the brides have no regrets at leaving their country to come to America and without exception think America is a wonderful place.

"I think it is a great improvement," says Mrs. Osborn, who met her husband in March, the first day he arrived in England. From March to June there was a rapid courtship and then in June came the marriage. Mrs. Osborn wants to go in for farming to help supply the markets of the world with food. She has great plans ahead for raising fruit in Colorado.

"The first impression is magnifique!" say the two young French brides of Lieutenants Morgan Preston, of Nashville, Tenn., and Gustav Erickson, of Astoria, Ore. Arm in arm they looked their astonishment at what they saw from the roof of their hotel. It was "too wonderful for words" and they just clung to each other in ecstatic enjoyment.

The steamship Maui brought to America more than a dozen brides of soldiers. Eight of the brides are French, two are English, one Welsh, one Scotch, one Swiss and one Belgian.

Members of the Pittville Improvement Association unanimously endorsed Representative Moore for Mayor at a meeting held Friday night. George W. Stielman is president of the association.

Ross was arrested by Policeman Brown, at Fifteenth and Sansom streets, when the prisoner attempted to rob a cash register. It is said.

The party was returning from Atlantic City. When the machine reached Haddon Heights, another automobile approached from the opposite direction. Conway, in trying to turn out of the way, lost control of the car, or it skidded, and a moment later the machine crashed into the telegraph pole.

BURGLAR SCARE STIRS ARDMORE HOUSEHOLD

Falling Screen Frightens Girl, Who Bites Sister as She Comes to Rescue

A screen blown from its fastenings by a high wind created a disturbance in Ardmore early yesterday morning, the tremors of which will be felt for many days to come. If the screen, which was in a bedroom window at the home of Emil Sulzer, Lippincott avenue, had fallen out of the window, all would have been well. But it did not fall in, and worse, it fell atop Miss Julia Sulzer, who happened to be sleeping near the window.

Naturally, Miss Julia awoke, and as she did so yelled "Burglars!" Quite as naturally, her sister Jennie, sleeping in an adjoining room, also awoke and hurried to the aid of Julia. The latter was still screaming, and to shut off the flow of cries Jennie stuck her hand in Julia's mouth. All this took place in the dark. Julia, thinking the burglar was still after her, bit Jennie so hard that she in turn set up a yell.

By this time others were awake to the fact that "something awful" was happening. For one, sister Marie awoke and arrived, adding her voice to the general din. Also the police of Ardmore—both of them—ran in with drawn revolvers.

Then some one suggested making a light, and every eye was relieved except Miss Jennie, who is still nursing a sore finger.

5 CAMDEN CHILDREN ARE BITTEN BY DOG

Neighborhood Alarmed—Animal's Body Will Be Tested for Rabies at Trenton

Five children were bitten by a dog today at Morris and Chase streets, Camden. There is alarm in the neighborhood because of fear that the animal was suffering from rabies. The dog's body has been sent to Trenton for examination. The children are under the watchful eyes of physicians.

About twenty children were playing at Chase and Morris streets when the dog appeared. All tried to escape, but five were not quick enough and were bitten upon the leg as the apparently maddened brute ran snapping through the street.

The children bitten were:

Stella Park, ten years old, of 1603 Morris street.

Stella Guyminski, ten years old, of 1200 Chase street.

Helen Rodzicz, six years old, of 1244 Chase street.

Mary Belton, six years old, of 1235 Chase street.

John Kornzeil, six years old, of 1215 Chase street.

After passing the children, the dog snarled at other persons in the streets, including several women, but all escaped.

Policeman Harry Parsy heard the cries of the children and ran to the corner. By that time the dog had passed. Parsy pursued the animal for some distance and finally shot it.

Physicians in the neighborhood were called to dress the injuries of the children.
